Back to $5 Minimum. The Ice Wagon Dies. Britain's New Worry.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HENRY FORD announces restoration of the $5 a day minimum wage throughout his organization. This means adding sixty cents a day to the pay of forty-seven thousand of the seventy thousand Ford employes throughout the country now getting $4.40. Mr. Ford will have to pay $28,000 more in wages every working day, about six million dollars a year.

When the writer saw Henry Ford at Fort Myers, Fla., a few days since, Mr. Ford was returning hurriedly to Detroit, because, he said, it was raining at Fort Myers. "There evidently was something else on his mind. Perhaps it was the addition of six million a year to his payroll.

Mr. Ford says:

"No one loses anything by raising wages as soon as he is able."

RECENT TENEMENT house fires in New York City have cost seventeen human beings their lives. Such tenements are often fire traps. Some fires, according to police, were incendiary.

Why allow the owner to insure a fire trap, in which women and children sleep? Would not the owner be more careful about rubbish in the cellar, defective wiring, and other fire hazards, if fire meant a loss to him, instead of, in some cases, a profit? Absence of insurance would put an end to arson.

DELAWARE PASSES a law punishing kidnapers with death. Basil Banghart, called "The Owl," of Chicago's Touhy kidnaping gang, is sent to jail for ninety-nine years. Three others of his gang associates, and Touhy himself, are under ninety-nine year sentences.

John Factor, kidnaped by the Touhy gang, reveals "the mistake they made" when they got him. He offered $50,000 for release, but they insisted on $70,000. Says he:

"They wouldn't be decent about it, they abused me for twelve days, kicked and beat me and threatened me with death. That's the reason I prosecuted them. If they had been decent, I would have arranged for a $50,000 payment, and kept my mouth shut."

That is one view of gang ethics.

FIVE TOUHY gangsters realize, with ninety-nine-year sentences, that crime doesn't pay, especially if you "refuse to be decent," and won't take $50,000 when it is offered.

In addition to the five, a sixth, Charles Connors, called "Ice Wagon," is dead, killed by gang companions, because he was tight-fisted. Mr. Schoemaker, Chicago's chief of detectives, puts it thus:

"Connors had a roll, but wouldn't dig."

Meaning that the "Ice Wagon" had plenty of money, including $110,000 from a recent mail robbery, but refused to contribute to the defense of Touhy and Banghart.

When "The "Ice Wagon" was found, bullets in various parts of his body, police also noticed a copper cent stuffed inside the glove that covered one hand, to indicate the murders' opinion of his stinginess.

Britannia, as usual, is a wise old lady. She knows that "ruling the waves," old-fashioned waves of water, is no longer of importance.

Stanley Baldwin, representing British common sense, says if the French will not agree to any disarmament move, then Britain must begin and continue a determined program of air fleet building. The French air fleet, now, could destroy every important British city in one day.

Once the narrow English channel kept out Napoleon and everybody. Now it would not keep out anybody. As far as war is concerned, Britain is no longer an island.

ALSO, AND most important as regards attack, this country is no longer "made safe by oceans on either side." Airplane carriers, if necessary of the submarine type, could bring planes with bombs and poison gas close to our shores now, and, before long, flying across the ocean will become as simple as flying across the English Channel.

The experiment with Army air mail carrying was costly, but enlightening. The fact that Army planes could not do, in carrying mail, work done by commercial fliers, is as disconcerting as to discover that Army tanks could not compete with ordinary civilian trucks.

This nation has made a joke of its airplane department, a side issue amusement for the Army and Navy. The government should stop that nonsense, put the air forces under one intelligent head, directed by the President, and build up the right kind of an air fleet.

Utilities Magnate's Wife Seized by Athens Police

ATHENS, March 15.—(AP.)—The theory was advanced this evening that Samuel Insull left Athens at 6:30 p. m, disguised as a woman and was on his way to Paris.

International News Service.

ATHENS, March 15.—Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, has disappeared on the eve of his deportation from Greece, Mrs. Insull admitted today.

Mrs. Insull told International News Service:

"My husband has vanished. I don't know when he left."

Mrs. Insull and Mrs. Comyomdjoglous, a friend, were taken to the police station for questioning.

Previously three servants, a man and two maids, had been taken from the Insull apartment to the police station and are being held incommunicado.

Before being taken to the police station Mrs. Insull, who had stood loyally by her 74-year-old husband during the collapse of his utilities empire and his subsequent self-exile from the United States, had told International News Service over the telephone that she knew nothing about when her husband left his apartment here, or where he had gone. She spoke in an agitated voice and declined to give any further information.

Mme. Comyomdjoglous is the wife of a Greek fruit merchant. She became acquainted with Insull soon after his arrival in Greece and became his steadfast friend and ardent champion.

M'NAIR WITNESS IN THEFT QUIZ

Mayor McNair, Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, Capt. of Detectives Frank R. Boyd and several city detectives were called before the county grand jury today in connection with an inquiry into alleged theft of goods, variously estimated at from $5,000 to $15,000, from the Winer Style Shop, Fifth avenue and Stevenson street, January 21.

The Mayor was before the grand jury for 20 minutes. He was called, it was reported, to testify regarding activities of detectives in the case, concerning which there had been a dispute. Seven arrests were made in connection with the theft and a large part of the goods was returned.

Letters to Stars, Roosevelt Jail Man

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(INS.)—Ardent letters to Kay Francis and Marion Nixon, film stars, today caused the commitment of Wesley DeWitt, 29, to a hospital psychopathic ward.

DeWitt, when arrested, admitted writing the letters and also admitted sending a "letter of advice" to President Roosevelt. He will be given a hearing in Superior Court tomorrow.

Home Loan Chief In W. Va. 'Fired'

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Officials of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation said today the resignation of Virgil Ross as West Virginia state manager had been requested.

The demand for Ross' resignation was based, it was learned, on dissatisfaction of Washington officials with the operation of the West Virginia branch.

RUSHMORE GETS ROOSEVELT AID

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—President Roosevelt has consented to serve on the national committee which will determine the character of the inscription to be carved on the Mt. Rushmore historical memorial in South Dakota.

This was announced here today by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who is carving the memorial.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Mary C. Rumsey, of the NRA consumers council; a group of Senators and other notables, will serve on the board, in addition to the President.

The giant memorial, carved in South Dakota's Black Hills, will present, in immortal stone, the faces of America's outstanding historical figures—George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln.

Death Laid To Parrot Fever

The City Bureau of Vital Statistics today recorded the death of Miss Nora Conroy, 40, of 2703 Custer street, as due to psittacosis, parrot fever. She died March 12.

Dr. N. H. Bennett, her physician, said the illness from which Miss Bennett suffered resembled a typical case of pneumonia.

Dr. Ray P. Moyer, director of Public Health, has been conducting an investigation of many cases of illness and several deaths that might have been caused by parrot fever.

Miss Conroy had been employed as a clerk at McCreery's.

A number of deaths and illnesses among employes of the store had resulted in investigation as to the cause, and warnings of the possible existence of parrot fever in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Moyer's office also announced today that laboratory tests just completed by the National Institute of Health at Washington indicate that a parrot which had been sent there by Dr. Moyer was infected with parrot disease. The parrot had been sent to a local shop. Dr. Moyer declined to name the shop.

The official diagnosis of Miss Conroy's death followed a warning issued early this week by Dr. Moyer, in which he asked physicians to use special care in examining apparent pneumonia sufferers who had been in direct contact with birds of the psittacine family.

STORM DELAYS FIRST LADY

PORT - AU - PRINCE, Haiti, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and her party arrived aboard the airliner Caribbean Clipper at 12:50 p. m. today on a flight from San Juan, Porto Rico, and will remain here overnight before continuing to Miami, Fla.

SAN PEDRO DE MACORIS, Dominican Republic, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and her party, traveling in a big Pan-American airways flying boat, were blocked by a rainstorm over Haiti today and returned to this airport after flying 120 miles west.

The big plane had arrived here at 7:05 a. m. after a flight from San Juan, Porto Rico. It took off a short time later on the return to Miami.

A terrific downpour of rain, however, reduced the visibility over the mountains of Haiti which occupies the western half of the island on which is situated the Dominican Republic.

The pilot, Charles Dewey, taking no chances, decided to turn back.

Mrs. Roosevelt was perfectly nonchalant. On the return to San Pedro de Macoris she had lunch and made no comment whatsoever upon the delay.

Belgium Votes Pay Increase for King

Over the protests of the Socialists, who demanded a reduction, the King's annual salary was fixed by the Chamber of Deputies at 12,000,000 belgas, approximately $2,760,000. This is about $345,000 more than received by his father, the late Albert I. The Chamber also voted an annual allowance of 2,000,000 belgas, or about $460,000, to the Dowager Queen Elizabeth.

GREEN RAPS WEIR IN SENATE

Would Pillory Him as Public Enemy, He Says

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today denounced the Weirton Steel Company for its stand on labor unions and told a Senate committee:

"If I had my way, I would pillory Mr. Weir as a public enemy."

MAY ASK WRIT

Justice Department officials said today they had "about decided" to seek an injunction to restrain officers of Weirton Steel from interfering with the proposed election of company workers to choose representatives for collective bargaining.

Since the Weirton matter has been placed in the hands of the Department of Justice by the National Labor Board, the law officers have been considering whether to apply for an injunction or to institute criminal proceedings for alleged violations of NRA codes.

Attorney General Cummings has recently spoken of criminal proceedings, "as a last resort," and this statement of policy has led to the belief that an injunction will be sought.

While Green was testifying before the Senate committee considering the Wagner bill to outlaw company unions and make permanent the Labor Board as a court for industrial labor disputes, spokesmen for the automobile industry voiced before the board itself flat refusal to recognize labor unions.

A definite statement of the attitude of General Motors Corporation was presented by William S. Knudsen, executive vice president, after a long list of employe representatives had complained of code violations and discrimination against union men as causes leadin gto the recent strike calls in Michigan and other automobile manufacturing areas.

KNUDSEN STATEMENT

Knudsen's statement, read by John Thomas Smith, general counsel for the corporation, stated emphatically:

"We are prepared so far as we legitimately can to see to it that no group of our employes, not even a single employe, shall be coerced into being represented by any works council, labor

What Is Sauce for the Goose Is Applesauce For the Gander

THE Democratic administration and its representatives demand that industry increase the number of its employes whether needed or not, and that it increase wage scales and salaries by increasing the per diem compensation.

The administration has a right to urge this method of increasing employment and adding to the purchasing power of the community; and if industry has been able to absorb the very recent increases in pay and shortening of hours, it should endeavor to comply with this governmental demand.

But the demand of the administration would come with much better grace and much greater force if the government itself were adopting the principle embodied in this requisition upon private industry.

THE ADMINISTRATION, however, is NOT following its own preachment.

It has REDUCED the wages of government employes at Washington.

It has CUT some twenty-six thousand wage earners from the rolls of the Postoffice Department.

It has destroyed the air mail services of the United States and thrown many thousands of its pilots, mechanicians and other workers out of employment by the conditions it has compelled.

MUST PRIVATE industry not only bear its own burdens of relieving unemployment but also absorb the unemployment which the policies of the administration create?

If the administration is going to establish regulations for industry under the NRA, should it not show its sincerity by making those regulations equally applicable to the operations of the government?

It is easy for the government to find the money to pay salaries and to provide employment.

It is easy for the government to find the money to INCREASE salaries and EXPAND employment.

All it has to do is to impose additional taxes on the already heavily burdened backs of the American people.

This the government apparently does not hesitate to do with or without good reason and with or without beneficial purpose.

IT IS NOT so easy for private industry to find the income to bear additional burdens.

Private industry has no power to COMPEL the public to support it.

Private industry cannot maintain a perpetual deficit and issue bonds to meet it, or print new money to meet it.

But there is nothing to prevent the government from piling up huge indebtedness, which the public must pay off eventually, whether it wishes to or not.

The government, therefore, ought to be at least

FLIER SNUBS DERN 2ND TIME

Stands Pat on Refusal To Accept Post as Army Air Prober

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh refuses to help the Roosevelt administration's study of Army aviation, but is willing to testify before a Senate committee on permanent air mail legislation.

The flying colonel, denouncing the Roosevelt administration for a second time for its action in turning the air mail over to the Army, last night spurned Secretary of War Dern's invitation to help in a broad study of Army aviation.

Again from New York today, in a telegram to the secretary, the Colonel reiterated his refusal to take part, "directly or indirectly," in the secretary's investigation into Army aviation. Lindbergh's message read:

"I want to thank you for your telegram and to asure you that I deeply appreciate the honor of being asked to serve on the committee.

"I do not feel that I can take part directly or indirectly in the operation by the military forces of American business and commerce."

"The Army is now being used to operate the commercial air mail system. Consequently, I regreet extremely to repdy again that I do not feel I can serve on a committee which is charged to study and report upon the performance by the Army Rir Corps in its mission to carry the air mail and directed by executive order."

However, the colonel notified the Senate Postoffice Committee by telegram he would be "glad" to appear before the committee tomorrow to testify on the permanent air mail legislation.

Lindbergh was among a number of prominent aviators invited.

Meanwhile, the administration

GUNFIRE PERILS ALFONSO

PARIS, March 15.—(AP.)—Former King Alfonso, of Spain, and his companions on a lion hunt in the Sudan narrowly escaped death in an exchange of gunfire with a Sudanese patrol, reports from Egypt said today.

Each group mistook the other for bandits. The hunters, who left Cairo early in February, were plodding over a desolate stretch of desert in the region of the River Dender when they were fired upon.

The former monarch and his party promptly returned the fire. Both sides continued firing several hours before the mistake was discovered.

King George's Son Thrown From Horse

CHIPPINGHURST, England, March 15.—(AP.)—The Duke of Gloucester was heavily thrown today when riding in the South Oxfordshire point-to-point steeplechase here and was badly shaken. The horse fell at one of the fences.

The Duke is the third son of King George and is considered a fine horseman.

Tear Gas Subdues Wisconsin Strikers

RACINE, Wis., March 15.—(AP.)—Tear gas and clubs were used by Racine police today to subdue a crowd of 400 pickets attempting to prevent office employes from entering the main building of the J. I. Case Company plant, where a strike of more than 1,500 workers has been in progress for several weeks.

Byrd Plane Crashes In Little America

LITTLE AMERICA, via Mackay Radio, March 15.—(AP.)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd's monoplane, carrying Lieut. Com. Isaac Schlossbach, U. S. Navy, retired, and three passengers, crashed at 12:30 p. m. yesterday.

No one was seriously injured.

Ransom Refused, Joker Slain by Kidnapers

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Kidnapers of Max Kasoff called members of his family last week, demanding $5,000 ransom "or we'll send him home in pieces - an ear first."

Altogether there were four phone calls. The last one Sunday night said:

"So you notified the police, eh? We fix."

Today members of the family went to Rockville Center, Long Island, to identify Max Kasoff's body. He had been blindfolded, shot twice in the head and once through the neck, and there was a deep head cut where he had been struck, as with a length of pipe.

The medical examiner fixed the hour of Kasoff's death as early Monday morning.

Kasoff, who was 37 years old and well known in the automobile rental business, disappeared from home last Thursday night. His family did not take seriously the first demand for ransom because of Kasoff's reputation as a practical joker. Even a kidnap hoax was not too much to expect, his friends said. Anything for a laugh.

The receipt of a letter calling for payment of $5,000 and the phone calls with threats of murder convinced the family, however, that this was no hoax. They reported Kasoff missing, but did not tell police of kidnap threats.

Tricks Employed to Sway Senate Revealed

(Editor's note—This is the fifth of a series of articles disclosing for the first time how a group of internationalists and advocates of unpreparedness, backed in part by the $246,035,319 Carnegie endowments, have organized a gigantic propaganda machine in an effort to plunge the United States into the League of Nations and the League Court.)

By JOHN A. KENNEDY

An amazing example of the methods of international propagandists in "organizing" American public opinion is shown in the formation and work of the National World Court Committee.

This group has branches in 105 cities and in practically every state in the Union.

It was founded to influence the votes of United States Senators in behalf of America's entrance into the League of Nations World Court.

The National World Court Committee, so-called, was in fact organized by the American Foundation, operated by Miss Esther Lape.

INSULL ELUDES GUARD ON EVE OF OUSTER

guard was thrown around the police station and on one was allowed to approach it.

The Holland-American line steamship Statendam sailed from Piraeus at 5 p. m. today. So far as is known Insull was not aboard. The next port of call for the Statendam is Corfu. She is bound for the United States.

Scores of Greek and foreign newspapermen and photographers were in the crowd but the police refused them all information.

APARTMENT GUARDED

The police threw a cordon around the apartment and would permit no one to enter or leave without police permission.

Officials of the American legation apparently were about the only persons in Athens who did not know Insull had disappeared. The United States consulate is located almost opposite the apartment where Insull lived.

During the day United States Minister Lincoln MacVeagh and members of the legation staff were seen on the balcony of the consulate watching for Insull to leave his apartment. They were unaware he had fled during the night.

Police were engaged in a frantic search for the aged ex-millionaire, who is under indictment in Illinois in connection with the collapse of his $2,000,000,000 utilities empire.

Yesterday a plainclothes detective was stationed at the Insull apartment to guard against his leaving. How Insull eluded the guard has not been learned.

ORDERED TO LEAVE

Insull was under orders to leave Greece at midnight tonight. He had been fighting for months for permission to remain in Greece. The Greek Supreme Court had ruled he was not extraditable under the extradition treaty with the United States, but the government, yielding to strong pressure from the United States, had canceled his residence permit, which automatically deprived him of the right to remain in Greece.

A "deadline" for Insull's departure had been set on four different occasions. Each time, however, the time limit was extended on Insull's pleas the condition of his health would not permit him to travel.

The final expulsion order was issued after two noted professors of the medical faculty of the University of Athens had examined him for the second time and reported he could leave Greece under certain conditions without endangering his life.

MYSTERY UNSOLVED

Police went to his flat this morning and entered it, but the magnate was gone. They were unable to find any trace of him or learn anything about the manner of his disappearance. They were entirely without a clue as to where he might be hiding, or to what country he might have gone in the event he has succeeded in leaving Greece undetected.

During recent days Insull had sullenly defied the authorities. When they came to serve a deportation order upon him he refused to see them.

At first he even refused to accept an American travel permit which the Greek authorities, in co-operation with the United States legation, had obtained for him so that he might leave Greece.

Insull's first sign of yielding in his long campaign to remain in Greece came yesterday when he accepted the travel permit and said he would go as soon as he could. He asked the Greek officials to endeavor to obtain a visa for him so that he might safely cross the Greek border.

Throughout yesterday a fruitless effort was made to get a visa for Insull's travel permit. No country, apparently, would receive the former millionaire.

DILEMMA FOR GREECE

What to do with Insull was still a problem for the Greek authorities as the "zero hour" approached. Whether to escort him to the Greek border and turn him over to Jugoslavian authorities, or to place him aboard a steamship bound for the United States was still being debated.

The aged ex-millionaire, however, during the still watches of the night apparently took the solution into his own hands.

HOTELS ADMIT LABOR CHARGE

Three Pittsburgh hotels yesterday pleaded guilty to charges of violating state labor laws by employing women for more than 10 hours a day, and three others posted bond for hearings.

On informations made by Inspector George Hartenstein, of the State Department of Labor and Industry, before Alderman Frank T. Halloran, pleas of guilty were entered by the William Penn, Fort Pitt and Pittsburgher hotels.

The William Penn paid $100 fine and costs; Fort Pitt, $75 fine and costs, and the Pittsburgher, $50 fine and costs.

Hearings will be held for the Mayfair, Webster Hall and Morrowfield Apartment Hotel.

Alderman Halloran sentenced the Penn Window and Office Cleaning Company to pay a $25 fine and costs on a charge of neglecting to have proper safeguards for its men working on the Pittsburgher Hotel.

HOTEL STRIKE PROBE URGED

Councilman John J. Kane has declared in favor of a councilmanic investigation into the treatment of hotel strikers by police.

A group of strikers appeared before Council yesterday to ask that a resolution be passed urging the hotels to settle the strike. Councilmen expressed doubt whether they had authority, as the federal government is already seeking a settlement.

In the delegation to Council were Harry Reich, organizer; Frank De Sando, Miss Margaret Bigley and Miss Mary Hunt.

Serving free pretzels with the beer is not a violation of the NRA, counsel for the National Pretzel Manufacturer's Association informed pretzel makers here today.

"Beer and Pretzels 10 cents."

But not:

WIFE'S SLAYER SOBS AT BIER

He was John M. Cain, 70, who, police say, shot and killed his wife in their home, 16 Boyd street, yesterday, at the end of a two-day drinking party in celebration of his seventieth birthday.

"Oh, Tony!"

Asked if he was satisfied with what he had done, he replied:

"I would be if I had only had a chance to do it myself."

Cain was committed to jail on a charge of murder. Police say a suicide agreement signed by Cain's wife was found in his pocket. An unemployed railroader, facing destitution, Cain said he preferred death.

Daniel Fitzpatrick, 69, of the Friendly Inn, a friend of Cain, and critically wounded by him at the same time, is in Mercy Hospital. His condition is grave, attendants said.

STATE STARTS PAYING BONUS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 15.—Pennsylvania launched payment of its $50,000,000 soldiers' bonus today with the formal presentation of the first check to one of the oldest eligible veterans.

Promptly at 12:15 p. m., on the steps of the Capitol Building, State Treasurer Charles A. Waters handed check No. 1 to Lieut. Henry Melchoir Muhlenberg Richards, 86-year-old Civil and Spanish-American wars veteran from Lebanon.

The check was for $46, representing slightly more than four and one-half months' service in the Spanish-American War.

While Richards was being given his bonus at ceremonies attended by officers of various veterans' organizations, the State Treasury was releasing about 35,000 other checks to veterans for bonuses aggregating approximately $4,000,000 approved to date.

CONGRESS BIDS TO AVOID VET BILL VETO

House Paves Way for White House Truce; Leaders Confident

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Peace between the White House and Congress on the veteran economy and federal pay-cut issue was sighted by Democratic House leaders today.

The House made a bid to avoid a presidential veto of the independent offices supply bill—which carries the economy riders—by modifying liberal Senate amendments in behalf of veterans and federal workers.

The measure, with the House revision of the Senate amendments, was sent to the Senate for conference today.

COMPROMISE OFFER

The leaders planned to have the conference committees confer with President Roosevelt in an effort to agree upon a program. The President has threatened to veto the bill as it passed the Senate.

The House cut the cost of the Senate amendments, which the leaders charged wrecked the economy program adopted in the special session, from $350,000,000 to an estimated $250,000,000 in the next year.

While it went beyond the proposals made by administration leaders of the Senate in their compromise offer, the House modified the Steiwer-McCarran amendments in behalf of veterans.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, said:

"I am hopeful that the Senate will agree with the House and that the President will accept the changes."

Speaker Rainey declared the House action paves the way for a settlement of the differences between Congress and the White House.

FIGHT EXPECTED

A fight was expected in the Senate, however, where sentiment for more liberal treatment of Spanish-American War veterans is strong.

The House decision came after a tumultous seven-hour session during which the House overturned its leadership and then adopted a program substantially as asked by the leaders.

Whatever the final decision, the half billion dollar Economy Act which was passed soon after President Roosevelt took office is drastically changed.

France Plans Slash Of Vets' Pensions

PARIS, March 15.—(AP.)—Taking a leaf from the book of President Roosevelt, Premier Gaston Doumergue today planned to cut veterans' pensions and make administrative changes estimated to save the government 1,000,000,000 francs (approximately $65,000,000) annually.

In case the veterans' groups object, Doumergue, with the aid of Marshal Henri Petain, Minister of War, plans to appeal to the leaders to swing them in line.

Life Saved by Police

DISTRAUGHT JOHN MICHAEL CAIN, 70 .... HIS WIFE SLAIN

Elderly Mr. Cain, whose birthday anniversary celebration lasted two days in his Boyd street home, was climaxed by the slaying of his wife and the serious wounding of an elderly friend. Police reported that they reached the house just in time to knock a suicide's pistol from the hand of their prisoner, brooding over loss of his job.

as strict in its adherence to the basic principles of the NRA as it asks private industry to be.

OF COURSE, in fairness to the government, it must be said that it is employing great numbers of people at vast expense on public works and civil works programs; but it also must frankly be said that a considerable part of the vast sums so expended are being wasted through misdirection, through incompetence, through outright crookedness, and through the inevitable waste inherent in the hasty expenditure of large appropriations.

Would it not be better, therefore, for the government to reduce somewhat the expenditure in the direction where there is so much waste and dishonesty, and to retain on the public payrolls, at LIVING WAGES, the loyal workers who served the country faithfully and skillfully for many years?

THE HEARST newspapers cannot be considered to oppose the public works programs.

In fact, it was the Hearst papers which first advocated a five billion dollar fund with which to build needed public works and to provide needed relief for the unemployed.

And if this amount had been appropriated in the beginning and spent when and where it was most needed, the depths of the depression could have been avoided, and a larger and more reckless expenditure later could have been prevented.

IT IS A SINGULAR thing in this connection that when the Cosmopolitan Corporation's moving picture, "Gabriel Over the White House," was produced, it was sent on to Washington for the inspection of the administration and for the benefit of any suggestion the government might have to make.

This was at the end of March, 1933.

The only recommendation of importance made was that the amount of five billion dollars for public works—which the President IN THE PICTURE was made to demand of Congress—be REDUCED, as such a sum was excessive and unreasonable.

THAT WAS in the latter part of March. Six months later in the same year the administration was demanding of Congress TEN BILLIONS OF DOLLARS for public expenditure.

In such rather dangerous ways do extravagances grow.

What was considered excessive and unreasonable in the first months of the administration's term of office was considered inadequate by half before the first year of office had ended.

GOVERNMENT expenditure is definitely necessary in times of depression.

But that expenditure must be conservatively directed and distributed.

And what is more conservative, more legitimate, than for the government to retain in its employment its own faithful and skillful employes, and to refrain from driving out of employment the faithful and skillful employes of private industry through drastic and ill-considered interference with private enterprise?

The policy of the NRA has a humanitarian purpose and should be supported as far as it can be complied with; but that policy should be a co-operative policy, a harmonious, helpful policy, not a policy dictated by government to PRIVATE INDUSTRY and REJECTED by government itself.

union or outside representation, not of their own choosing."

Green told the Senate Committee the auto industry was "on the verge of one of the greatest strikes in the nation's history. He cited instances where labor had struck under the assumption that it had behind it the legal power of the National Labor Board and the Recovery Act. Declaring the board was without sufficient power, Green said:

"Web etter never have passed section 7A (the union membership clause) than to delude men into believing that they had rights and to bring suffering to the men and women in their homes.

DELIBERATE CAMPAIGN

'We are now forced to recognize that a deliberate and planned campaign is under way, on the part of certain employers, not to comply with section 7A.

"We must recognize this fact and meet it. Not only is labor deprived of the rights granted it by the National Industrial Recovery Act, not only is social injustice defeated, but the fair-minded employers, who are in a majority, are prevented also from carrying out the purposes of the administration.

"The employers who are systematically challenging and impeding the action of the National Labor oBard are in the minority. We must not, in fact we cannot, permit the lawless few deliberately to destroy an agency which the co-operative majority are willing and eager to support."

Green said an era of "ruthless persecution" and a "campaign of discrimination" had followed NRA.

SLUM CLEARING FUND SOUGHT

A drive for slum clearance was under way today following appointment of a committee of three to apply for CWA funds for the project.

Committee members are Frank Richards, assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers; George E. Evans, superintendent of building inspection, and Lee Sellers, of the Bureau of Sanitation.

They were appointed yesterday at a meeting of a "board of demolition" presided over by Joseph P. Tufts, director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association. More than 300 buildings are being considered for demolition, it was revealed.

MEASURE SEEN AS RAISING WAR IN CLASSES

Rights of Employers Held Jeopardized By Proposal

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Leaders of the American iron and steel industry issued a statement here criticising Senator Robert F. Wagner's labor control bill contending its provisions are so drastic "as to make further effort and sacrifices on the part of industry in this emergency seem futile." The statement said:

"Its provisions hark back to the old and thoroughly disproved philosophy that the interests of employers and employes are more antagonistic than mutual. It seeks to regiment class against class and to regulate their intercourse exclusively in terms of warfare."

The statement was issued after a meeting of representatives of plants employing 75 per cent of the workers in the industry, at the American Iron and Steel Institute. It said:

"The bill is designed to control all labor matters by political rather than economic forces and to destroy the friendly relationships between employers and employes, and thus disrupt the industrial welfare of the nation.

FEAR LABOR MONOPOLY

"The chief object of the bill is to turn the control of American industry over to a national labor union monopoly, notwithstanding the fact that national labor unions, by appeals for voluntary membership over a period of many years, have succeeded in enrolling less than 10 per cent of the workers of this country in their ranks.

"Employes of iron and steel companies have made remarkable progress with their plans of employe representation, which have been in effect among employes of some of the companies for more than 15 years. It is now proposed to undo all such progress and by this legislation to force the workers of the country into national labor unions. During this same period, the workers of the country have seen the national labor unions pursue many economic fallacies, including the throwing out of work of large numbers of men because of useless jurisdictional controversies.

"The bill seeks to create a permanent national labor board with more power than any governmental agency has ever had or than any court in the land possesses today. Even during the World War the War Labor Board had no such sweeping power as that sought to be given by the Wagner bill.

"Under the provisions of the bill it is an offense, subject to fine or imprisonment, for an employer to participate in any way in an organization of his employes or even to compensate them for working time lost while engaged in furthering the interests of their fellow-employes or settling their difficulties with the management. Any friendly contact between an employer and his employes, in which the employer expresses his preference for one form of organization or another, might also be considered an offense by the Labor Board and subject the employer to the penalties of the act.

EMPLOYER 'GAG' SEEN

"Although the employer is vitally affected by any agreement with his employes, he would not be permitted to express any opinion as to whether the organization with which he is required to deal is truly representative. On the other hand, there is nothing in the labor bill that restrains the unions from any manner of influence or coercion.

"Although the employer is denied by law the right to have an injunction in the Federal Courts to protect his property, no such restriction is placed upon the labor unions. The board may hold its hearings in Washington and summon witnesses and records from any part of the United States, without regard to the consequent inconvenience and expense, and its findings of facts are conclusive."

Kentucky Editor Sues Assembly Probers

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 15—(AP.)—Suit for $50,000 damages, charging illegal arrest, was filed today by Vance Armentrout, newspaper editor, against the members of the House Lobby Investigating Committee that sent him to jail for refusing to tell who wrote a letter to the Louisville Courier-Journal criticizing the Kentucky General Assembly.

The action followed close upon the House voting 65 to 21 yesterday to fine Armentrout $25 and costs after a special House committee had tried him on charges of contempt.

Armentrout said last night the only way the House could collect the fine and costs was by suing him and that he would fight that. Today he entered action in Franklin Circuit Court here against the seven members of the lobby committee.

He charged his arrest and imprisonment was illegal and caused him mental anguish. He spent an hour in jail March 7 on order of the lobby committee, but County Judge L. Boone Hamilton released him on a writ of habeas corpus.

NRA Fails to Satisfy Labor, Woll Asserts

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, declared yesterday the NRA had failed to attain "the principles advocated by labor." Addressing the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel McAlpin, he said:

"Labor is not deceived in the notion that fixation of minimum wage standards and maximum work hours through codes is an assurance of permanent restriction or regulation.

"Labor believes in the objectives and general purposes for which the NRA was created. On the other hand labor is not unmindful of many of the defects of the whole program.

"It has countless evidences of discrimination and non-conformity on the part of employers with the clear provisions of the law.

"Labor has not accepted the whole act unreservedly. It has given its support to major provisions, while reserving its right to criticize certain defects, and is making clear its determination to demand alteration as well as extension of some of the economic principles involved."

Woll warned of dangers in attempting to expand foreign trade. He said:

"We cannot afford to throw open our doors either to the peoples or the products of other nations."

SCHWARTZ RECONCILIATION WITH GARAVINI WIDOW SEEN

FREED GAMBLER WILL HELP EX-WIFE

Iggy Reported Willing To Forgive and Forget

Iggy Schwartz, the gambler, and his red-haired ex-wife may be reconciled, it was indicated today, as all but the last echo of the killing of Andy Garavini died away.

Iggy is willing to forgive and forget to the extent that he will help red-haired Margaret Garavini, Andy's widow, from the difficulties in which she became entangled for aiding Schwartz in his trial for the killing of her husband.

DIVORCED SCHWARTZ

The woman divorced Schwartz to marry Garavini, and was with the latter when he fell mortally wounded by bullets fired by Schwartz outside the William Penn Hotel, November 9.

Iggy was acquitted yesterday, the jury deciding he shot in self-defense. Margaret Garavini aided that defense. Her testimony indicated Garavini was the aggressor at the chance meeting.

While he awaited the jury's verdict, Schwartz said he would stand by his ex-wife and aid her in her troubles. She was arrested for perjury after she testified, because, the state asserted, her testimony differed from that she gave at a coroner's inquest. She will be arraigned next Tuesday.

Iggy, himself, still faced difficulties today. Indictments charging him with carrying concealed weapons and violating the state firearms act stand against him.

GUN CHARGE

It was suggested to Schwartz's counsel, Attorney A. M. Oliver, that he enter a plea on the gun-toting charges yesterday, but Oliver demurred and Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk announced the case would be listed for trial later.

Meantime, however, it was indicated that Oliver would enter a plea of guilty for his client in the hope of drawing a light sentence from the court—possibly nothing more than a fine.

U. S. TAX OFFICE OPEN LATE

This is the last day for filing tax returns on 1933 incomes without payment of penalties, and the force under David L. Lawrence, collector of internal revenue in the Pittsburgh district, was prepared to meet the belated rush of taxpayers.

To accommodate them his office on the second floor, Federal Building, Fourth avenue and Smithfield street, will remain open until midnight. At the opening of business this morning the total of taxable returns filed was approximately 17,000 under the number filed here on 1932 incomes, according to internal revenue officials.

Last day returns are always heavy, especially those sent by mail, and officials and revenue officials here were hoping today's returns would bring the number up to last year's mark. Then 94,500 returns were filed, of which 37,800 were taxable.

Receipts up to the last day for filing last year were approximately $3,000,000, most representing quarterly or semi-annual payments.

Large corporations and other heavy taxpayers were among those who waited until the last day to file returns.

PEN SENTENCE IN JAILBREAK

William Mangan, 25, son of a former South Side assemblyman, was found guilty of conspiracy to escape from jail and with being an accessory in connection with last Friday's attempted jail-break, by a jury in Criminal Court today.

He previously had pleaded guilty to a shoplifting charge. He was sentenced on all charges by Judge H. H. Roward to three to six years in Western Penitentiary.

John Marge, 26, of the North Side, and Joe Hanecak, 32, of Texas, also accomplices in the attempted break, were to be sentenced later. They pleaded guilty Monday to escape.

SWEET PEA DAY HIT BY FROST

The traditional planting of sweetpeas on St. Patrick's Day, Saturday, will require some hard digging, Weatherman W. S. Brotzman indicated today.

Reports have reached him that the ground is frozen to a depth of 38 inches. The recurring zero spells in February, with little or no snow on the ground, were responsible, he said.

The mercury fell to 18 early today. While mostly cloudy and somewhat warmer weather is in prospect for the next day or two, Brotzman warned against taking the arrival of spring next Wednesday too seriously.

In 1900, he pointed out, the temperature fell to 1 degree above zero on St. Patrick's Day. In the latter part of March the mercury has flirted with zero a number of times.

INDICT BROKER IN PARTY DEATH

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Arthur W. Morse, Wall street broker, was indicted by a grand jury today on a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Mrs. Edna Leavett, of Brookline, Mass.

Mrs. Leavett died in Bellevue Hospital Tuesday night of a fractured skull suffered in Morse's apartment in Greenwich Village.

She was found unconscious by police who were called by neighbors who had been aroused by the noise of fighting and a woman's screams.

Police said the fight in which the woman received her injuries followed an all-night round of Greenwich Village night clubs, after which the woman and Morse returned to his apartment Tuesday morning and started quarreling.

Police said Morse acknowledged that he and Mrs. Leavett had quarreled, but he said he did not know how she received her injuries.

Chinese Physician Kills Self in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Chang Sei Kim, American-educated Chinese physician, committed suicide today by inhaling gas in his richly furnished three-room apartment in Fifty-fifth street.

A brother-in-law told police that the physician had been highly agitated recently and had informed him he had received threats of physical violence and extortionate demands from a man who held correspondence the physician considered of great value.

'JOHN D.' GAINS, SITS IN SUN

International News Service.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 15.—The amazing physical stamina that has brought John D. Rockefeller, Sr., to within five years of the century mark has again triumphed over the ravages of illness.

Visitors to The Casements, the Rockefeller winter estate here, said today Rockefeller was "quite himself again" and fully recovered from the attack of influenza that imperiled him early this winter.

Rockefeller came here several weeks ago to convalesce in the Florida sunshine. He has emerged from the seclusion of his estate for brief motor rides only a few times.

His grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Davis M. Milton, of New York City, have arrived to visit the magnate. Mrs. Milton is the former Abby Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Though recovered, Rockefeller is preserving his vitality carefully. Golf is taboo. He enjoys short strolls about his garden, takes occasional automobile rides in the afternoons, clad in heavy overcoat, muffler and earmuffs, but for the most part sits in the sun.

Beauty of Films Reveals Romance

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(AP.)—Nominated as one of the Wampas baby stars today, Mary Kornman, of Hollywood, 19-year-old film beauty, disclosed she would leave today for Yuma, Ariz., to be married to Leo Tover, film cameraman.

Miss Kornman starred in pictures as a member of Hal Roach's "Our Gang" company. She met Tover three years ago when he photographed a picture in which she was acting.

BLAME POLITICS IN DILLINGER PAROLE

Grand Jury Speeds Probe of Outlaw's Jail Break

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 15.—(AP.)—A parole granted John Dillinger after he had started his crime career prosaically enough by slugging a grocer developed into a first-rate political furore today.

"Amazing facts" will be bared, Republicans promised.

"Dirty politics," replied Democrats.

While all this was going on, a special grand jury was investigating the now notorious desperado's sensational escape from the Crown Point Jail.

The parole freed him from the State Penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind. Harry C. Fenton, director of the State Republican Committee's Press Service, said he would produce "amazing facts" about the release.

Fenton sent Indiana editors what purported to be a photostatic copy of the parole order, signed by Gov. Paul V. McNutt. He said that it contained at least one major error.

The document, in the first of five reasons why Dillinger should be released, said:

"Whereas, One John Dillinger was convicted in the Circuit Court of Allen County, Indiana, on December 26, 1930 . . . and sentenced to the Indiana Reformatory for a term of 10 to 21 years, and afterwards transferred to the Indiana state prison—"

Fenton declared the order was wrong by six years on the time Dillinger began serving his sentence, and also named the wrong county.

The message to the editor said:

"Dillinger's only conviction came in 1924 and it was in Morgan County. He was in the state prison during the entire year of 1930."

Dillinger was sent to prison—it was his initial trip—for slugging an elderly grocer in his home town of Mooresville, Ind.

One of the reasons for his parole, as recited in the parole order, was the intercession of Mooresville citizens. Some 200 of them signed a petition saying that the boy was all right at heart.

TELLS OF SHERIFF KILLING

LIMA, O., March 15.—(AP.)—Charles Makley, once a member of John Dillinger's widely traveled troupe of bank raiders, late yesterday listened as County Prosecutor Ernest M. Botkin told how Sheriff Jess L. Sarber died in an attempt to keep Dillinger in jail.

The state contends Makley is one of the three men who walked in the jail office here last October 12, shot Sheriff Sarber and walked away with Dillinger.

Makley watched quietly and unsmilingly as Botkin said the evidence will show that the former St. Marys (O.) boy was the man who took Sarber's gun and brought it down on the Sheriff's head in "one of two vicious" blows and then forced Mrs. Sarber to get the keys to the jail.

'OWL'S' ESCAPE HERE RECALLED

Basil Hugh (The Owl) Banghart, sentenced in Chicago to serve 99 years' imprisonment for participation in the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, is known to government officers in Pittsburgh.

In October, 1928, he was arrested in Bedford, Pa., for transporting a stolen automobile in interstate commerce, and was brought to Pittsburgh. While being held in the office of the United States marshal he dashed from the third floor of the Federal Building and disappeared.

Six weeks later he was recaptured in Philadelphia and convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary.

FIRE DESTROYS 10 BOATS HERE

Four motorboats and a half dozen skiffs were destroyed when fire swept the R. C. Price Boat Building Company storage boathouse in the Allegheny River near the Sixth Street Bridge early today.

Two yacht houses containing six boats and two 40-foot cruisers that were moored to the burning boathouse were cut loose and were not damaged by the flames. The fire was discovered by R. C. Price, who has an apartment on a boathouse near the scene.

Three fire companies fought the blaze. Two of them were forced to stretch 600 feet of hose from River avenue across the Baltimore and Ohio siding tracks to reach the flames, and another company played streams on it from the Sixth Street Bridge.

The boathouse began to sink after firemen had poured water on it for two hours, and the firefighters were forced to pump out the water to keep the craft afloat.

Price said the damage would exceed $4,000.

Zangara Porsecutor Honored With Medal

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne, of Miami, Fla., who prosecuted Guiseppe Zangara, the slayer of Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, and would-be assassin of President Roosevelt, has been awarded the law enforcement medal of the United States Flag Association, Senator Robert R. Reynolds, chairman of the executive board, announced today.

DOG THAT 'DIED' LIVES 5 HOURS

BERKELEY, Cal., March 15.—(AP.)—Science gave five hours of life to a dog here today after he had apparently died.

Revived, the dog breathed and then succumbed.

But Dr. Robert E. Cornish, research biologist and creator of the means of resuscitation, said he hoped the experiment may mean that many human lives lost through suffocation can be saved if the victim is reached in time.

Five minutes after physicians pronounced the animal "dead" he was placed in a teeter-totter board, with which Dr. Cornish has been experimenting for a year under the theory the motion in combination with artificial respiration and oxygen, would restore circulation of the blood.

A physiological salt solution was injected into the femoral artery to check coagulation of the blood and to stimulate the heart.

Two minutes after the work of resuscitation began, the first faint heart beat was detected.

SKIPPER TELLS STORY OF FIRE ON GUNBOAT

Heroism of British Sailors Saved 187 Aboard Fulton

HONGKONG, China, March 13.—(AP.)—A gallant tribute to British tars who saved 187 American sailors from fiery death on the flaming gunboat Fulton came today from the Fulton's skipper, Commander Harry McHenry, U. S. N.

While the Fulton, a United States Navy craft, still burned on pirate waters north of Hongkong, Commander McHenry and his men—safe in harbor here—recounted their harrowing experiences.

They were brought in early today by the British destroyed H. M. S. Wishart—which saved them—and the steamer Tsinan, a commercial vessel. All were taken off by 10 o'clock last night.

The fire, which broke out in the Fulton's engine room about 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, was expected to roar for hours as tugs began towing her toward Hongkong today.

As he told the story of the thrilling escape to the Associated Press, Commander McHenry plainly showed the effects of the ordeal. His face was haggard.

His first thought was for his men. Eight of the crew were injured. He said:

"I am very proud of the way the crew of the Fulton carried on and performed their duties under trying circumstances."

Then he added:

"I cannot speak too highly of the courageous action of the crew of the Wishart, whose display of seamanship will go down in naval annals."

In heavy seas at the scene of the fire—about 50 miles northeast of Hongkong and six miles from Single Island—the Wishart responded to the Futlon's calls.

Commander McHenry related:

"By very masterly seamanship in rough water Commander Todd of the Wishart placed her bow against ours and we were able to jump across."

Another British vessel, the H. M. S. Whitshed, arriving after a spurt from Hongkong under forced draft, stood by through the night and was joined by two admiralty tugs this morning.

DOG BARK ENDS ELEPHANT HUNT

CHICAGO, March 15.—(AP.)—Police Sergt. Ernest Sundt asked:

"You say an elephant is cavorting about the neighborhood?"

The excited complainant replied over the telephone:

The sergeant sounded an alarm and called for two elephant rifles. Several motor squads bearing all sorts of weapons rushed to the jungle which in this instance was the 1400 block on Hoyne avenue.

They looked everywhere—behind telephone posts, up in trees and under hedges. No elephant.

Suddenly there was a noise—the noise of an animal.

"Bow-wow!"

The officers climbed back into their motorcars with their elephant rifles.

Marlene Dietrich Denies Gifts to Nazi Party

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(AP.)—The German-born film star, Marlene Dietrich, through her studio representatives, yesterday denied she had made any contribution to the Nazi party in Germany and declared she had no intention of doing so "at the present time."

Miss Dietrich said she had mailed a check for $500 to the so-called "winter fund" in Germany to care for children of the poor, and at the same time had mailed a check for a similar amount to the community chest of Los Angeles.

The actress refused to discuss her attitude toward the Nazi movement, but said she did not expect to visit Germaqy in the near future.

BERLIN, March 15.—(AP.)—Marlene Dietrich, the motion picture star, contributed to a welfare fund here yesterday and certain quarters viewed her action as a sign of reconcilliation with the Nazis.

The German-born actress left her native land before the Nazis came into power. For a long time it had been felt here in all circles that there was some trouble between her and the Nazis, and the press at one time criticized her wearing of trousers.

Britain Hints Move Over Nazi Film Ban

LONDON, March 15.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon announced today that the British government may demand compensation from Germany for the ban on the British film "Catherine the Great."

The film was banned recently in Germany after demonstrations in the Berlin Theater, where the film was being shown. Demonstrators howled "Down with Jews." Elizabeth Bergner, a German Jewess, plays an important role.

Death Calls 'Mom' Beals, 'Mother' of Waifs

Her years of labor in behalf of homeless children done, "Mom" Beals was at rest today—and the children didn't forget.

She was Mrs. Mary Elliott Beals, founder of the Faith Home for Children; but just "Moms" to scores of youngsters who found shelter in her home during the 17 years she lived in Edgewood.

Mrs. Beals died yesterday at 1215 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, where she has lived for several months since the Faith home was closed because of her failing health.

There to comfort Robert Beals, her husband, whom the children knew as "Pop," was one of the boys whom the Beals raised as their own. He is now a ward of the Juvenile Court.

The Beals opened their big 14-room house in Edgewood to homeless children 17 years because they loved children and had none of their own. Babies and older youngsters came and went until more than 200 had found shelter.

When failing health made it necessary for Mrs. Beals to give up the laor she loved, the State Department of Welfare had her charges transferred to the Juvenile Court and new homes were found for them.

Funeral services will be held at the T. B. Turner funeral home, Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, at 2 p. m., tomorrow. Besides her husband, Mrs. Beals leaves two brothers, Wesley T. and Harry B. Elliott.

BIG NAMES USED TO AID LEAGUE COURT DRIVE

the state of Washington was formed. The same method was utilized elsewhere.

On August 13, 1930, Miss Lape, in letters to leading citizens in that state said:

"You can be helpful if you are able to do nothing further than give us the use of your name.

"You incur no financial obligation."

The late Edward Bok had left the American Foundation $2,000,000 for just such purposes. Its expenditures are kept secret.

By October an imposing list of Washington names was obtained. A meeting of the "committee" was held at the Olympic Hotel, in Seattle.

It was addressed by Chester Rowell, San Francisco internationalist propagandist, who disclosed the methods used in California to get ex-Senator Shortridge to vote "yes" when the court question first came up for consideration in 1926.

The following is from Mr. Rowell's speech:

"The committee didn't have anything to do, but it was an imposing list."

Then Rowell described how various churchmen had been induced to permit their names to be used. He added:

"Then we had the State Federation of Labor, the head of the State Chamber of Commerce and the heads of every club in California that had a lot of votes that would be exceedingly desirable TO HAVE and exceedingly undesirable to have AGAINST YOU.

"Senator Shortridge's manager came to us and we showed him the list.

"He simply put his own name to it and telegraphed to Senator Shortridge, who voted RIGHT.

"That is ONE WAY to do things.

"You also have two senators. Whether you want to do anything of that kind with them I don't know. You know better than I."

On November 30, of the same year, Miss Lape's American Foundation made public "letters, telegrams and statements from the World Court committees in 105 cities, urging early ratification of the World Court protocols."

That drive was engineered to obtain Senate court approval.

It failed.

Now these groups are AGAIN propagandizing the nation in an effort to have the Senate discard the administration's recovery program and plunge itself into a bitter and long debate over League Court adherence.

Seaway Treaty Defeat Deemed Blow to League

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Administration leaders abandoned all hope today for early ratification of the revised league court protocol in view of the Senate's overwhelming rejection of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty.

The Senate's action was interpreted by both friends and foes of the Canadian pact as revealing a deep-rooted opposition to any treaty, assailed as yielding American rights at this time to foreign interests.

Administration leaders frankly blamed existing economic conditions for the treaty's rejection, as much as the issues raised by the opposition.

WRECKS PLANS

Rumors, meanwhile, prevailed on Capitol Hill that President Roosevelt planned to ask prompt approval of the League Court if the St. Lawrence Waterway Pact had been ratified.

His spokesmen, it was said, would have urged American adherence to the court in order to provide a tribunal for settling controversies arising out of operation of the waterway between Canada and the United States. Defeat of the St. Lawrence pact destroyed this move.

Senator Lewis (Dem.), of Illinois, leader of the St. Lawrence opposition, openly declared defeat of the Canadian treaty precluded approval of the League Court protocol.

Lewis said:

"It is apparent to me that the spirit shown in response to objections that the United States was surrendering sovereignty over Lake Michigan to some international tribunal, proved that any treaty carrying the United States into the League of Nations or a World Court would be resented in the Senate and wholly defeated."

It was considered significant that the four Senators, most responsible for defeat of the St. Lawrence treaty, all oppose the League Court. They were, besides Lewis, Copeland (Dem.), of New York; Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, and Long (Dem.), of Louisiana. In a battle over the World Court, they would be aided by such "anti-courters" as Borah (Rep.), of Idaho; Johnson (Rep.), of California, and La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, who voted for the Canadian treaty.

WIDER DRIVE SEEN

In the closing days of the St. Lawrence battle, Lewis and his associates privately charged the Canadian pact was the first step in a wider drive to force the United States into the League Court. They did not raise this issue publicly because they knew they had the St. Lawrence treaty defeated and did not wish to inject a new controversy into debate.

Defeat of the pact virtually served notice, too, on the administration that the Senate will resist any effort to revise the foreign debt settlements downward. The threat to debt revision lay in the fact that the Senate struck down the Canadian treaty because the opposition believed it provided more economic benefits for Canada than for the United States.

Abbe Lemaitre, world famed for his theories about the origin and structure of the universe, went to the United States on leave from the University of Louvain last year to give a course in the theory of relativity at the Catholic University of America in Washington.

M'FADDEN LINKS 'BIG BUSINESS' TO LEAGUE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—"Big business owns everything visible," controls religion, directs propaganda favorable to American entrance to the World Court and the League of Nations, and "had a big share in Roosevelt's election," Representative McFadden, (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, charged before the House Merchant Marine committee today.

He asserted the "influence of big business is felt in every government department." Several committee members chorused:

"What big business controls Roosevelt?"

RADIO PROPAGANDA

But McFadden said he "would answer that later."

Asked to explain the propaganda being disseminated over the radio, he said:

"Such subjects as internationalism. The particular group which is advocating American entry into the World Court and League of Nations has a plan to consolidate the people of the United States with the other people of the world."

In citing "big business" influence in this and previous administrations McFadden mentioned the Federal Reserve Board and said that "practically every financil set-up is used to bolster the financial group.

He said:

"On the pretext that they would distribute money to the public they had the government advance the railroads money to pay their bank indebtedness.

"And in dealing with internationalism in this and previous administrations, such as war debts, the same international influences are in operation here."

ARMY 'CONTROLLED'

McFadden charged "big business controls the Army and the Navy and the ammunition makers." He said:

"As an incident to this movement for centralization, Lord Gildersleeve, of the Bank of England, is in Canada now to centralize Britain's communication's system."

Under questioning he named Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Bishop Francis J. McConnel, president of the Christ Churches of America, and the Council of Federated Churches of America, as the "clergy controlled by big business." McFadden said:

"Both of these gentlemen are members of the council and have participated in the censorship of religion set up by the National Broadcasting Company."

He was appearing in support of hils proposed amendment to the radio act, which would prevent censorship of radio programs. He said:

"Until recently Dr. Cadman was a British subject."

DUNLAP CITES IMPOTENCY OF LEAGUE

A careful reading of the covenant of the League of Nations should convince any fair-minded citizen that the United States should not join, Col. William R. Dunlap, director of the City Department of Supplies and commander of the 109th Infantry of the Twenty-eighth Division in the World War, said in a protest against American participation in the League of Nations or the League Court, over WCAE last night. He declared:

"American participation is not desirable. Our interests would not be sufficiently protected, due to the preponderance of the voting power of nations who are not in accord with our ideals of government or justice."

There are sufficient agencies already provided for our participation in the world's affairs to enable us to take our proper part, and at the same time safeguard the interests of our nationals, Col. Dunlap continued. He said:

"The impotency of the League and the Court was clearly demonstrated during the conflict between Japan and China in the case of the Japanese invasion of Manchuria and Shanghai, and the refusal of Japan to permit the League of Nations to settle the issues involved.

In Col. Dunlap's opinion, the United States can best serve humanity and the interests of American citizens by holding aloof from foreign controversies, as counselled by George Washington, the first President, and by the maintenance of an adequate national defense, which will result in all nations having proper respect for the rights and property of American citizens. He concluded:

"If this condition of preparedness had obtained during 1914 to 1917, we would not have been given an excuse for participation in the World War."

Col. Franklin Blackstone, veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars, and past president of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of American Revolution, will urge loyal citizens to unite to keep this country free from foreign entanglements, in a radio address over WCAE at 4:55 p. m. today. Col Blackstone, past president of the National Retail Credit Association and the Retail Credit Men's Association of Pittsburgh, is credit manager of Frank & Seder.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

PETITIONS GROW IN FIGHT ON LEAGUE

Each passing hour today saw the appeal of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers for 1,000,000 signatures to a petition protesting against this country's entrance into the League of Nations and the World Court gaining momentum. Every mail brought hundreds of names from every section of the tri-state area.

One group of names came from Andrew O'Donnell, a patient at the United States Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall. O'Donnell had "signed up" the boys on his ward. He wrote:

"I am sure there is not a veteran in this hospital that will not sign. I am all for this protest to keep this nation out of the League of Nations and the World Court."

C. W. French, a resident of the Fort Pitt Hotel, who has been responsible for nearly 200 names was most emphatic in his declaration that the United States should keep out of the league. He said:

"I am in favor of our government letting Europe alone. We have trouble enough at home without going over there to look for more."

James J. Reardon, of Millsboro, Pa., sending in a list of 10 names wrote:

"Sorry but this is all that were in the family, but if every family in the country would do the same why I know that we could not get into this league. I would like to make a motion that we Americans who represent the grand old lodge called the Home of the Brave and the Land of the Free remain in the good old American League which has 48 teams."

"We as all overseas veterans urge our Congress to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs."

LINDY REBUFFS DERN, TURNS TO SENATE

refused to take "no" for an answer to his refusal to take part in the government's study.

Earlier today a conciliatory answer hummed over the telegraph wires to the airman. In it Secretary Dern said:

"Your telegram indicates a misconception of the purposes of the committee on which I asked you to serve.

"I desire a comprehensive study of Army aviation in which carrying air mail will figure only incidentally as a lesson in determining the efficiency or shortcomings of the Army Air Corps, regarding which the public is bewildered so far as national defense is concerned.

"I am sure your counsel would be very valuable."

The new break between the famous airman and the administration over the white-hot air mail controversy stirred much interest today. Such terms as "unfair," "unjust" and "contrary to American principles" dotted the telegram in which Lindbergh turned down the War Department's invitation. Lindbergh said in his telegram to Secretary Dern:

"I greatly appreciate the honor of your request that I become a member of a special committee to study and report upon Army aviation in relation to national defense.

"I would of course be glad to contribute in any way that I can to the maintenance of an adequate national defense. However, according to the announcement by the War Department, this committee is to study and report upon performance by the Army Air Corps in its mission to carry the air mail as directed by Executive order.

"I believe that the use of the Army Air Corps to carry the air mail was unwarranted and contrary to American principles.

"This action was unjust to the air lines whose contracts were canceled without trial. It was unfair to the personnel of the Army Air Corps who had neither equipment designed for the purpose nor adequate time for training in a new field.

"It has unnecessarily greatly damaged all American aviation."

OTHERS ACCEPT

His closing sentence was similar to an earlier criticism he leveled at the administration on February 11, soon after the Postoffice Department took the mails away from private flying companies on charges of "collusion:"

"The condemnation of commercial aviation by cancellation of all air mail contracts and the use of the Army on commercial air lines will unnecessarily and greatly damage all American aviation."

Col. Lindbergh, who is technical adviser to Transcontinental and Western Air, one of the companies whose contracts was canceled, sent his first protest direct to President Roosevelt. It was made public before the President read it, and the result was a rebuke from the White House.

Invited to serve on the committee with Lindbergh were Orville Wright, Clarence Chamberlin and others. Wright declined for reasons of health, but Chamberlin accepted, saying:

"They picked a committee that represents views on both sides of the fence. The Army is perfectly capable of flying the mail, but it needs more training, more equipment, more time."

There was no indication today as to whether Lindbergh would reconsider his refusal to serve.

ROOSEVELT ORDERS SURVEY

At President Roosevelt's order, a survey designed to produce a new air policy for the United States was pressed. There were some indications that the upshot may be a proposal to set up an agency to control all aviation—Army, Navy and civil. Speculation along this line has gone as far as a forecast that Brig. Gen. William Mitchell may be put in charge of this all-potent agency.

A new indication that Mr. Roosevelt has wide plans to develop aviation was studied by observers today. The War Department appropriation bill, which went through the Senate yesterday, carried an amendment, added at the last minute at the request of the President.

It supplies $10,000,000 for the President's unrestricted use for Army aviation. The amendment declared the money shall be immediately available for the development and augmentation of Army aviation material and for training of pilots, purchase and construction of buildings and employment of "civilian personnel."

CHIEF ON INSPECTION

Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of Army aviation, told a Senate committee the $10,000,000 has nothing to do with the air mail, but was to be used to conduct research and raise the standard of equipment and flying.

Gen. Foulois was bound for Cleveland and Chicago today, after inspecting air mail facilities in the New York area. As to the 10 deaths of Army fliers since the private contracts were canceled, he declared the fatalities among pilots this year have not been "excessive in any way, shape or form." He produced statistics of other years to support his statement.

Foulois Defends Flying of Mail By Army Pilots

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—A stirring defense of the Army Air Corps' efforts to fly the mail was made today by Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, Army air chief.

In a statement issued through the War Department Gen. Foulois declared that America's military air service, in order to be an efficient national defense unit, should be equipped and trained to meet an emergency, such as handling the mail, on 24 hours' notice.

Foulois warned that if the United States is to have an efficient military air service, the public must be prepared for further fatalities. He said:

"The opportunity afforded the Army Air Corps to carry the air mail, with but approximately 10 days in which to prepare, constituted, in my belief, an ideal peacetime test of the Army Air Corps organization, equipment and training, and as chief of the Army Air Corps, I freely, frankly, and without reservation, welcomed this opportunity.

"The hazards involved in carrying the air mail are not, in my belief, as great as those normally encountered annually by the Army combat pilots in the normal performance of their duties."

He declared that in a national emergency, involving the invasion of the United States by any foreign power, there is "reasonable probability" that the first line of national defense will include the air forces as well as the sea forces of the nation. He added:

"With this probability in mind, the air forces of our country should be as fully and completely organized, equipped and trained in time of peace, as our Navy."

TAX REVISION HEARINGS END

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Hearings on the House tax revision measure were completed today by the Senate Finance Committee after Chairman Harrison had given assurance the federal government plans to abandon its gasoline tax as soon as the condition of the Treasury permits.

The final witnesses advocated elimination of the one cent a gallon gasoline tax.

Fayette B. Dow, for the American Petroleum Industries committee, and Harvey L. Cobb, for the American Motorists Association, said the combined federal and state gasoline levies amounted to a 36 per cent retail sales tax.

The committee will hear Secretaries Dern and Ickes in executive session tomorrow.

BANK REOPENS IN WEST END

Releasing $1,497,528 in deposits tied up since the bank holiday last year, the West End Bank, Wabash and Main streets, resumed business on an unrestricted basis today.

The bank will be a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. It has 10,000 depositors who will benefit by the resumption of unrestricted business.

H. S. Hershberger is president of the bank, formerly known as the West End Savings Bank and Trust Company. It is the seventeenth bank to be reopened here since the bank holiday.

Chamberlin Sorry Lindy Refused Probe Post

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—Clarence Chamberlin, noted trans-Atlantic flier, expressed regret today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had refused to serve on the War Department committee which is to conduct a broad survey of aviation problems. Chamberlin said:

"I'm sorry we are not to have him on the committee. Otherwise I don't care to comment."

Chamberlin, who has accepted a place on the committee, approved of the annullment of the air mail contracts, of which Lindbergh disapproved.

MITCHELL AIR IDEAS UPHELD

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd once wrote that Brig. Gen. William Mitchell was from 10 to 20 years ahead of aviation, but aviation is apparently catching up.

For now Gen. Mitchell is playing an important part in President Roosevelt's plans for reorganizing the air defense for the very same reason he was driven out of the Army eight years ago—his advocacy of a unified air force.

In 1925 Gen. Mitchell was court martialed for "insubordinate statements" in his campaign for a single air force. A jury of generals found him guilty and he was suspended from the Army for five years without pay.

This strange sentence left him in the Army, but not of it. It kept him subject to military discipline but relieved him of duty and compensation. He took the only avenue open and resigned.

MITCHELL BACKS AIR MAIL BIDS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, war time commander of the American flying forces, today supported the administration's plan for a reorganized air mail service before the Senate Post Office Committee.

Mitchell, long known as the stormy petrel of American aviation, vigorously championed the provision for competitive bidding on air mail routes. He said:

"I believe it is necessary to develop the most we have in it from a competitive standpoint."

Mitchell followed Alfred Frank, president of National Park Airways, who told the committee he had not been given a hearing before his contract was canceled, that no evidence was presented against the company and that he was not permitted to question witnesses appearing against the company. Frank added:

"In Postmaster General Farley's letter (explaining the cancellations) my company was mentioned as a possible exception. I am confident that neither my company nor any of its officers has done anything of a fraudulent or collusive nature."

Frank also rapped the provision in the bill barring from future bidding any company which has a claim against the government for contract cancellation.

Mitchell's championship of competitive bidding drew fire from Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), of Wyoming, who served several months as Assistant Postmaster General in the Roosevelt administration. The Senator asked:

"Would you have the railroads make competitive bids to carry the mail?"

Mitchell said:

"That's a different proposition. I don't know anything about the railroads, but I do know about aviation.

"I never actually flew any airmail myself, but the Army started the air mail system in this country. It surveyed the routes, made all the flying arrangements and started the service. Later it was turned over to the Postoffice Department.

"I believe there should be a minimum rate of pay guarantee. The rates should be based on the cost of flying the mail, plus a reasonable profit."

ROPER OPPOSES BLANKET EDICT

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The ocean mail contracts to be canceled should be treated individually, not by blanket order as was done in the air mail cases, in the opinion of Secretary of Commerce Roper.

Following up his proposal to Congress for legislation providing a new set-up for ocean carriers, the Secretary said he was willing to draft the legislation if Congress wished.

Cancellation and a new plan for federal protection of the American Merchant Marine has the President's backing, he said.

WAR FLARES AID FLIER TO LAND

Wartime ammunition of 16 years ago was called into service at Rodgers' Field today and enabled an Army pilot to locate the airport and make a safe landing in dense fog.

Lieut. A. J. Hanna, of Langley Field, Va., flying from Cleveland to his home station, was lost in the fog, circling over Rodgers' Field hoping to land for fuel.

Members of the ground crew, headed by Sergt. N. W. Morgan, heard the plane, hurried out and shot signal flares up into the fog. The pilot saw them, located the airport and made an easy landing. The signals used were wartime flares, shot from pistols. Rodgers' Field has had a supply of these old flares since the war.

PHOEBE HEARST FUND HELPS CHILDREN

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—In honor of the memory of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst and with the approval of her son, William Randolph Hearst, a trust fund to be used in aid of needy school children has been created by the Washington Herald.

Mrs. Hearst was one of the two founders of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, president of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, is chairman of the board of trustees that will administer the Phoebe Hearst Parent-Teacher Foundation.

Other members are Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, Mrs. Sara V. Blackistone, Mrs. Emma M. Castell, Michael W. Flynn, Walter B. Fry, William H. Mills, Harry N. Stull, John W. Townsend and Miss Selma Borchardt, alternate.

A survey is being made, Mrs. Saunders said, to assist children in the junior and senior high schools in need of help. She said:

"We hope eventually to be able to carry the work into college scholarships. At present, we are buying glasses for pupils who need them, paying car fare to and from the eye clinic, helping the children receive needed dental and medical care.

"We have one junior high school pupil who is ill and will be unable to attend school until warmer weather. We are providing him with a teacher to tutor him so he won't be behind in his work when he goes back to classes.

"Clothing is needed by many, and we are helping with that, too. During the recent severe weather we furnished galoshes to many."

OPEN GARDEN CAMPAIGN

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 15.—(AP.)—A subsistence gardening campaign, designed to help 100,000 needy families in West Virginia to grow sufficient foodstuffs for their needs, will be started on April 1.

The program will be carried out by Francis W. Turner, director of the welfare department, and J. O. Knapp, of Morgantown, director of agricultural extension division of West Virginia University.

Lands for the gardens are expected to be obtained through efforts of civic organizations and property owners in arranging for donation of their use. Garden seed will be supplied by the government.

Sacred Parrots' Remains Give Clue to Past

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 15.—(AP.)—Remains of sacred parrots buried 700 years ago may be an important link, scientists believe, in reconstructing the pre-historic era of the modern Zuni Indians and in tracing their wanderings.

Bones and feathers of six parrots, discovered by CWA workers in Wupatki ruins 38 miles from Flagstaff, on the edge of the desert, have led some scientists to believe the Zuni probably wandered northward from Mexico to what is now Western New Mexico by way of the Grand Canyon country.

Dr. H. L. Colton, director of the Museum of Northern Arizona, said the parrots had been buried with even more care than human beings.

Distillery to Open At Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 15.—The Hamburger Distillery here, owned by the Hamburger Distilleries, Ltd., of Pittsburgh, will be reopened next September, Manager L. E. Wirth announced. The plant has been closed 17 years.

The firm will expend $150,000 in renovations. Sixty men will be given employment when the manufacture of whisky is resumed.

SERVICE STAR LEGION TO AID TEXT PLAN

Spurred by the ever-increasing enthusiasm being created by the Mount Rushmore National Memorial competition among patriotic, civic and women's organizations plans today were being discussed for the local participation of the Service Star Legion in support of its national headquarter's recommendation.

While Mrs. R. D. Newman, of Crafton, past state president, prepared to bring plans before presidents of the organization's 17 chapters in Allegheny County, a second leader representing a Civil War descendants' group announced plans to carry on organization work among its members. This leader was Mrs. Katharine Joyce, also of Crafton, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Department, Auxiliary to Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN

Scores of other organization leaders were discussing similar activity in the nation-wide competition being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission. From throughout the country word comes that active participation by educators, historians, men, women and students is arousing waves of patriotic enthusiasm as the search goes on for the 600-word text that will serve to assist the national commission determine an inscription to carve into the mountainside. It will tell the nation's history—America's epic—to exist for thousands of years.

Visualizing the tremendous influence the competition will have upon the American public in stirring pride in the glorious growth and achievements of the past, Mrs. Newman said:

"There is no question but that every person who professes pride in his citizenship should find enjoyment in the rare opportunity to share a part in creating a permanent monument. It will be a reminder for ages of the nation's early achievements. Every member of a patriotic group should set an example in displaying this pride."

Unstinted support of every descendant of soldiers who helped to make the nation was urged by Mrs. Joyce. She said:

"It is particularly timely that such a competition should be under way when so many changes are being made in Washington. I hope it will arouse a new spirit of love for our country's history."

EVERYONE ELIGIBLE

Every person who reads these lines is eligible to compete for the honor of the inscription leadership as well as the cash and scholarship prizes.

The rules, which have already been printed in this paper, will be reprinted from time to time for your guidance. So will the prize lists. If you have not already clipped them out—read the Sun-Telegraph every day and when the rules and prize lists appear—save them for your guidance.

In a few days, publication of a series of nine special articles will be started—one on each of the nine periods of the nation's growth—and each written by an internationally famous authority. These will help you to visualize and understand what those epochs mean. Do not miss a single one of those articles!

Mt. Rushmore Inscription To Last 1,600,000 Years

By KENNETH M. ELLIS

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Gutzon Borglum today had made public the plan to insure the endurance of the inscription of America's epic on Mt. Rushmore in Dakota's Black Hills, for at least 1,600,000 years!

It has taken the United States 137 years to become a nation.

American has been known only 442 years.

And in the span of two summers—the 600 words which millions of Americans are now preparing to write, in order to assist the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial Commission in its search for the best possible story of this nation and its ideals—in two short summers those words will be graven in the living granite of the Rocky Mountains.

But they will last, Borglum said at the very least 1,600,000 years because these words are to be cut into the mountain to a depth of four inches.

Geologists say the erosion on the mountain is at the rate of about a quarter of an inch every 100,000 years. And at that rate Mr. Borglum points out, the inscription is likely to outlast not only our particular civilization—but many others which will follow us.

Two Sisters Wait Sentence in Plot

MERCER, Pa., March 15.—Connie and Rose Ferruccio, Canton, O., sisters, await sentence on charges of conspiracy to extort a confession. They pleaded no defense. The girls were held after Joe Spano, of Greenville, told authorities they were with two men who forced him to go to the jail and confess that he was implicated in the robbing of the Fredonia National Bank last fall so as to free Patsy and Angelo Ferruccio, their brothers, who are now serving time for the robbery.

COLD DESTROYS MANY TREES

STAMFORD, Conn., March 15.—(AP.)—Tremendous killing of trees and shrubs in the recent northeastern cold was announced today by the Bartless Tree Research Laboratories.

They were "immigrant" trees and shrubs steadily imported from farther south, and lived through the mild winters of the past 15 to 20 years until their owners began to think of them as permanent.

Their destruction, spread among some 450 varieties, shows that only man may believe with impunity in the tale about "grandfather's weather" being gone forever. The imported trees and shrubs acquired no hardiness in the mild northern winters, and died by the thousands in the February freezes.

O'RYAN URGES STERILIZATION

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Sterilization of all persons convicted of two or more felonies was proposed today by Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan as a means of eradicating crime.

Amplifying a speech in which he suggested ostracism as a method of combatting habitual criminals, O'Ryan said:

"As a further suggestion, I believe that every person convicted of two felonies should be sterilized."

The ostracism proposal, he added, was a "sort of trial balloon" to determine sentiment of the public and the Legislature.

VOTE BY MAIL AIM OF NEW 'LEAGUE'

Papers are being drawn for the incorporation of a first-class, non-profit corporation to sponsor a plan of voting by mail, it was announced today by Alonzo P. Ingram, promoter of the plan.

Ingram expects to have the proposed corporation, to be known as the National Vote By Mail League, launch a national movement for the change of state election laws so that his plan of voting by mail could be used in the various states.

Ingram explains his plan like this:

"In advance of the date set for an election, the election bureau would mail to every eligible voter a blank ballot, a postpaid return envelope and a specially designed ballot envelope in which to enclose and seal the recorded ballot. Attached to the ballot envelope would be a card detailing any information required of the voter. After marking his ballot the voter would place it in the specially designed envelope. The information and signature would be recorded on the attached card and the ballot with card would be inclosed within the postpaid return envelope and mailed to the election bureau.

At the election bureau the validity of the ballot would be verified by detaching the card and checking it with the voter's signature already on record. The card would then be filed until the ballots had been counted. The filing of the card would act as a check against the possibility of a voter being voted a second time."

Ingram estimates the cost per vote by his plan would be 25 cents. He says the estimated cost per vote in Allegheny County is approximately $3.

U. S. CUTS COST MILLION HERE

One million dollars has been taken out of the pockets of 6,000 federal employes in Allegheny County during the first year of the national economy law, according to Joseph H. Goldman, of Local No. 81, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

Goldman, secretary of the publicity committee of the local, says:

"The federal government through the National Recovery Act is establishing codes and standards for the rest of industry and it does not appear consistent that it should nullify the standards built up in federal departments."

He points out that the Pittsburgh district's living costs are higher than those of other metropolitan centers and that the salary reductions mean a distinct loss to the community, concluding:

"The federal worker has good reason to watch the action of Washington as to the restoration of its former standards. That restoration will lift the burden from the federal worker and permit him again to use his income in the channels of trade."

REALTY SURVEY EXTENDED

About 750 CWA workers formerly employed on a real property inventory and unemployment census in the county have been transferred to two new studies aimed at analyzing the financial condition of residential real estate in urban areas.

According to Edwin N. Montague and Theodore A. Veenstra, directors of the work, information derived from the surveys is expected to reveal a true picture of the financial status of housing. Data will be used only in compiling totals, and will not be made public.

OFFICER SLAIN, WOMAN HURT

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 15.—(AP.)—Paul Kittlemann, Milwaukee policeman, was shot and killed, and his companion, Lillian Echlbrecht, Milwaukee police matron, was in a serious condition, as the result of a mysterious shooting and accident near Waukegan early this morning. Miss Echlbrecht, authorities said they believed suffered her injury when their car crashed into a pole after Kittlemann, who was driving, was shot in the head.

Both victims were found lying on the ground near the wrecked car. The authorities said that a pistol from which a bullet had been fired was found near the woman's right hand.

They were found by a motorist and taken to the St. Therese Hospital, where the man died. Miss Echlbrecht suffered a fractured skull.

HIT-RUN DRIVER INJURES BOY

A victim of a hit-and-run driver, Walter Kusin, 14, of 803 Arlington avenue, was in Mercy Hospital today with bruises on the head and body. The boy was struck while crossing Second avenue at Try street late yesterday. Police said the driver of the car failed to stop.

Two men suffered lacerations and bruises when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another at Brownsville road and Matthews avenue, late yesterday, according to a police report.

They were Walter J. Kiel, 20, of 188 Dailey road, Brentwood, driver of the car, and his companion, Anthony Collela, 23, of 3600 Brownsville road. They were treated at South Side Hospital. The other car was said to have been driven by William J. Boyle, 24, of 1509 Rutherford avenue, Beechview.

SAAR PLEBISCITE MAY HOLD FATE OF PEACE

ENEMIES SEEK TO REBUKE HITLER

Editor's Note—The Saar, a tiny speck of land lying between Frace and Germany, may furnish one of the danger spots of "Will War Come?" H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the twenty-eighth article of his series.

If they vote for Hitler—as seems certain—the residents of the Saar will remove that territory as a cause of war, but if they should vote against him that strip of land may easily become one of the chief reasons for immediate hostilities.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

SAARBRUCKEN, March 15.—The Saar is a speck of land seven-tenths as large as the smallest American state, Rhode Island. It lies between France and Germany. It contains sixteen billion tons of coal and 823,000 people. In 1935 they will vote for or against Hitler. The way they vote may decide whether Europe will go to war sooner or later.

If they vote for Hitler there will be no war over the Saar. If they vote against Hitler the Saar could move up to place number one in the list of possible causes of war on this continent. The chances, estimated in this capital city of the Saar today, seem to be better than ninety percent that a majority of the population will vote for Hitler.

But not only the election contains the possibility of serious trouble. The campaign may prove just as dangerous.

Swastika Banner Waves in Saar

It has just begun. A huge swastika banner floats down from a house on the main street of Saarbrucken. In the window of the house Adolf Hitler looks out from a picture that frames him as a saint. Next door a bookshop flaunts a cartoon that frames him as the devil. Crowds from the Nazi camp trade glares with crowds from the anti-Nazi camp.

The Nazis call the anti-Nazis traitors. The anti-Nazis call the Nazis beasts. They are ready to mutilate each other today. By the time election day comes they may be ready for murder. If murder starts, French troops may be asked to come keep order. If French troops come, if French troops had to shoot, what would Germans do? Of all the worried men in Europe none is more anxious today than the Saar authorities.

The "Saar question" has ceased to be a Franco-German question. It requires a trip to this tiny territory to realize that the conflict here is purely an internal German conflict. It is a conflict over Hitler.

Adolf Hitler was unknown to the makers of the Treaty of Versailles. When the paragraphs concerning the Saar were written, the present chancellor of Germany was a lance corporal just demobilized, and casting about Munich for a political toehold.

So the treaty makers wrote that because the German army had destroyed the coal mines in Northern France, the Saar coal mines should go to France. The Saar territory would cease to be a part of Germany for fifteen years. It would become a customs and currency unit with France. It would be governed by a commission of the League of Nations. The mines would be counted as worth 300,000,000 gold marks on the sum Germany owed France for reparations. At the end of fifteen years the population would vote. If they voted to return to Germany, France would re-sell the mines to Germany at a price fixed by one French, one German and one neutral expert.

Saar Residents To Vote On Fate

Every person above twenty years old and who had lived in the Saar at the time the treaty was made will be asked to answer: "Do you want the Saar to become a part of France?" or "Do you want the Saar to return to Germany?"

Until January, 1933, the result of this plebiscite was a foregone conclusion. In the whole Saar there are perhaps 8,000 French employes of the mines and a scattering of other French families. German is the only language heard. The architecture, food, atmosphere, people are emphatically German. Ten minutes' motorcar ride away the hotels in France serve tournedoes and wine. Here they serve kalbsbraten and beer.

The distance from Saarbrucken to the French border is a step, but that step measures all the distance between the Latin and the Teuton.

Until January, 1933, it was anticipated that at least 95 per cent of the population would vote for Germany. France knew it. She did not expect to keep the Saar. In 1930 Stresemann, having persuaded Briand to evacuate the Rhineland ahead of time, had persuaded him to give up the Saar also. But Stresemann died. And three years later Hitler came. Immediately the 100 per cent German population of the Saar divided on the Hitler line.

Thousands Fight To Keep League

Today nobody of any importance in the Saar is campaigning to make the Saar French. But thousands are campaigning to make it stay under the League. They are Social Democrats, Catholics, Communists, Jews, everybody who has something to lose by becoming a citizen of the Third Reich.

Before Hitler, 90 per cent of them would have voted for Germany. Today they don't want France. Their vote will be less for the League than against Hitler.

Their campaign is hot and bitter. It is not more hot and bitter than the campaign of the Hitlerites to return the Saar to Germany. On their side the swastika men have a heavy advantage: "Traitors," they cry to the opposition, "can't win in the long run. If you vote against your Fatherland, wait until the Saar is German again and see what happens to you."

Election day is already called the "day of reckoning." Every issue of the anti-Hitler organs makes it plain just what "reckoning" may mean. Every description of the life in a Nazi concentration camp is meant to persuade the voters to choose life under the League. But in the dead of night, under the blankets, comes the thought: "What if I vote against Germany and my side loses?"

On the swastika side are 15,000 young men who have been to Germany and have been trained in the so-called "labor service camps." They have returned first-class, disciplined storm troopers. By election day it is estimated there will be 25,000 of them, very good ballot box watchers.

Hitlerites United, Foes Scattered

The swastika side is united. Against them the opposition to Hitler is as variegated and divided as it was in Germany. The Hitlerites, marching under the so-called "German front," use the audacious propaganda that proved so successful in the Fatherland. They boldly annouce: "We will get 99 per cent of the votes."

The anti-Hitlerites modestly declare: "We have a chance to get a majority."

Between these two camps totaling more than 800,000 persons daily hurling lethal threats at one another, stand only 1,000 police at the disposal of the League governing commission, and the majesty, the power, or the bluff, if you like, of the League. And what would happen if the Nazis took Austria? Could 1,000 policemen, 60 per cent of whom are Nazi, hold the Nazis in the Saar?

Not only Hitler, but certainly the League itself, and probably most of Europe except France, would welcome it if the Saar today could be turned over to Germany, the rights of its political minorities be secured, and the secondary economic question of the purchase price of the mines agreed upon.

Hitler has demanded it. Vice Chancellor Von Papen, Reich's commissar for the Saar question, has declared that if the Saar were to be retained by the League it would be a serious menace to peace.

This is obvious. Germany would never be reconciled to losing this plainly German territory. Of all the mistakes in the Versailles treaty none has turned out to have more explosive possibilities than the Saar. At the time it seemed a sensible way to recompense France for her destroyed coal mines. Today it seems a potential danger of the first magnitude. It creates the possibility of war at a moment when France has given every indication she does not want war. If she wished a provocation for the "preventive war" she could arrange for it in the Saar overnight. Without wanting it she may get it.

If, by any turn of fate, the Saar should, after all, vote against Germany, the results would be incalculable. As one diplomat put it, it would be a catastrophe. Social-Democrats here say that if Germany gets the Saar she will use it as a springboard to leap into Alsace-Lorraine. Hitler, on the other hand, has declared that if the Saar question were settled there would be nothing left for Germany and France to quarrel about. That remains to be seen, but it is plain that the only advantage France could ever have had from the plebiscite was early in the game when she could have traded the Saar to Germany for some concession.

Today the French still are holding the Saar as a card, but it has become a deuce. Germany is virtually certain of winning a majority vote. Yet Hitler would like to avoid the possibility that a considerable number of Germans outside of the immediate power of the Third Reich's instruments of political persuasion might vote against him. He would like the prestige of regaining the Saar earlier than the treaty provided.

The anti-Hitlerites would like to prove their strength, and they and the French would like to deal a blow at Hitler's prestige. Neither achievement would affect the ultimate issue between France and Germany. For the sake of a pinprick at their opponent the French appear willing to allow a genuine potential cause of war to develop into a menace for the whole world.

They say they cannot abandon the political minorities in the Saar to the mercy of brown-shirted storm troopers. That, however, will be the problem of the League.

League Drafting Offer to Hitler

Already the League's special commission is working on a treaty to be offered Hitler wherein he would guarantee the lives and limbs of his political opponents here. Whatever guarantees are given, the Saar will certainly discharge into France another flood of refugees when the Reich takes control.

Yesterday Danzig was the problem child of the League. Today it is the Saar, but the best hope of keeping the peace here is the example of Danzig. Hitler showed he could control his storm troops there. By doing so he kept the Polish army out of Danzig. His control over the storm troops here may keep the French army out of the Saar. That is a chance, a good chance, but the only guarantee for peace here would be settlement before the plebiscite. That could only come in the framework of a general Franco-German understanding. Probabilities point to no settlement. The Saar plebiscite today seems assured, another milestone on the way to trouble.

THRONE LOOMS FOR OTTO

International News Service.

VIENNA, March 15.—The movement for restoration of the young Archduke Otto, of Hapsburg, to the throne of his father was given considerable emphasis today by publication of the "government program" to be followed in the event "Otto should ascend the throne."

The program was outlined in a startling move by Baron Friedrich von Wiessner, official representative of the Hapsburg's, who called his first press conference for the purpose.

Baron von Wiessner announced Archduke Otto would return to Austria as soon as the law banning the Hapsburgs is rescinded. This move is now under way.

ITALY SPEEDS ECONOMIC PACT

ROME, March 15.—(AP.)—Italy will invite France, Germany and the nations of the Little Entent to join in the economic agreement expected to be reached in the tripartite conferences in progress here today, the Associated Press was informed by a usually reliable source.

The invitation will not be extended soon, it is said, but some time after the agreement made by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria; Premier Julius Goemboes, of Hungary, and Premier Benito Mussolini has begun to bear fruit.

In well-informed quarters, it is explained that Italy realizes she is not sufficiently strong—even with the help of Hungary—to make Austria independent of Germany commercially, and thus assure her political independence, too.

The co-operation of other powers is believed necessary to accomplish this end. The nations of the Little Entente are Czecho-Slovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

SPELLING BEE PRELIMINARIES NEARING END

Tonight will be the most enthusiastic and biggest so far for Allegheny County's old-fashioned spelling bee which is being sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Contests are being held in four Pittsburgh high schools and 16 county school districts. Only two more nights for preliminary bees remain before the county finals.

About 80 "spell-down" winners from every section of the county will take part in the finals Tuesday at 8 p. m. in Schenley High School.

DEADLINE NEAR

Many of the county districts which did not get an early start in the contest are holding bees tomorrow night and Monday night—the deadline for choosing preliminary winners.

There is still time to become a contestant, for persons in whose districts the contests have not been held. Names of entrants should be submitted to the nearest school principal.

A trip to Harrisburg for the state championship bee on Wednesday, April 4, will be awarded the county's champion speller and "runner-up." Besides, these three money prizes will be awarded:

Third prize, $25.
Fourth prize, $15.
Fifth prize, $10.

WORDS BEING CHOSEN

C. W. Peters, assistant superintendent of county schools, who is conducting contests in the county districts, started today to select "appropriate words" for the finals in Schenley High.

Prof. Theodore Siedle, of the school of education, University of Pittsburgh, will pronounce the words for the final bee.

Judges are to be Prof. Elmer Kenyon, of Carnegie Tech; A. W. Rodgers, of Peabody High School, and Robert E. Carmack, of Turtle Creek Union High School.

The spelling bees are being held in every county in Pennsylvania by the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg.

FOREST HILLS MAN VICTOR

C. T. Pearce, an electrical engineer at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, won the Forest Hills spelling bee last night by defeating 51 contestants.

After being applauded by 100 persons who listened to the bee, held in the Atlantic Avenue School, Pearce, who lives at 135 Avenue L, Forest Hills, said:

"I entered the contest because I thought it would be a lot of fun and was lucky enough to get the words I could spell. I hope I'm as lucky in the county finals."

Mrs. R. M. Young, of 106 Cherry Valley road, Forest Hills, won second honors. She lost out on the word "hornblende." Some of the difficult words were syzygy, apocalypse, perspicacious and phantasmagorial.

An old-time singing school led by Mrs. C. T. Eakin, of 323 Woodside road, Forest Hills, opened the "spell-down." Featured songs were "The Quilting Party," "Billy Boy," "Three Blind Mice" and "Auld Lang Syne."

H. E. Thomas, of 534 Giffin street, won the contest at South Hills High School. Harry W. Morris, of 2433 Woodward avenue, Brookline, was second.

Schenley High's bee was won by David McCutcheon, of 6111 Alder street. The alternate was Ross Pancoast, of 801 South Millvale avenue.

Velicia Marshall, of 946 Forest avenue, West Homestead, won the contest at the West Homestead Junior High last night. Her next door neighbor, Melvin Pennant, of 944 Forest avenue, was next.

LOCKED OUT, HE BALKS DIVORCE

For 17 years, Adolph Feldman, tailor at 2560 Center street, went to work in the morning and came home at night. But one night in November of 1929, when he returned home he found his wife, Dinah, had locked him out.

So today, Common Pleas Judge Elder W. Marshall denied Dinah Feldman's petition for divorce on her grounds of desertion. The tailor told of his troubles with his wife, who had been married before and had four children by her first marriage.

He opposed her plea for alimony because, he told the court, she owned a 12-room house on Avalon street and another building at Aaron and Center avenues. Mrs. Feldman lives at 1500 Forbes street.

Autoist Cleared In Girl's Death

Oscar Ramstrom, of 711 East street, McKeesport, was free today of a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death in an automobile accident of Miss Veronica Cimprich, 18, of Larimer, Westmoreland County. Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County, directed the jury to acquit when the state failed to prove Ramstrom had been careless or negligent.

Park to Address Squirrel Hill Club

District Attorney Andrew T. Park will speak on "Criminal Courts" at a meeting of the Squirrel Hill Community Club in the Roosevelt School, Greenfield avenue, March 23. A musical program has been arranged.

SEIBEL JUDGE IN AIMEE TALK

George Seibel, dramatic critic, will officiate as chairman of a debate on "Is There a God" between "Sister" Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, world-famous evangelist, and Charles Lee Smith, founder of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, in Carnegie Music Hall Tuesday night.

Aimee was once an atheist, she says, and began her evangelistic life as a dishwasher in a cook tent of a camp meeting.

A high school course in evolution made her a doubter at the age of 17, "Sister" McPherson declares. But a "dart of conviction" from the lips of Robert Semple, an itinerant evangelist, whom she later married and accompanied to China, saved her from atheism, she said.

Police Organize Revolver League

The North Boroughs and Sewickley Valley Revolver League, designed to improve the marksmanship of police officers, was formed at a meeting in the Sewickley municipal hall last night.

Lieut. Price McPherson, Bellevue, was named president and W. D. Graham, of Sewickley Heights, vice president. Police Chiefs Frank Sturm, of Sewickley Heights, Roy Barclay, of Sewickley, and M. B. Omohundro, of Ben Avon, were appointed members of the by-laws and rules committee.

One Risk No Mother Can Afford to Take

Grave Danger in Giving Child Unknown Drugs

A CHILD'S health is too precious for experiment; a child's life beyond the price of pennies.

That's something, of course, that every mother's instinct tells her. The protective instinct that makes her value her child's life far beyond her own.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

Now, when it comes to the very important—and frequently used—"milk of magnesia," doctors for over fifty years have said "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child."

Remember this, for your child's sake, when you buy. Remember "bargain" substitutes are not the "same" as genuine Phillips'. They're not "like" it. They CAN'T be. For the secret laboratory method used in making Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has never gone outside the Phillips' Laboratories.

See That Your Child Gets It

In internal remedies you deserve the best that men know. Insist, therefore, on the genuine Phillips' . . . the product of the world's leading laboratory in milk of magnesia production. A laboratory whose sole object is to produce the finest that science knows in Milk of Magnesia.

Our interest in this does not matter. But yours does. You can't afford to gamble with health. Get genuine Phillips' at any store at the same price or lower than imitations.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is available in both the liquid and convenient tablet form.

FALSETTO

Morton Downey, who has been absent from the air for a good while, is heard on WJAS tonight at 8:15.

The Women's Glee Club of Carnegie Tech, under the direction of Helen F. Shaner, broadcasts a half-hour program over KDKA tonight at 10.

Alternating with the choral selections will be music by a trio composed of Wilma Meise, violin; Louise Wingold, 'cello, and Annette Rosenson, pianist.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The class in nature study will please assemble.

Helene Slovic has her hand raised.

"What is it, Helen?"

"My groundhog came out of his hole this morning and approached the kitchen door. I opened the door for 'Snooky'—that's my groundhog's name. Snooky ran to the bed room and plopped himself in my bed. Nothing will make him jump off. What am I to do?"

It just goes to prove that even the old weather prophet himself didn't expect this kind of a deal from the weatherman.

However, Florence Yates, Larimer, wrote that:

"I am a little girl, 7 years old. I saw a robin red breast in our yard. It was very large."

From Willock the nature study class hears from Mr. Tompel, who tells of a puppy 3 weeks old in his possession that was born without a tail.

That's enough nature study. We have important things to consider. For instance, the new CWA projects.

To give first hand information about them, Theodore A. Veenstraw, CWA official, will be here, 12:15 Friday.

On Saturday night those of you who, at this time of the year, are mystified and dumbfounded by rows of figures in corporation stockholders' reports will be led through the maze of numbers safely and surely by M. C. Conick, who will be interviewed on the A. B. C's of stockholders' reports.

After the interview you will be able to open the report without the effect of anticipating the swallowing of a bitter pill.

The season for lost pigeons has arrived again.

Another one of those chain letters recites the dire misfortune that befell one who didn't complete the chain, and admonishes me to be sure to complete it by copying the letter, adding my name to the list of about 25 names already written, and then send it to 10 people.

Of course, you know it's all foolishness, but hang it all it is enough to give you the "heebie jeebies" when you just toss it in the waste basket.

Greetings will be delivered from the studios by Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California; Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco; Annie Laurie, noted Hearst feature writer, and others.

Special dedicatory programs from all the famous hotels and cafes will be picked up by remote control. These noted orchestras will be daily features on KYA.

KYA is a member station of the great National Broadcasting Company chain and a special program of greeting will be sent to the station from the network studios in San Francisco.

KYA, a 1000 watt station, will be "San Francisco Examiner." Other Hearst stations are WINS, New York City; WCAE, Pittsburgh; KYW, Chicago, and WISN, Milwaukee.

Now Keep Breath Sweet—24 HOURS A DAY!

Bad Breath Needs Medicine Doctors Say

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

When you cover up an odor with another odor relief is only temporary.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomforts that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success. All druggists sell it for only 25c a package.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD

IN THE DRY OR FIRST STAGE!

A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. It is twice as easy stopped in the first as in the second or third stages. In fact, to let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting trouble.

As your doctor will tell you, there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a "cure-all." It is internal treatment which a cold requires. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary.

First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is inviting trouble.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Only druggists more interested in making an extra profit rather than in your welfare offer you a substitute. When a cold threatens, don't wait or delay, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q on every tablet.

'Great Stone Face' On Air Tonight

"Aircaster" takes his listeners to the White Mountains of New England, and the Black Hills of South Dakota in recalling Hawthorne's great story of "The Great Stone Face," over WCAE and WJAS at 6:30 this evening.

The Globe Trotter chats with the WCAE-WJAS listeners this afternoon at 12:15 and 2:15.

MONDAY
THOUGH I BRUSH MY TEETH AS OFTEN AS YOU DO THEY ARE DULL AND DINGY. YOURS SPARKLE. I HAVE TWO FILLINGS TO YOUR ONE. WHAT'S THE REASON?
ORDINARY BRUSHING ONLY MAKES TEETH HALF-CLEAN. I USE KOLYNOS. TRY IT.
TUESDAY
I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE IT. MY TEETH LOOK WHITER ALREADY. KOLYNOS IS SIMPLY MARVELOUS.
WEDNESDAY
NOW I'M NOT ASHAMED TO SMILE. TO THINK I BELIEVED MY TEETH WERE NATURALLY YELLOW AND DULL. WISH I'D STARTED USING KOLYNOS YEARS AGO.

Way to make teeth 2 times cleaner . . . achieves results impossible before . . . try it.

HERE'S news for all of you who have yellowish, discolored teeth—who have tried perhaps a dozen different ways to brighten teeth, give them attractive sparkle and whiteness.

Start brushing your teeth with Kolynos. Use it just as you would ordinary toothpastes—with two exceptions. Use only half as much and put it on a dry brush. Don't wet your toothbrush. Brush your teeth this Kolynos way and see how astonishingly quick your teeth become sparkling.

This scientific dental cream cleans and whitens teeth so quickly and effectively because it contains cleansing properties not found in any other toothpaste. It is antiseptic and acts to remove from the teeth the "bacteria-plaque" that makes teeth look dingy, dirty and yellow.

This extra-cleansing improves the appearance of your teeth as nothing else can. You'll find it makes your teeth whiter—shades whiter—in a hurry.

We say try Kolynos. See how it gives teeth new lustre, new clearness and makes them more attractive than you believed possible. Get a tube from your druggist today.

Fagan Ponders Race For State Senate

By MARK SHIELDS

This is as good a day as any to ignore the Republican gubernatorial aspirants who, with the exception of Attorney General William A. Schnader and former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, can't make up their own minds, or the minds of some political bosses, whether they are candidates.

Mr. Shields

It is opportune to discuss some home town politics pertaining to Congress and the Legislature.

The probability that P. T. Fagan, head of the United Mine Workers in this district, will become a candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination in the Thirty-eighth District has been renewed.

Some time ago friends of Mr. Fagan in the regular Democratic organization gained the impression that he would not run, and began to cast about for another candidate.

However, Fagan's petitions are in circulation, with his approval, and his course will be fixed in a conference with John Lewis, president of the miners' union.

If it is then determined that legislative work in the event of election would not interfere with Fagan's activities on behalf of the union it is expected he will be a candidate.

Should Fagan not run, the Democratic organization is considering supporting the Rev. George Schuster, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church. Mr. Schuster is a friend of Councilman Walter Demmler, and is reported to have many friends in the district and an appeal which would be effective on the South Side, though his church is on Fortieth street.

The Democratic organization is planning to support Mrs. Jessie L. Bulger for the House from the Seventh District, which is on the North Side. Mrs. Bulger lives in the Twenty-second Ward.

'Barney' McGinnis Crowds Out Clair

Mrs. Bulger would be put up by the organization to take the place of Clair E. McGinnis, elected in 1932 from a district which normally is overwhelmingly Republican.

Mr. McGinnis had a good record in Harrisburg, and his retirement is brought about solely by the fact that his brother, Attorney B. B. McGinnis, is to become a candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination in the Forty-second District.

This senatorial district takes in the Seventh Legislative District, and it would not be good politics to have two members of the same family seeking legislative votes in the same section.

Senator Morris Einstein, Republican, is the incumbent, and will be a candidate for re-election. J. Boyd Euwer has been talking about running for some time against Einstein, but has not come to the point of an announcement.

In the Fortieth District the Democrats have definitely decided to support William B. Rodgers for the senatorial nomination. Because of some friends among independent Republicans, Mr. Rodgers may also seek the Republican nomination.

Not to be outdone, Senator Herman Brandt, Republican, of West View, has Democratic as well as Republican petitions out in this district, and intends to run in both primaries. Brandt had a good record on social legislation bills in his Harrisburg service, and voted to discharge the Senate committee which succeeded in blocking confirmation of public service commissioners.

Mrs. Margaret Bowers, a member of the Republican State Committee, is also seeking the senatorial nomination in the Brandt district.

Coyne Foes May Force Muldowney From Race

The Thirty-second Congressional District is furnishing some entertaining gossip, particularly in the Republican ranks.

Congressman M. J. Muldowney, Republican, is the present Congressman, though his right to the place is being contested before a congressional committee by Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat, who ran against him in 1932.

Mr. Muldowney was supported by Senator James J. Coyne, who would like to see him elected again. But there are some organization Republicans in the district, friends of both Coyne and Muldowney, who believe the Congressman will have a difficult time winning in the primary.

Some of them have been suggesting that Dennis J. Mulvihill, a young attorney, and assistant chief clerk of the state Senate, enter as a candidate in the Republican primary.

Their theory is that if Muldowney is to have heavy going they would prefer to have the nomination fall into the hands of a friend, such as Mulvihill, than go to P. J. Sullivan or John M. Morin, both former members from the district, and each of whom would relish going back to Washington, if for no other reason than to get even with Senator Coyne.

In previous years the Senator first assisted in the elimination of Morin, and then Sullivan.

With selection of Judge Claude Traxler Reno as his manager, Senator David A. Reed's campaign probably will be directed from Allentown. This goes about as far as possible in making his battle visually independent of the organization Republican candidate for Governor.

M'NAIR FACES QUIZ IN ROW ON TROLLEYS

Mayor Says He Favors Bankruptcy for Utility

Mayor McNair is to be called into conference with City Council soon regarding the extension of the Traction Conference Board agreement.

Sentiment in Council now appears to favor an extension of the present agreement with the Traction Conference Board with possible insertion of a cancellation clause.

COUNCIL CONFERS

Mayor McNair declares that he is in favor of letting the Pittsburgh Railways Company go into bankruptcy and let the underlying companies operate the various lines. Bankruptcy has frequently been suggested by railways company officials as the probable alternative for not extending the traction agreement.

The Mayor said:

"The Pittsburgh Railways Company can't send anyone in to tell me what to do. They know better."

Council yesterday in a conference with City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully and his assistant, John J. Kennedy, seemed to agree that more information should be required from the city's two members on the Traction Conference Board.

Members of the Democratic bloc agreed that the railways problems should be settled on the basis of open discussion of facts and that members of the board should be called into Council as often as city department heads.

The city has two members on the board of four, Charles A. Finley and W. Edgar Reed. The other two members are selected by the railways company and the boroughs, respectively. The present traction agreement expires April 30.

MAYOR CRITICIZED

Democratic councilmen criticized Mayor McNair for not being present at the conference. John J. Kane said:

"The Mayor should be sitting here right now."

Thomas J. Gallagher said:

"Yes. We are here defending the position he took as an individual during the campaign."

Council discussed the possibilities of what may happen if the agreement is not extended. William A. Magee said the Philadelphia Company has been buying the underlying securities of the profitable lines, and can be expected, in a receivership, to toss overboard the bad lines and operate the good ones. He estimated that about 30 to 40 per cent of the trolley service to the community might be eliminated in this way.

M'NAIR CLAIMS TAXI CONTROL

Mayor McNair has taken issue with Councilman W. A. Magee regarding Council's power over taxicab companies.

In a letter to Council, the Mayor refers to a newspaper story in which Magee is quoted as saying that the power to decide who shall or shall not operate a taxi line is up to the Public Service Commission.

McNair then quotes the city charter, section 3, page 88, which states that the city has the right to establish stands for cabs, buses and other vehicles and to fix rates and prices for transportation of persons from one section of the city to another.

The possibility of Council's power exceeding that of the Public Service Commission inside the city limits was not further explained by the Mayor.

Fraudulent Tax Collectors at Large in City

Fake city tax collectors whom city detectives have been seeking for several months are still operating in the city, Detective Inspector Louis Leff announced.

The swindlers began operating shortly after the announcement of the plan of Mayor William N. McNair to have city employes collect delinquent taxes. After presenting tax statements on what apparently was official stationery, the swindlers offered discounts to property owners who paid them cash.

City Treasurer James P. Kirk scouted the police theory that the swindlers were operating with "inside" help. He said that complaints had been received of fake collectors using county as well as city tax statements.

GEN. SHANNON PETITIONS OUT

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 15.—Petitions were in circulation today for Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon for the Republican gubernatorial nomination with reported instructions attached to circulators to get them signed within 48 hours.

It was not clear at the Capitol whether Shannon had authorized the circulation. Several State House workers received petitions, according to the reports.

Shannon's prospective candidacy has been gaining ground with organization chieftains in many parts of the state for some time, and it is expected that he will make a formal announcement of his intentions within a few days.

Petitions can be filed until March 26. Reports were to the effect that the sponsors of the petitions intended to present them to Shannon on Friday.

Martin Boosters Enlist Followers

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Hundreds of Republicans throughout Pennsylvania have been asked by the "Gen. Edward Martin Home Committee" to join in drafting the state commitee's chairman as a candidate for Governor.

Signed by Secretary Harry R. Campbell, of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, letters were mailed last night pointing out that Martin "is a receptive candidate only; he is waiting to be drafted."

PUPIL ABILITY TO LEARN PROBED

School Head Finds Brightest Students In Front Seats

New scientific tests seem to prove that if Willie, who has a seat in the back of the schoolroom, farthest from the blackboard, doesn't make grades as high as Henry, who sits up front, it may not be Willie's fault.

Studying the effect his position in a classroom has upon a pupil's ability to learn, Dr. Ross Earl Conelley, Ligonier schools supervising principal, has conducted a series of careful tests.

In his thesis on this subject, written for his doctor's degree at the University of Pittsburgh, he concludes that children seated nearest printed matter comprehend more than those seated farthest away.

TESTS MADE

To make these tests, Dr. Conelley selected 36 Ligonier school pupils from each of the first four grades and divided them into three groups of 12 each. Then, by standardized intelligence and reading tests, he determined that each group had almost the same average intelligence and ability to read as the other groups. At the same time, he was careful to ascertain that each of the tested pupils had normal vision.

The tests were conducted in a special classroom. Three rows of seats, one for each of the three groups, were bolted to the floor, the first 10, the second 15, and third 20 feet away from the blackboard and flash cards.

Then, for four weeks, each school day, the pupils were shown flashcards, lantern slides, charts, and words on the blackboard, with different material to be learned each day.

The result of the flashcard test, Dr. Conelley reports, in his thesis, shows that pupils seated only 10 feet away from the flashcards made correct answers of about 97.8 per cent. The group seated 15 feet away made an average of 83.9 per cent. Children in the last row, 20 feet away, made a score of only 78.8.

REVERSES GROUPING

This is a difference in grade, between the first and last row, of about 19 per cent, which is the difference in many schools between an "A" and a "C" grade. The other tests showed results that were about the same.

Then, to make sure there was no mistake in the method, for two weeks the back row group exchanged places with the front row pupils. They made almost the same "A" grades as the "star" pupils who had sat up front for the first tests.

Similar tests by Dr. Conelley also determined that the front row pupils learned to pronounce more words correctly than those in the back row.

And in making the vision tests, he also discovered that the average true reading distance for distinct vision for 497 of his pupils is only 16.2 inches. This distance, he says, is from two to six inches less than that given in most textbooks.

EXPLAINS PURPOSE

Explaining the purpose of his survey in his thesis, Dr. Conelley says:

"If we determine what factors contribute to effective teaching in the classroom, we may pre-

Services are being held in the Volunteer Chapel, 724 East Diamond street, North Side. Capt. Elizabeth Hoffman spoke last night and Capt. Fay Decker is scheduled to speak tonight. Former United States Attorney John D. Meyer will speak tomorrow night.

The Volunteers' Home for Girls at 500 North avenue, the day nursery in North avenue and other Western Pennsylvania units of the organization are sharing in the celebration.

Candidate Pledges Support of Labor

Promising to work for recognition of organized labor, Joseph Belotts, of East Liberty, has announced his candidacy for the Legislature on the Democratic ticket in the Fifth District.

Always a Democrat, Belotts proposed to introduce bills for reduction of state liquor taxes, for substitution of a fair rate board for the Public Service Commission and social legislation in general.

Excursion Trips At Bargain Rates For N. Y. Criminals

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Gen. O'Ryan's idea of chasing habitual crooks out of New York ain't bad.

Even if it didn't work the boys would send the General a lot of funny postcards.

The General would chase bad New Yorkers to Chicago at reduced rates. From there they would take an excursion train to Los Angeles. The worst ones wouldn't get a stopover at Yellowstone Park.

Then it would be the boys' turn to chase the General. Things would have to be arranged so nobody would miss the Kentucky Derby.

It would give us a very interesting floating population. Especially when it started to come back home at high tide.

FIGHT ON MINE BLAZE RUSHED

A race against time to cut off a mine fire from valuable residential property in the Fifteenth Ward is being carried on by city employes near Lydia and Winterburn streets.

Taking emergency action, the Public Works Department has a steam shovel and six trucks excavating a trench to head off the flames. The trench is now into the coal and is partially blocking the advance of the fire in old workings.

TRAIN PROBERS HEAR EXPERTS

With a dead engineer still in the light of being responsible for the wreck of a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train on the North Side the night of February 26, when 11 persons were killed, the Coroner's jury, which yesterday began hearing testimony, today was prepared to hear from additional witnesses. More than 40 persons, among them experts in various lines of railroading and safety, have been summoned for the investigation.

At the close of yesterday's hearing Coroner W. J. McGregor said that mechanical devices had proved insufficient to overcome the breakdown of one man's part in the matter.

Most of the witnesses agreed with the findings of a government board of inquiry that W. M. Shaw, the engineer, was either dead or unconscious when he passed Pennsylvania avenue switch at high speed and crashed into Merchant street a short time later. About a dozen witnesses were heard during the day.

Girls, Man Injured As Car Hits Pole

Two young women and a man were injured early today when the automobile in which they were riding struck a pole and overturned after having been forced to the sidewalk by another car on Second avenue, near the Tenth Street Bridge, according to police.

Pearl Hastings, 22, of 124 Riverview avenue, Bellevue; Bernadette Rogers, 24, of 226 Winston street, Hazelwood, and Edwin J. Ritenbaugh, 35, of 7718 Lyman street, were taken to Mercy Hospital.

SUIT CHARGES FRAUD AND FORGERY

Over $200,000 Involved; Brookville Probe Speeded by U. S.

Leonard B. Shannon, former president and conservator of the closed Jefferson County National Bank of Brookville, Pa., in which shortages between $150,000 and $200,000 are under investigation, has returned to Brookville after two months in a Philadelphia hospital.

Broken in health and no longer a financial power in his community, the former banker remained in the seclusion of his home and family while facing claims alleging irregularities which even include the misuse of funds of his own church.

The alleged shortages of the former Brookville banker were disclosed by E. B. Howard, receiver for the closed bank, in bankruptcy proceedings filed against Shannon.

BANKRUPTCY ACTION

An affidavit, instituting the bankruptcy action against the Brookville banker, is on file in the United States District Court, and discloses the nature of some of the alleged shortages in the bank's accounts.

Included in the list of 27 items are alleged misappropriation of funds by Shannon and forgery of notes. Following are excerpts showing the nature of the banker's alleged activities:

Misappropriation of a Mellon Bank draft for $3,000, proceeds of which were alleged to have been applied to his private use.

Two notes, for $750 and $925, admittedly forged by Shannon, according to Howard, and proceeds converted to Shannon's private use.

SHORTAGES CHARGED

Fraudulent withdrawal from the account of Father Francis J. Wagner to the extent of $3,862.52. (Father Wagner is pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of which Shannon is a member.)

Fraudulent and fictitious withdrawal from the account of H. S. McCann, proceeds converted to Shannon's private use, $1,090.65.

Shortages in funds belonging to the Jefferson County National Bank, identified with the account of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, $2,820.07.

Shortages in bank funds identified with the account of the Federal Reserve Bank, $810.98.

Shortages in bank funds identified with the account of the Mellon National Bank, $985.97.

Shannon's total indebtedness to the bank was placed at $64,732.98 in the affidavit.

OTHER CLAIMS FILED

In addition, the other claims against Shannon have been filed with Alex S. Scribner, the referee, totaling, with these, some $125,000, it was learned.

Total deficiency in the bank's accounts is estimated at $200,000. Meanwhile, investigation of the shortage is in the hands of United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, of Pittsburgh, to whom it was referred by the Attorney General's office.

A governmental audit, opened in November and completed some time ago, revealed the shortage and violations of the national banking laws, and showed, in addition, that about half of $94,000 in trust deposits is hopelessly tied up, it is understood.

When the bank closed at the time of the national bank moratorium, the Jefferson County National Bank had deposits of $1,413,000 and surplus of $213,000.

HEARST STOCK DIVIDEND PAID

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—Another Hearst dividend day. Checks were in the mails today for payment of the fifteenth quarterly cash dividend of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., Class A 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred shares. The dividend, which is payable today, is being distributed to all stockholders whose names appeared on the books of the company as of March 1, last.

Dividends for 1933 were earned by a wide margin of safety, Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., in a statement accompanying the fifteenth dividend to stockholders, reported a net profit of $6,856,791 for the 12 months ended December 31, 1933. This was equivalent of $3.43 per share on the entire authorized issue of 2,000,000 Class A 7 per cent preferred shares, or $1.68 per share in excess of the yearly dividend requirements of $1.75 per share.

42,000 INVESTORS

In the past year the company distributed $1,936,966 in dividends to stockholders residing in all parts of the world and who now total more than 42,000 investors.

Hearst Consolidated carried to earned surplus at the close of the year $5,093,374, bringing the total earned surplus account up to $13,422,678.

During the four depression years, 1930 to 1933, inclusive, Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has earned an average net profit of $7,517,110, or 2.14 times dividend requirements on the Class "A" seven per cent preferred shares.

The impressive showing of Hearst Consolidated, through the recent years of business stagnation, gives convincing evidence of the essential character of the publishing industry under the most drastic conditions.

RECORD PAYMENTS

The various units in the Hearst organization have rigidly maintained an unbroken record of payments, when due, in full, of all bond maturities, interest and dividends on securities in the hands of the investing public.

As a result of this noteworthy achievement, reflecting stable earning power and sound management, there has been a constantly increasing number of conservative investors buying Hearst preferred shares for liberal income and diversification in their portfolios.

With the revival of confidence and the attractive investment features embodied in Hearst preferred shares, the company reports a decided influx of investment funds that have remained idle for sometime, apparently hoarded by frightened investors awaiting to safely employ their dollars.

PUPILS' ABILITY STUDIED

scribe the ideal situation for learning.

"One of the most prominent classroom activities is the reading of printed matter of various kinds. If we could discover what factors most significantly affect the learning process in this one activity, we should have a key to the factors that influence others.

"If the position of pupils in the classroom is a significant factor in influencing pupils' comprehension of printed matter, it may be found to affect many other learning processes in the classroom as well."

It remains a fact, however, that many teachers do not expect a "learning rush" to the front row seats when children hear of Dr. Conelley's findings. They seem to think that there are always many children who like to sit in the back of the room, as far as they can get from the teacher's watchful eye.

Nation-Wide Campaign for Economy In Government Relieving Taxpayer

Millions Clipped From Burden, Reports Show

The progress made in governmental economy in the various parts of the country is reviewed in today's article, one of a series being published by the Sun-Telegraph. The series is a part of the campaign to reduce taxes through eliminating waste and duplication in government.

The nation-wide movement of the American taxpayer to bring about governmental economy is today beginning to have real results, reports from several states indicate. Approximately 50 million dollars has been cut from the cost of government in nearly a dozen states.

For the last two years there has been a demand from home owners and tax-paying bodies for more efficiency and economy in government. In every state in the union the operation of the local governments has been made the subject for serious study and it is likely that much greater economies will be made in every state and community.

In California the legislature arbitrarily reduced the Governor's biennial budget by $11,698,307 and in doing so it reduced the estimates on virtually all state functions and in some cases eliminated some minor ones.

In Massachusetts a shift of 10 million dollars from the gasoline fund to the general revenue fund has been proposed, cutting that amount from the tax burden of the states political sub divisions.

Illinois' expense was cut a million dollars a month by the last Legislature, Gov. Henry Horner states, by reductions in salaries, personnel and in the total number of offices.

By extending the flexibility bill permitting the Governor and executive council to curtail legislative appropriations and transfer funds, Maine saved approximately a million dollars in each of the last seven months.

Idaho's last Legislature cut appropriations from $6,009,560 down to $4,292,044 and required all governmental boards and other agencies receiving state funds to cut their budgets.

By using certain powers granted him by the Legislature, the Governor of New Jersey saved two million dollars last year and last year Arizona cut $1,500,000 from its budget. Oklahoma reduced salary appropriations for all state officials and employes by more than 10 per cent and institutional appropriations more than 15 per cent. Utah reduced its salaries 28 per cent and gave the Governor authority to cut off funds from any department or institution and control all expenditures.

The wide spread interest in the subject in Pennsylvania is almost certain to result in the introduction of legislation at the next session of the general assembly.

The State Chamber of Commerce has demanded retrenchment in state costs and consolidation of many governmental agencies. Valuable information pertaining to the tax question has been put out from time to time by the chamber. Printed with this story is a table, compiled by the state department of internal affairs, showing the steady rise in taxes for local and state governments. The local taxes levied show the totals for counties, cities, boroughs, townships, school districts and poor districts. The state taxes collected includes motor license fees, the state's share of the gasoline tax; and all other taxes and licenses collected by the commonwealth.

Drive for Clean Shows on Here

The board of directors of the Better City Association yesterday unanimously voted to lend its support to the anti-smut show campaign in Pittsburgh. Action was taken after Will Jeffries, a member of the executive board of the Pittsburgh Actors and Entertainers Association, made a plea for co-operation and support for its campaign against immoral productions.

Further action in the campaign was to be made this afternoon at a meeting of the executive board in the William Penn Hotel.

FOREST CORPS JOBS FOR VETS

Ex-soldiers wishing to enlist in the Civilian Conservation Corps may obtain application blanks from the Veterans' Administration office in the House Building, according to E. R. Benke, manager, who today announced April 1 as the next enrollment date.

Benke said a recent announcement from the War Department calls for the discharge of all CCC men March 31. Vacancies left by those who do not re-enroll will be filled on April 1, July 1 and October 1, with veteran enrollment in Western Pennsylvania supervised by the local veterans' office.

Ex-soldiers joining the corps must be unemployed, must have an honorable discharge and must have had service during a war period.

to EXPECTANT MOTHERS

If you have ever been a patient in any hospital, you are probably familiar with the advantages of a liquid laxative.

Doctors know the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit your individual need.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have now learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without discomfort at the time, or after. Dr. Caldwell's long experience with mothers and babies, and his remarkable record of nearly three thousand births without the loss of one mother or child, should give anybody complete confidence in any prescription which he wrote!

But most important of all, a gentle liquid laxative does not cause bowel strain to the most delicate system, and this is of the utmost importance to expectant mothers and to every child.

Expectant mothers are urged to try gentle regulation of bowels with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a delightful tasting laxative of delightful action, made of fresh herbs, pure pepsin and active senna. Not a single mineral drug; nothing to cause strain, or irritate the kidneys.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved preparation and kept ready for use by all druggists.

blood will tell—

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical.

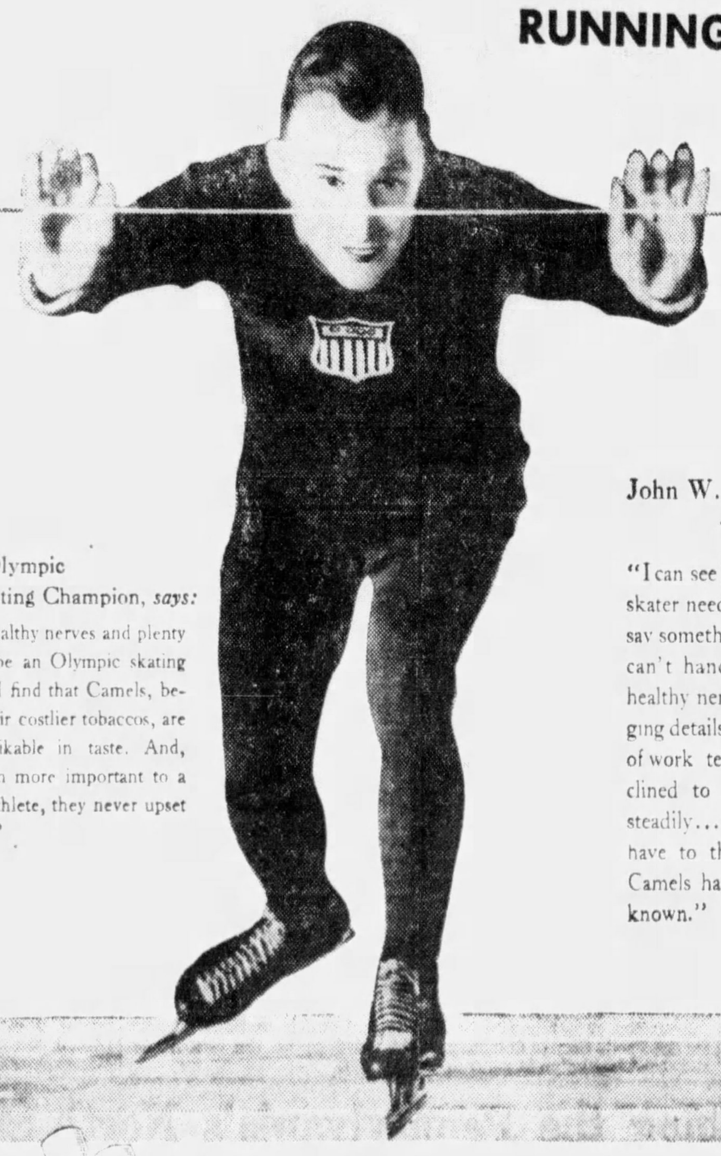
"DON'T LET ANYBODY TELL YOU THAT RUNNING AN OFFICE DOESN'T TAKE HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MR. JAFFEE—"



Irving Jaffee, Olympic Speed Skating Champion, says:

"It takes healthy nerves and plenty of wind to be an Olympic skating champion. I find that Camels, because of their costlier tobaccos, are mild and likable in taste. And, what is even more important to a champion athlete, they never upset the nerves."

John W. Grout, Office Manager, who hails from Detroit, Mich., says:

"I can see how an Olympic champion speed skater needs healthy nerves, but just let me say something here that is also true—a man can't handle a tough office job without healthy nerves, either. Many hours of nagging details and the pressure of a heavy load of work tell on the nerves, if they are inclined to be 'jumpy.' I smoke Camels steadily...all day long...and I never even have to think of nerves. As for taste—Camels have the finest flavor I have ever known."

A MATCHLESS BLEND

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Sooner or later today most of us come face to face with jangled nerves.

If nerves are a problem with you, now is the time to check up on all habits that may affect them—your eating, your sleeping, your recreation. And get a fresh slant on your smoking by trying Camels. Much is heard about tobacco quality, so always remember this:

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

Note the way "edgy" nerves become a thing of the past. You can smoke more than ever, without a sign of "cigaretty" aftertaste. You'll be delighted to find that Camel's costlier tobaccos do make a difference—to your taste and to your nerves!

MAGEE FIGHTS ENGLISH OVER PLAYGROUND

Former Councilman W. Y. English has asked City Council to go through with the purchase of the Florence M. Townsend property at Chartiers avenue and Ernie street, Elliott, for a playground.

Appearing before Council yesterday, English said that $40,000 out of a bond fund had been set aside for playgrounds in that district.

Councilman Magee asked English how the bond money had been limited to use in that particular section and English replied it was an edict of Council. Magee said:

"You always get your share."

English replied:

"Why shouldn't I? You haven't any kick coming, I hope."

The ordinance purchasing the playground for $13,300 was passed by the old Council, but a bill repealing it is before the new body.

A group of residents of the district has protested against the use of the Townsend property for a playground and recently attempted to block it in court.

FOOD AND COAL ORDERS JOINED

George P. Mills, executive director of the Allegheny County Relief Board, today announced a change in the system of distributing coal to the needy, effective Monday. After that date coal orders will be distributed with food orders, thus permitting families to obtain coal when most convenient.

The board, upon applications by families, formerly allotted coal orders to associations of dealers and truckers. By the new system coal orders will be expedited.

The board is distributing about 35,000 tons of coal monthly at a cost of $4 per ton.

GEN. MARKHAM, U. S. ARMY CHIEF ENGINEER, IN PITTSBURGH TO INSPECT RIVER WORK

CANAL DECISION WAITS DATA

Decision to build or not to build the Lake Erie-Ohio River canal waits on a report Col. Roger Powell will make in May, Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of United States Army Engineers, said here today at a welcome breakfast in his honor in the Hotel William Penn.

Following a survey, he said, the "short canal", by way of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers as far as Struthers, Youngstown's proposed port, has received his approval.

At the breakfast this morning he discussed river improvement plans with contractors and civic and city officials, including Mayor McNair.

Gen. Markham will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the fifth annual banquet of the Propeller Club of Pittsburgh in the Hotel William Penn tonight. His visit today, he said, is his first opportunity to inspect river projects under way here.

PAIR BALKED IN HOLDUPS

Two men who admitted starting out on a holdup career, according to police, got a bad break today.

They were arrested while awaiting an opportunity to hold up the White Tower restaurant, 608 Cedar avenue, by a radio scout crew seeking a lone robber who had staged a $5 holdup of the restaurant an hour before, police testified in North Side Police Court.

The suspects gave their names as Ralph Fuhs, 26, of Perrysville, and Boyd Warner, 29, of 1019½ Wylie avenue. Fuhs told Magistrate Howard B. McNutt that he had bought a revolver and that he and Warner intended holding up a drugstore at Tripoli and East streets.

Both were held for court.

Will Directs Heir To Surrender $10,000 Legacy

In a thirty-five word will filed in Probate Court here today, the $10,000 estate of John Svalina, of Clairton, was bequeathed to a friend, Joseph Kirincich, of Clairton, who also was named executor. The will read:

"I give to Joe Kirincich, of Clairton, all money I have in the United States at the time of my death to be his absolutely. He understands he is to give it to my family."

FIREMEN WIN PAY CLAIM

City Solicitor C. D. Scully has been instructed to proceed with a settlement proposed by five dismissed firemen who are suing for back salary and reinstatement.

The firemen, among whom is newly-appointed Fire Chief John Heinz, said they were dropped in violation of Civil Service rules in 1932. Under the proposed settlement, the city would give them more than $7,000 in back pay.

Heinz has agreed to waive any claim for back pay, but asks that he be given credit for the intervening time on pension requirements.

Scully told Council he doubted that the city could collect on the bond of former Director of Safety James M. Clark, who dismissed the men, and asserted an adverse decision would be almost certain in court.

ENGINEER FACES NEW OUSTER

Louis Schwartz, assistant engineer in the Bureau of Building Inspection, was to be dismissed again today, according to an announcement last night by Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith. Schwartz once refused to resign at request, was dismissed, and later reinstated.

Smith said Schwartz could not claim protection under civil service regulations because he entered the city service as a provisional appointment.

Attorney Benjamin L. Steinberg announced that he had informed the public safety director that if Schwartz was not reinstated at once he would take the case to court.

Man's Relatives Are Sought Here

There were three daughters, Elizabeth, Rozella and Helen. Red Cross headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building desires information on the family.

Boston Woman Tells Washday Secret

Mrs. Paul W. Mather
whose clever washday secret will help you

"I learned from a neighbor a wonderful new washday trick," says Mrs. Paul W. Mather. "It saves time and work, gives me a nicer looking wash. Here it is.

"I use my regular laundry soap, my regular washing method, then just add two tablespoons or so of Lux. This gives me much richer suds, speeds up the washing, leaves the clothes so bright and new looking."

Do try this new secret—housewives everywhere praise it. Lux gives such wonderful suds, even 2 tablespoons or so make a world of difference in a washtub!

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

TOO OFTEN THE ENCHANTMENT IS SOON OVER
FAY KING
LIKE CINDERELLA SHE SHOULD RETURN AT ONCE TO HER HOME

FAY KING

Just as the choicest fruits and flowers are shipped to the big city, so the most beautiful girls of small towns seem to find their way to the metropolis.

Just as the roses and peaches are enhanced by the artistic display in the windows of exclusive florists and fruiterers, so those who are specialists in beauty present these girls most temptingly.

It is amazing how many Cinderellas from Centervilles have become the toast of the Big City.

But their reign is brief. For the displays in these wondrous windows are often changed. There must ever be lovelier flowers, more luscious fruits, and fresher beauty to attract the satiated customers.

It is a wise Cinderella who returns to her home town when the enchantment begins to fade.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Office Greetings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the janitor in a large office building. How should I address the boss when he says, "Hello, George" in the morning? Also the clerks and stenographers? I don't know some of their names. G.

"Good morning, Mr. Lansing" or "Good morning, sir," is your correct answer to this greeting. When you know the names of those greeting you, use the name after "Good morning"; otherwise, just the "Good morning."

Graduation Gift?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to a party held in honor of a young man who is being graduated. I have never met this young gentleman, although I have had the pleasure of meeting his people. Would it be suitable for me to present him a gift? MARY.

Under these circumstances, I think it wouldn't seem very appropriate for you to take a gift to the party. However, if in the meantime you discover that all the other guests are planning to take presents, you might take some gift, such as a carton of cigarets or a book or a box of large-sized letter-paper.

THE SNOW'S NOW OFF THE BRIDLE PATH

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT WOULD BE PRETTY fresh of a person who does not know everything about horses on parade—Rotten Row or the pet local boulevard—to tell any woman just what she should wear. It's a ritual, an esoteric matter that does not depend on style sleuths at all for its superior rating. Styles in riding clothes do not change so much, one might say; rather it is a matter of which styles are being most favored season by season.

But it might not be lese majeste to remark that the side saddle habit is enjoying renewed popularity, and that women look perfectly swell in it. Mrs. Bernard Gimbel and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Sr., are two women who affect it, and who are constantly to be seen in it wherever papers print photographs of women who ride.

JODHPURS AND CAVALRY breeches are the variants of nether garments for the woman rider, and they may be the light service shade, or something in brick. Starting with either shade, it is quite de rigeur to build a stunning color scheme around them in the matter of jacket, weskit, sweater, hat, or shirt.

Accessories for the riding costume, in general, permit a woman to exercise a little choice in what she wears, and there are fascinating supplies of belts that may be leather or braided elastic; sweaters, shirts, cubbing ties, or weskits of lusty color; gloves that are stitched or knitted; classic hats any one of which may be more becoming than another; and stock pins or cuff buttons that take the feminine eye.

MOST OF THESE items can be had in miniature size to start the sub-sub-deb on horseback in the right tradition. Even a Shetland pony knows his jodhpurs these days, they say, and there is something very appealing in a congregation of youngsters competently handling their mounts, every one of them also smart as the deuce as far as their clothes go.

Many women prefer riding in jodhpurs. These are brick color, which makes a symphony with the tan homespun coat of ratcatcher design, and the canary yellow turtle neck sweater. The hat is felt, matching the coat.

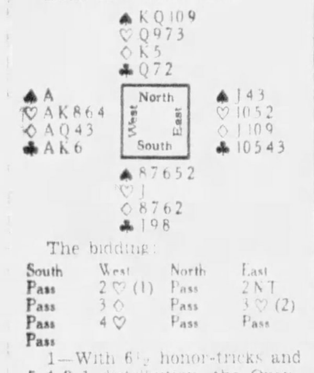
Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Safety Play in the Trump Suit

From time to time I have discussed safety plays in these columns, particularly those in the trump suit. Hand No. 7 of the recent World Bridge Olympic involves a trump safety play which deliberately gives up any chance of losing notrump tricks, but at the same time insures against losing more than one.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	2 ♡ (1)	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 ◇	Pass	3 ♡ (2)
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—With 6½ honor-tricks and 5-4-3-1 distribution, the Opening two-bid is unquestionably correct. It is pretty hard to visualize a hand that East might have which would not give a sound play for game in some suit or notrump.

2—This bid by East shows a preference for West's first suit, and, contrary to the idea that a great many people have, is not stronger than a three-notrump response. Although East should have fair trump support, his bid merely confirms to his partner that he has three cards in the heart suit and almost certainly not more than three cards in the diamond suit. A three-no-trump response, although showing no strength, would give West an idea that East held some sort of spade or club stopper, which is not the case.

In the play of the hand, after the Opening spade lead, Declarer lays down the heart Ace, dropping South's knave. West's correct play is to now lead a low heart up to Dummy's Ten. This play, of course, automatically gives up any chance of losing no heart tricks in case South has the Queen-Knave alone. However, West realizes that he can afford to lose one heart trick as the hand contains only one possible loser in addition. On the low heart lead North can play his Queen or play low, as he chooses, but cannot take more than one trump trick.

Had South held the Queen-Knave of hearts alone, he would have won the second round of hearts, and now Declarer's King would drop the only outstanding trump. It is easily seen that had West failed to make this safety play and led his King of hearts to Trick 3, Dummy's Ten would have fallen under North's Queen, and the nine-spot would have been the setting trick.

Through the Spyglass @ VIEWING THE NEW

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

A new experience . . . to find a set of fine toiletries tucked away between the covers of a "book"! And one that you'll appreciate when you try it.

Into a neatly covered book box of peach and turquoise, are tucked the following complexion aids . . . powder, cleaning cream and finishing cream (tubes) . . . astringent (bottle) . . . and a dainty puff. Not bad for 20c . . . not bad! Made by a well known toilet goods house.

Time to change the guard! And with sterling silver guard rings set with flashing colored rhinestones priced at 30c . . . 3 for 85c . . . the change won't be difficult! Get one to use as a guard ring proper for your diamond . . . or wear a set of three . . . so popular nowadays.

We have taken the shoe question quite seriously this spring . . . and just finished a lengthy discourse on it with a well-known shoe man here in town. With this result . . .

That we find fabric shoes are more and more to the fore than they were a year ago. Today brings a form of whipcord fashioning shoes of more-than-stunning appearance. Gabardine (like men's suits) is playing an important part. And this year's "Marcella" cloth becomes "Marcelle" and a trifle more sophisticated than its last year's sister. Also . . .

Patent leather is as much a winner in shoe trimming as it is in accessories. Almost all the new fabric shoes wear bits of it somewhere about them . . . one of the interesting points about it being that the shoe design is such that the most clod-hopperish of pedal extremities are flattered 'way beyond their fondest hopes!

Color . . . there's an item! Did you know that the once-loved-since - taboo-ed red shoes are back again? In street styles as well as dressy modes. We know of some red patents, and some red crushed pigskins which are on order right now!

And low heels are back! Not only in tthe new evening sandals you've heard about . . . but in daytime ones as well. Oh, spring is going to be a gay season for our shoes this year!

We've seen the original Easter bunny! As gaily colored as the Easter eggs he brings! Yard high bunnies are hopping 'round one of the stores . . . made of red-and-white or green-and-white seersucker which can be washed! Great long ears . . . fat little tails that squeak when squeezed! $1.95 . . . and lots of fun for the youngsters, or to set in the young girl's room!

* * *

Put on your thinking caps and begin to look wise! There is a new book just out . . . facsimiles of famous American letters and documents compiled with a reference book. Twenty-five of them . . . a fine thing to own, and one of interest to history students. Only $2 . . . which is an eyebrow-raising sum for anything quite like this!

Junior Patrol

Some people are just "carbon copies" fellows!

What other people do, they do.

If one fellow who lives near them buys a new sweater, they go and buy one just like it—or nearly like it. If they hear somebody use a clever phrase, they start using it. They imitate other people's manners, dress, talk, and ideas.

Sometimes they don't seem to have brains of their own. Think things out for yourself, fellows. Make you own decisions by asking yourself what you want to do and have and be. You'll make a mistake now and then—we all do—but you will learn to rely on your own brains and efforts. That's a precious asset for any fellow and girl.

We have a nicely written note today from Ralph C. Hostetler, of Melcroft, Pa. He sends three pledges. We hope he is planning to start a Junior Patrol club.

Howard Webb, of Smith's Ferry, and his friends are another group of fellows who are starting a Junior Patrol. They sent four pledges today, and we are hoping they get six more members soon so that we can send the captain an armband.

Another fellow working to start a club is Junior McLaughlin, of R. F. D. No. 1, Elizabeth, Pa.

And still another fellow sending four pledges today is Billie Giles, of 905 Excelsior street, South Side, Pittsburgh. You only need six more members, Billie, to have a full-fledged Junior Patrol club.

FLOWER OF AUTUMN PATTERN 598

Flower in Scraps Is Easy to Make

This quilt—so colorful—so economical—such fun to make, is one of those charming ones that every quiltmaker loves—a scrap quilt. It is ideal as a Friendship Quilt, in which each friend contributes her own patches for a block; each block can be of different scraps and still make a most effective quilt. The flower, somewhat the shape of a fan, is as easy to make as the popular Fan Quilt and is enhanced by the leaves and stems.

Pattern 598 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

Bathing Once Considered Injurious to the Health

Many of my readers will be amused to learn that the first bath tub built in the United States was exhibited as a curiosity. In fact, our forefathers were so shocked at this manner of washing the whole body that a law was passed in Philadelphia prohibiting all bathing in a tub.

Dr. Copeland.

In 1850 Virginia passed a tax on all bath tubs. In Boston, bathing was considered a dangerous procedure and it was necessary to obtain a doctor's permission to take a bath. Many doctors refused to give this permission for they believed frequent bathing was harmful.

Bathing is no longer considered injurious to the health. It is now universally believed to be essential to good health. Lack of body cleanliness is regarded as a stepping stone to disease. This is quite different from the old-time opinion that washing the whole body was little short of a sin, and certainly a disgrace, as well as a dangerous practice.

No one will deny that clean hands and clean bodies are essential to health. Children should be taught this health habit at an early age. Not only is it a means of protecting health, but it helps to prevent the spread of germs and disease.

The daily bath for the young and old should be regarded as an essential part of our daily life. Since many of the body wastes are carried off through the skin in the form of sweat, it is obvious that daily bathing is essential to good health.

I am often asked whether cold baths are preferable to hot baths. It seems to me that individual taste and habit must decide this question. A cold bath is stimulating and refreshing. It should never be taken by the aged and weak. Unless you are accustomed to daily cold baths and bear them well, I would warn you against this practice.

Cold baths are not as cleansing as warm baths. Of course, no bath is cleansing unless plenty of soap is used to remove the accumulated dirt from the skin. A warm bath is relaxing. It is extremely beneficial if taken before retiring.

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Grateful When Her Father Appears

There was no hint of command in my father's calm voice as he called through the door of my little study that he needed my help. But his demand for admittance—for his words of course meant that—was like the lash of a whip to my benumbed faculties.

For they had been benumbed, I realized that, in the seconds that elapsed between my father's call and my rising and going to the door.

But there was no mistaking the reaction of Lee Chow to the interruption, for the fleeting fraction of a second his usually immobile face was distorted into rage, and a short, guttural explosive exclamation issued from his lips. But the next instant he was his old, suave self again, and bowed low to me as my father entered.

A GOOD EXCUSE

"I am afraid I have fatigued you unconscionably," he said, "and yet I am unwilling to close our interview until I find out from you the information which led me to seek you, and that is, what arrangements are you making for the coming of age of Mrs. Underwood's daughter, and what part you want me to play in them."

What diabolical quickness and cleverness were his! I said to myself. He had said nothing tangible as yet which could be construed as a threat against my husband or my children; and he had just given to my father and to me a most plausible reason for wishing to talk to me.

My father's voice was as suave as Lee Chow's, and as firm.

"Would it be too much to ask you to excuse my daughter from further questioning tonight?" he asked. "I myself, will see that she answers all your questions fully tomorrow. She is terribly fatigued, as you know, and has been under a most unusual strain."

The two men, each as fine a representative of his own civilization as could be imagined, faced each other with steady, unflinching stares, and it was Lee Chow whose eyelids first lowered, and who stepped back, with a low bow to me.

EXTRAVAGANCE OF SPEECH

"I am bowed to the earth with humiliation," Lee Chow said, with a reversion to Oriental extravagance of speech not usual to him. "I can plead only my fear that the excitement of the wedding would drive all other considerations out of Miss Marion's head, and, as I knew she was going back to school almost immediately, I felt that I must find out something definite in the matter."

I had pulled myself together by the time he finished speaking and from somewhere I pumped up the courage to answer his tacit query.

"Marion is not going back to school until tomorrow afternoon," I said. "I shall see both she and her mother in the morning, and arrange for a meeting for you if you like. Then you will be able to find out exactly what their plans are, and how to fit them into yours."

"That will not be necessary," he said hastily. "If they will just tell you what their plans are, that will be all that will be needed. I shall be glad to suit my convenience to theirs. And now, if you will excuse me, I will say good night, with many apologies for my thoughtlessness in so upsetting Mrs. Graham."

He bowed again and made his way with dignity from the room, leaving me staring at my father in wondering gratitude.

"How did you know I needed you so much?" I whispered.

Travelers and Concerts Dominate Social News

News of travelers and plans for concerts—have we ever had a more musical year?—predominate in social news of the late Lenten season, with the promise of spring weddings for those who enjoy anticipating social affairs.

Education Emphasized At B. P. W. Club Dinner

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Many astonishing facts and figures were quoted last night by Miss Charl Ormond Williams, first vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, when she addressed the public relations dinner of the Pittsburgh B. P. W. Club in the Twentieth Century Club.

Where civilization advances today, in its spearhead will be education, Miss Williams said in her brilliant talk on "Education of Vital Concern to Business and Professional Women."

She showed in many interesting details how education plays a significant role in the financial life of the country, in its relation to the other industries, in production, consumption and distribution, in the life of the individual, in the development of leadership and in citizenship, and that it is therefore a basic industry.

The schoolhouse has been one place where little children have been fed and warmed during the economic crisis, she said, stating that there are 1,000,000 more children in school now than there were in 1930 and that there are 25,000 fewer teachers and that $40,000,000 is due in back pay for 40,000 teachers.

It was a big night for the local club, more than 100 of whose members, together with several distinguished guests, attended the dinner. Miss Margaret Ritenour, of Uniontown, district president, was there, and Miss Grace Beardsley, of Baltimore, national public relations chairman; City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, representing Mayor William N. McNair; Judge Sara Soffel and Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer. Mrs. Rohrer was made an honorary member of the club because of her musical compositions. Her "Pennsylvania" was sung in assembly.

There was a particularly fine musical program, Hilda McMillen singing two groups of soprano solos with artistry that included dramatic feeling as well as musicianship. Beulah Taylor Marston accompanied her. A trio comprised of Sara Linton, piano; Geraldine Gallogher, violin, and Frank Crispen, cello, also added to the evening's enjoyment and, to cap it all, there was a birthday ceremony celebrating the club's tenth anniversary in which the past presidents participated.

Mason, readers' counsellor at Carnegie Library; Mrs. D. N. Bulford, Miss Helen Grimes and Mrs. R. T. Alexander, of the congress.

In the absence of the department chairman, Mrs. J. Andrew Gettig, who is ill, Mrs. Oliver M. Haller, congress president, presided. Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson sang, accompanied by Mrs. F. A. Welty.

A number of men and women of prominence in the community are sponsoring the event.

A board meeting at 5 o'clock will be followed by dinner at 6 for the Pittsburgh Nature Study Club in the Congress of Clubs this evening. At 7:30 Ross Loeffler, president of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commission, will speak on "Wild Life Conservation in Pennsylvania," and motion pictures will be shown. Accompanied by Miss Mary Orr Wilson, Mrs. L. M. Melius will sing.

Theatrical Child

Sweet little Marilyn Caroline Grey
Is eight years of age and does four shows a day.
She's eight years of age and as sharp as a knife
And knows all the facts I learned later in life!
She keeps a press agent, a personal maid
And clippings from cities in which she has played.
At noon with her dolly she walks on Broadway—
Sweet little Marilyn Caroline Grey!
Sweet little Marilyn Caroline dear,
I hear has been eight now for many a year.
Her relatives know that she butters their bread.
"But she's still our baby," her mother has said.
When some look her over they say "Ain't she cute."
When I look her over I'm tempted to shoot
That jovial juvenile pixie and fay:
Sweet little Marilyn Caroline Grey!

Quiteso, Quiteso

It Could Happen

Bill Halligan, the comedian, who has a natural dislike for dramatic critics, is relaying this around the town. A man died and went to Heaven.

"What's your name?" asked St. Peter.

"George Jean Nathan," said the man.

"Okay," was the retort, "you may come in—but I KNOW you won't like it."

Gag

In Lindy's the other day two press agents were undecided what to order. Finally, one said:

"How about a little applesauce?"

"Please," frowned the other, "don't talk shop."

Newspaperman Stuff

From a Kansas paper in which an editor speaks his mind:

"I have been criticized quite a little by some of the town smart alecks for using poor grammar. Now I have three good reasons for this: In the first place, I don't know any better. Second, half of you wouldn't understand it if I did use it. Third, if I did speak and write correctly, I might be writing a column on a big New York paper at a large salary and you farmers would lose the best editor in Kansas!"

Gosh, Yes!

In Benny Meroff's undressing room the other matinee were some friends and his press agent. Tom Smith of the Miami gazettes said that one day he hoped he would own his own newspaper, which wouldn't use any publicity! All press agents, he added, would be barred, when he was publisher.

To which Bill Morrow argued it would be a dull sheet if the plan were carried out.

"Instead of barring press agents," said Bill, "you should welcome them with a lounging room, for them to plop down on velvet cushions, free food, free liquor, plenty of cigars, and—"

"And," interrupted a columnist, "plenty of chisels."

Thumb Nail Sketch

Harold Seton says of Janet Gaynor:

"She is so kittenish she probably drinks milk out of a saucer."

Scene in Harlem

The police visited a hot spot in Harlem the other 5:30 a. m. The place was crowded.

"Didn't you ever hear about a 3 a. m. curfew law?" a cop asked the owner.

"I'm sorry," was the reply, "they are only finishing eating."

"How long will it take these loafers to eat?" growled the officer.

"Well, how long would you think was fair?" stalled the boss.

"Down at headquarters we have to start and finish ours in 30 minutes—get 'em out—now!"

The Morning Mail

"Dear Sir," writes Frank C. Sengstack, of Room 72, Printcraft Building, Washington, "I want to take exception to your article about the test for the normal intelligence of people. I have tried it on 50 people in Washington who are holding normal positions, doing normal work, living normal lives and earning normal salaries—and they all agree with me that anybody that answers your test correctly are only those persons whose minds run to crap shooting and communism."

And who write sappy letters.

Form of Criticism

When you are belted on Broadway it is devastating—especially when you act flops. They were talking about a comic who was a terrific bust the other night. Said the listener:

"Did he flop hard?"

"Did he?" was the reply. "Worse than the Titanic!"

Incidentally

"I wonder," wondered one of them, "who wears his collars the first three days of the week?"

Gertrude Wieder, a new contralto, sang a very good program in the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night.

Mr. Lissfelt

The event was the musical offering for the week of celebration of B'Nai B'Rith's nineteenth anniversary, and there was a large audience.

The program opened with two of the noblest songs in all music. Then came examples of the best from Schubert and Richard Strauss, the dramatic "blessing" aria from Meyerbeer's "Prophet" and at the end three good English songs.

This singer's musical abilities far outshone her vocal preparation. There is a certain majesty in her style, much musical feeling in her interpretations, and excellent understanding of musical values.

But like many contraltos, to make her voice sound darker than it need be, she has locked it securely in her throat, so that much of the natural beauty of her organ is stifled and both resonance and glow are entirely lost.

Earl Mitchell played his usual skilful accompaniments.

By GEORGE SEIBEL

This week the drama-lover in Pittsburgh has his choice of passion plays, "Berkeley Square" in the South Hills or Children's Theater in the Nixon Saturday morning. The Clare Tree Major Company is playing "An Old-Fashioned Girl," based on the Louisa Alcott story, and all Little Women will be interested.

It was a curious thing about the first stage production of "Little Women." All sorts of books had been dramatized before Jessie Bonstelle thought of this. There was a notion that the life of happy young people held no dramatic possibilities, but this dramatization showed the mistake, and William A. Brady, who put the play on the road, discovered its box-office appeal was very great.

Mr. Seibel

Of course, the first impulse came from readers of the Alcott books, who wanted to see their favorite heroines in person. It was the same with "Ben Hur," a Biblical drama, which the author's heirs held back for years, until the Erlanger pieces of silver persuaded them to sell. Since then almost anything that has had any stage possibilities has been turned into a play or picture.

MRS. FOUST'S DRAMA

Speaking of Biblical plays, "The Other Kingdom," by Madeleine Skelly Foust, a Pittsburgh woman, was a great surprise. People who write Biblical plays, and their name is legion, seem to go in strong for what they think is Biblical language—"thous" and "thees" and "whomsoevers." They also go in strong for blessings, prayers, sermons, miracles and all the machinery of holiness. Mrs. Foust has made a human little play, which tries to explain the character of Judas—how he got that way.

Aside from what the authors usually do to make Biblical plays inhuman, the actors go in strongly for pious unction in their diction. They have an idea that holiness talks through its nose and sounds like a sanctified buzz-saw. The actors out in the little schoolhouse in Craig street had been trained to speak like human beings. Strange as it may seem, the people of Palestine 20 centuries ago were really human beings—though we are accustomed to think they were all publicans or sinners, lepers or demoniacs, Scribes and Pharisees, with a few Roman soldiers to add variety.

BACK WHERE IT BEGAN

The deep interest recently shown by religious bodies in drama and theater is only reversion to type. The church is the mother of the theater—and what is more natural than that a warm-hearted mother should take a wayward daughter back to her bosom? In ancient Greece and medieval Europe stage-plays were evolved from religious festivals and church pageants.

But in time the church became hostile.

Tertullian was sure the Almighty could never forgive an actor, but Thomas Aquinas thought some of them might reach heaven. One church council forbade Christian women to marry players, bishops refused to baptize them, and the renowned Adrienne Lecouvreur was denied burial in consecrated ground.

Still the actors had their patron Saint Genetus, who was a Roman actor when Diocletian was persecuting the Christians. Genetus was converted on the stage, while playing a role intended to ridicule the Christians. At first the court thought his conversion part of the play, and applauded, but when they realized that he was not acting, but had really turned Christian, St. Genetus suffered martyrdom.

STORY OF MANTELL

The late Robert B. Mantell once told me a story about his visit to his old home in Scotland, years ago, after he had become an actor. The story illustrates how modern actors have suffered martyrdom.

"My people being very strict Presbyterians," said Mantell, "my own brothers would not walk down the public street with me. Alas and alack, I was an actor! It was unheard of! They would lose caste in the kirk if they were seen in public with such a black sheep. Perhaps their souls might even be a wee bit in jeopardy. It actually took me several days to convince them that there were still a few tufts of white wool in my coat. But things have changed vastly. My brothers would no longer hesitate to walk down the public street with me. Perhaps they have grown more charitable, or the kirk less censorious, or perhaps they would salve their consciences with the reflection that the rumor wasn't true—that I was not really an actor."

'Berkeley Square' Given In South Hills

"Berkeley Square," fanciful romantic drama by John L. Balderston that originally starred Leslie Howard, gave the South Hills Community Players the most pretentious production this group has essayed so far, as presented last night in the auditorium of Washington School, Mt. Lebanon. It is a rather difficult play, with occult implications, set partly in the eighteenth century and partly in the present. For that reason this ambitious group had prepared in an extended period of rehearsal that was reflected in the presentation. Edward Blaine, director of the group, played the leading role.

Thriller

Girls Give Hollywood Lads, Friendly Little Hint

By CINEMA.

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—Hello. A trio of the movie village's newcomer cuties were sitting on a set at the Fox film factory—and bemoaning their "lonesome" state in no uncertain terms. "What Hollywood needs is a great big get-acquainted society for the busy businessmen of Los Angeles the movies!"

That's straight from Suzanne Kaaren, Wini Shaw and Gloria Roy, Broadway charmers who are on the first rung of Fox's ladder to cinema fame.

Wini Shaw muttered:

"Hollywood girls don't stand a chance. In New York the butter-and-egg boys sit out front and see the ladies who are the objects of their admiration, and through acquaintances manage to arrange meetings without loss of time."

Gloria Roy chirped:

"Yeah, and there would be far fewer millionaires led to the altar by Follies beauties if meetings had to be scheduled via the fan mail route!"

And that, dear reader (notice I used the singular—Heh, heh!) is the sad state of affairs in Hollywood.

Perhaps you don't care, but here's some of that Gracie Allen and George Burns nit-wit chatter—

George—"That's terrible!"

Gracie—"But he only jumped 10 stories at a time."

George—"Why was that?"

Gracie—"He stutters!"

Movie village meanderings . . . Ann Sothern (you know her as Harriet Lake) has been a affecting an English accent that is knocking the Britishers and Hollywoodites for that w. k. loop! . . . Agnes Anderson (Miss Detroit when discovered by M-G-M's traveling studio last year) gets a local break behind the footlights in "Men in White," as done by a stock company. If she makes good, M-G-M will toss movie roles her way.

Scotch Story—On the day Guy Kibbee had to eat four breakfasts for a scene in "Without Honor," his pal and studio playmate, Hugh Herbert, invited him to lunch!

Mack Gordon, Hollywood's biggest song writer (By at least 90 pounds) IS blamed for getting that yacht party lost at sea. He gave directions, having never been in a boat before! . . . Al Dubin, another ditty writer, has been LOST for 10 days—and right in Hollywood. So has his praise agent, Barney Hutchison, for that matter . . . That rhino, working in "Tarzan" at M-G-M, is the sleepiest old thing, but he'll wake up when hearing "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" on a phonograph.

Cabaret and Bridge Saturday Feature

An "Irish Cabaret" will be a feature of the bridge party to be given Saturday afternoon in the Chatterbox, Hotel William Penn. Entertainers will include Rennee and Lora, girl adagio team; Bobbe Arnst, of the musical comedy stage; Joe and Frances Cappo, dance team; Mrs. Norwall Daugherty, in a monologue; Percy Dorrington, Edward Koontz and Chauncey Parsons.

This Modern World

SEATED in his favorite chair, Mr. C. Hoggsworth Peabody regarded the pretty woman who—at the moment—was in the act of drying her eyes with a tiny handkerchief.

"Now, now, my dear," he comforted, "you mustn't go on in that fashion. Finish your story, and we'll see what can be done."

The woman sighed and managed a tearful smile.

"Hoggsy," she said, "there isn't much more to tell. How my husband found out about us is something I will never understand. But he seems to know all there is to know."

She fished around in her pocketbook and brought out a letter.

"Here," she went on, handing over the missive. "Here's the letter that came from him this morning. Read it, and you'll understand why I feel so miserable."

Mr. Peabody took the letter. And being privileged characters, we will glance over his shoulder as he reads it.

"Dear Jane: I am sending you this letter to let you know that I am wise to both you and your sweetheart. Without you knowing it, I've seen him in your apartment plenty of times—and I've got all the evidence I'll ever need.

"I am bringing suit for divorce very shortly, and if a lot of scandal pops up it's not my fault. The whole blame rests on you, and you know it. I thought the decent thing to do, however, would be to tell you about it. Which is the reason for this letter."

The note was signed abruptly: "Your husband, Monte Moore." . . .

C. Hoggsworth Peabody failed to comment. He folded the letter, handed it back to Mrs. Moore and looked at her with appraising eyes.

His decision had already been made. He was a man of the world, as he himself could tell you. He had lived well, traveled extensively and loved wisely. He was the perfect gentleman, and the least that could be expected of him in this case would be to do the right thing—as it is laughingly called—by our Jane.

Mr. Peabody knew very well that this girl had been strictly on the level until he met her. It was he who had stolen in with the technique of a motion picture lover and swept her off her tootsies.

True, when he first met her she had just separated from her husband. But that was merely a minor argument that would have been patched up in a few days. He knew very well that Mr. and Mrs. Moore would be living happily together this very day if it had not been for him.

It was he who had been the snake in the boudoir. He had tempted her with tales of riches, and cars, and jewelry and Park avenue apartments. And she finally fell for him, hook, line and nightgown.

She didn't get any cars and and jewelry—but she did get an apartment, even if it wasn't on Park avenue. For more than six months she had lived there. And now, like a bolt from the silk counter, this letter had arrived from her husband; this letter that threatened an end to everything.

The sight of little Jane trembling before him was too much for Mr. Peabody. He had been pretty much of a dirty doggie, and he knew it. He arose and took her in his arms.

"Darling," he said heroically, "I want you to stop worrying. There will be no scandal and very little trouble because I am going to see your husband myself. I will pay for any sort of divorce he wishes, and I can promise you that you will have no worries in the future."

Jane's arms tightened around him. You think that's bad?

"Oh, Hoggsy," was all she could say.

"Yes, my sweets," continued C. Hoggsworth Peabody, "I know when I am at fault, and I know how to protect those who love me. I placed you on the wrong road, and it is my duty to take care of you now. When a girl's love is as great as yours has been I will not stand by and see her suffer."

Jane's arms tightened around him still more. Mr. Peabody's face turned slightly purple.

"Oh, Hoggsy," were her words of appreciation. I love you so. You're so good to me. Oh, Hoggsy." . . .

The next and last scene in this burning drama of purple passion takes place the following evening in the home of Monte Moore, the wronged husband. We see Monte as he enters his apartment and kisses Ruth, a stalwart blonde who has been his companion ever since Mrs. Moore left his bed and board.

"Well, honey," said Monte, as I skip from the present to the past with absolute unconcern, "everything's straightened out about my divorce from Jane. I'm getting a great break, and it looks as though you and I will be married before very long."

"Yeah?" returned the blonde. "What happened?"

Mr. Moore grinned.

"Well," he went on, "the guy who's responsible for everything walked into my office this afternoon and told me the whole story. He's absolutely okay. Not only is he going to pay for the whole divorce, but I'm getting a nice piece of change not to mention any names."

The woman shrugged her ample shoulders.

"That's only fair," was her reaction. "He had his fun. And as long as you caught him with your wife, the least he can do is to take care of her."

Mr. Moore nodded slowly.

"Sure," he returned, "but there's one thing you don't understand. The guy that came into my office this afternoon isn't the same man that I had the goods on!" . . .

SALARIES SET IN DORMONT

Salaries of Police Chief Ralph H. Miller, and Mrs. Anna Williams, assistant borough secretary, were raised $13 and $10 a month respectively, after council appointed Chief Miller fire commissioner and Mrs. Williams weighmaster, in addition to their regular duties.

150 LOSE LIVES IN EXPLOSION

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, March 15.—(AP.)—Much of the city of La Libertad is a mass of smoking ruins today—leveled by fire which spread after a port explosion in which about 150 persons were killed.

The blast, which could be heard here in the capital, about 30 miles away, occurred when dynamite exploded as it was being unloaded from a ship at the docks.

Fire broke out. Flames spread quickly to buildings and swept over many blocks. The City Hall and a church were among the important buildings consumed.

Hundreds of firemen were rushed from San Salvador along with scores of relief workers whose automobiles dashed in and out of the danger zone, carrying the injured to hospitals here.

Today, national guardsmen and Red Cross workers were joined by officials in directing remaining rescue work. The president and high government officials rushed to the scene yesterday.

Battle of Music Listed For Garden Friday

Two popular radio orchestras will compete in "a battle of music" in Motor Square Garden tomorrow night, providing continuous music for dancing. They will be Marty Gregor's Gay Paree Orchestra and Vern Stern's Savoy Orchestra. The contest will be judged by Joe Falvo, Dave Broudy and Harry Hoehle. Mayor William N. McNair will be in attendance, it is announced. Members of the Pitt stage show also are to be guests.

Symphonic Ensemble To Play Friday

The fourth of five concerts listed by the String Symphonic Ensemble will be given in Carnegie Music Hall Friday evening, when the Wolf-Ferrari chamber symphony, Opus 8, will be given as it was written to be played for the first time in Pittsburgh. That is, with the inclusion of six woodwinds, and piano. Other numbers will be overture from Euristeo by Johann Adolf Hanse; Concerto Grosso No. 6, by Pietro Locatelli, and Mozart Divertimento, No. 15. Oscar Del Bianco is the conductor.

Fire Causes $2,500 Damage to Store

Fire, of undetermined origin, caused $2,500 damage to the millinery store of Samuel L. Goldston at 1406 Carson street early today. The blaze started in the rear of the first floor of the two-story brick building, police said.

Screen Shows Coronation

All speed records were broken by Hearst Metrotone News in bringing to the screen sound motion pictures of the enthronement of Henry Pu Yi as Emperor of Manchukuo. The historical pictorial record is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, 12 days after the former boy emperor of China was crowned ruler of the new nation, created by the Japanese. The Globe Trotter graphically describes the scenes.

William Randolph Hearst, noted publisher, is seen and heard as he delivers a radio address to the nation from Los Angeles on recovery policies. Among other things Mr. Hearst declares:

"All that need be done by the government is to protect the public from the plunderers, the parasites and the politicians, and business will take care of itself and of the country, too."

Colonel Lindbergh is seen in Washington with Secretary of War Dern where he went on the secretary's invitation to discuss air mail problems.

Sylvester Harris, the negro farmer of Columbus, Mississippi, who appealed to President Roosevelt by telephone to save his home from foreclosure, tells all about it. He is positive that Mr. Roosevelt "is the finest president we ever had."

America's first streamline train visits Boulder Dam.

NOTE—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

"Regular" pain is out. So is even discomfort at this time. That's a fact, and it's just too bad for the girl who hasn't learned how she can keep her dates, and keep comfortable.

Just watch the calendar. Before your time, take a Midol tablet and drink a glass of water, and you may escape the expected pain entirely. If not, a second tablet should relieve it in seven to ten minutes. That is how rapidly this remedy works, and Midol relieves even those who have always had a difficult time. Relief is such that two tablets should see you through the worst day. Yet they contain no narcotic, nothing injurious. They're as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. But don't be fooled by ordinary pain tablets offered as a specific for such suffering! Midol is a special medicine, for this special purpose. Your druggist has it on the counter—or just ask for Midol.

Physicians Warn Against Irritating Drugs

Do you know that there's a common ailment generally referred to by physicians as "cathartic constipation"?

Medicine-laxatives cause it. Most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract—an unnatural method.

Soon the intestinal muscles refuse to respond to an ordinary dose . . . compel you to take more and more. Before you know it, the laxative-constipation habit has you in its grip!

Nature Demands a Flush
(The Water Way)

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. That's because the proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—promptly opens the pylorus valve leading from the stomach, permitting the flush to enter the intestines and complete its work without anxious hours of waiting.

Shake off Asthenia!

If you feel achy, listless, only half-alive, that is nature's warning of Asthenia—a condition usually caused by the poisons of constipation. The famous ten-day Pluto Water treatment ends it promptly—makes you feel like a different person.

DEFEAT OF DUQUESNE ASSURES NEW SCHOOL CHAMP

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Veteran Scoffs at Time. Remarkable Grid Record. Titans Floor Standouts.

Can you imagine a major league baseball club without a solitary left-hand thrower in its ranks in any department? The distinction of having produced the first modern outfit of that kind, if not the first of all time, will go to Connie Mack in his reconstruction of the A's this year if a certain recruit now on trial fails to stick with the team. Attention already has been called to the fact that there isn't a southpaw pitcher on the Mackian staff since the sale of Bob Grove and Rube Walberg. That, in itself, is unusual, though the Yankees won a pennant in 1922 without using a left-hand slabman at any time; the Cubs copped a flag in 1932 though employing fork-handers only in relief roles, and the Indians went through three seasons without a south-side mound starter.

Connie Mack

But the A's this year don't stop at the hurling division. On the entire roster there is only one left-hand thrower in any branch, the lone southpaw among 29 players being Raymond Radcliffe, a young outfielder purchased last November from St. Paul in the American Association. Counting three pitchers, there are seven A's who bat left-handed, but only Radcliffe throws from the port side. Radcliffe is rated a good prospect, but that he will have a chance to win a regular outfield berth again such opposition as Lou Finney, Roger Cramer, Ed Coleman and Bob Johnson, not counting the veteran Bing Miller, is considered doubtful, so unless the newcomer manages to hang on as an extra, Mack will go into the pennant race with a 100 per cent right-hand throwing club.

KID FIRST-SACKER MAKES DODGERS STARE

While the various major league clubs are boasting of their spring finds, perhaps a little prematurely in many cases, the Dodgers claim to have one of the greatest surprises among all the rookies of the year in the person of Johnny McCarthy, a kid first-baseman from the sandlots of Chicago.

According to camp reports, no other Brooklyn newcomer in 15 years has shown anything close to the amazing fielding skill or rare throwing ability of McCarthy. Strangely enough, McCarthy never has played a professional game of ball, and as the rules require a non-collegian to have a minor league connection before entering the majors he was first signed to a contract to play this year for the Dayton club, which is a Brooklyn farm. The only thing in doubt is his hitting, but that happens to be a fairly important item which has represented the difference between success and failure for many a recruit.

RICE BIDS FOR OUTFIELD BERTH AT 44

Not all of the commotion in the baseball training camps is being caused by the newcomers to the big show. There's old Sam Rice, for example. The record books give Rice's age as 42, but it is said that actually he is 44. Despite his age and his 19 years of service in the majors, however, Sam is featuring the Cleveland club's workouts in New Orleans, and Walter Johnson is shaking hands with himself for his good judgment in grabbing the veteran when Washington cast him adrift. Rice believes he can win a regular job in the Indian outfield and many of his new teammates agree with him. Even if Sam fails in that respect, Manager Johnson is confident he will be a valuable addition to the Tribe for pinch-hitting and utility garden purposes.

Sam Rice

Another old-timer who was thought to have passed out of the majors for good when turned loose during the winter has come back. He is Muddy Ruel, veteran catcher, who saw service with the Browns, Yankees, Red Sox, Senators and Tigers. When Mervyn Shea was stricken ill the White Sox decided they could use Ruel, and he reported in camp at Pasadena this week and signed a contract.

DOBIE'S ELEVENS BEATEN ONLY 25 TIMES

The achievements of Gil Dobie are not to be passed up lightly when the great coaching records in football are before the house. In recent years at Cornell, Dobie has been handicaped by a scarcity of the giant players so essential to the success of his favorite power system, but George Trevor's resume of his career shows that in 32 years of coaching, Gil has produced teams that won 211 games and lost only 25, for the remarkable percentage of .894.

At the University of Washington, Dobie's elevens were undefeated over a stretch of nine seasons. His Navy team of 1919 beat Army, which doesn't happen often, and his Cornell steam-rollers of 1921 22-23 never tasted defeat. And Dobie depends less heavily on assistants than any contemporary coach with the possible exception of Lou Little. Gil is an expert at line coaching as well as at developing smooth ball-handling combinations in the backfield. Trevor thinks Dobie's hardest job next season will be the replacing of the graduating Johnny Ferraro, the latest in a long succession of brilliant Cornell backs that started with Osgood and ran down through Schoellkopf, Whiting, Starbuck, Ohl, Walder, Barrett, Kaw, Pfann and Viviano.

WESTMINSTER LONG STANDOUT ON COURT

That Westminster College won 22 out of 26 games during the late floor season is a notable record in itself, and one that puts the New Wilmington school high in anybody's rankings, but that's only a small part of the story. Coach Johnny Lawther's boys were only maintaining a lofty standard they set in the long ago, and that has been upheld with a consistency that places to Westminster's credit a record comparable to the best boasted by any college in the country.

John Lawther

The Titan record for the last eight years shows the remarkable total of 126 victories out of 151 games played. That spells a percentage of .834, and an average of 15.75 victories per season against 3.12 defeats. This year's team won the Tri-State Conference championship with 10 victories and no defeats, making the sixth league championship in eight seasons for the Lawthermen, who also have won four Pittsburgh district titles in the same period. And the opposition has been strong and varied, representative of seven states. In eight seasons the Titans have played teams from New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, besides leading quintets of various sections of Pennsylvania. Pitt, Duquesne, Carnegie Tech, Washington and Jefferson, College of the City of New York, St. John's University of Brooklyn, and many other prominent fives have been met at least once in recent seasons. Westminster and New Wilmington must be printed in capital letters on any college basketball map.

The race for top honors in the City Amateur Hockey League is deadlocked once again, with the Morgans and Pirates riding the crest with eight victories and two defeats apiece.

The tie was effected last night as the Pirates defeated the Red Ravens, 3 to 2, in one game of the double header at Duquesne Garden. In the second tilt, the Carnegie Tech skaters made a stand against the Webers, holding the third-place team to a 4-1 score.

The Pirates took things comparatively easy against the Ravens. They scored once in the first period, as did the Ravens' accounted for five more in the second and three in the final. The Ravens picked up their second goal in the second stanza. Davies and McGill each tallied two goals.

The Webers-Tech battle went through the first period without a score. In the second, the Webers tallied three times to Tech's once and the victors added a fourth goal in the final period. The lineups:

SEIFERT SCORES COURT UPSET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Resumption of quarter-final tussling features today's bill in both the city class A squash racquets title tourney at the Keystone Athletic Club and the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior handball championship affair at the Y. M. H. A.

The high spot of the squash card brings together Henry Baxter, Harvard star, and Bill Bickel, rangy home product in an all-Keystone seance certain to offer excellent pyrotechnics. In the only other bracket-of-eight encasement still remaining, Charley Farah, veteran Keystoner, and fourth of the chosen quarter entrees, Joe Oliver, Pittsburgh Golf Club aspirant.

Ed Seifert yesterday spiked the dope and incidentally gained vengeance for defeat in the Pittsburgh Golf Club invitational by eliminating Dr. Dale O'Loughlin, hard-hitting P. A. A. contender, 15-12, 17-16, 15-9. Meanwhile City Champion McCook

BRIDGERS EARN RIGHT TO PLAY KEN HIGH

By JULIUS LEVIN

Ambridge High School, champion of Section IV, and New Kensington High School, champion of Section I, will battle Saturday night in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion for the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship and the right to represent District VII in the P. I. A. A. eliminations for the state crown.

This setup was established last night when the Bridgers, coached by Moe Rubenstein, dethroned the defending champions of the league, the Duquesne High Steelers, of Section VII, and coached by Ray Henry, in the second semi-final contest, 27 to 18. An almost capacity crowd saw the struggle.

As a result of its well-earned triumph, Ambridge obtained revenge for the setback it received at the hands of the same quintet in the semi-finals of the tournament last year on the same court. The score of last year's battle was 30 to 21, with Duquesne on the long end.

STEELERS MISS SHOTS

The Duquesne team, pre-tournament favorite to repeat in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations and essaying to be the first school to carry off the laurels for the third time, discovered in last night's duel that victories are paid off in field goals.

The Steelers, getting the majority of the tapoffs at the center post, electrified the crowd by unleashing a passing attack that enabled them to keep possession of the ball during the greater portion of the first half but once they let fire for the baskets it was entirely a different story.

Duquesne's smooth-working floor machine had no trouble working the ball under the hoop in the early stages of the game, but all their speedy and accurate passes went for naught as shot after shot either hit the rim of the basket and fell out or missed the mark entirely.

BRIDGERS GET RANGE

While not displaying the same finesse in their passing attack, the Bridgers bore out the old axiom of basketball that "the team that scores the most points is the winner." The Rubenstein quintet, using the ever-dependable Johnny Michelosen at forward, and the capable Mike Winne, shifty guard, as battering rams gradually broke through the Henry defense to pile up sufficient points to assure victory. Michelosen and Winne took care of the floor work, while Drago, Michelosen's running mate at forward, contributed eight points, represented by three field goals and two fouls.

Despite the fact that Duquesne had possession of the ball most of the first quarter, Ambridge finished on the long end of a 9-4 score at the sound of the first gun.

Starting the second quarter, Ambridge pulled away to a 15-4 lead before Krenitsky scored a field goal for Duquesne. Winne came through with two baskets and Michelosen shot one to add six points to the Ambridge total. At this point Coach Henry replaced both of his starting forwards by injecting Drotar and Madar.

STEELERS STAGE RALLY

Duquesne flashed its best form at the start of the third period. Wisbar and Kocheran started the Duquesne supporters cheering with field goals in rapid succession, but Michelosen helped offset this rally

Hyatt Leads Team To Quarter-Finals

KANSAS CITY, March 15.—(AP.)—With one of the leading favorites in the discard, three Western contenders, from San Francisco, Denver and Laramie, Wyo., and five Missouri Valley League teams play the quarter-finals of the A. A. U. national basketball tournament tonight.

LARRY FRENCH, CHAGNON SET TO PITCH

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 15.—The second camp game of the Pittsburgh Pirates' training campaign was on the books for today, and the general excitement attending the renewal of hostilities between the Regulars and Yanigans figured to remove from the minds of some of the rookies thoughts of the fast-approaching "ax."

Larry French has been nominated by Manager Gibson to start the hurling for the Yans, with Leon Chagnon on the slab for the Regs.

Yesterday's scheduled camp game was canceled in order that the Regulars might have two long sessions of batting practice. During one of them Cy Blanton made his debut on the mound and impressed Gibby and the coaches. Blanton may pitch in tomorrow's final camp game or one of the early exhibition contests in Riverside or Los Angeles. A sore arm has held him back.

Ray Brubaker, manager of the Oakland club, was in Paso Robles yesterday to land some of the Pirate rookies. No cuts will be made for some time, however, Gibson said. Brubaker would like to have Larry Lavagetto, young second baseman back with him for another season.

Lavagetto has shown up very well in the drills to date, but Manager Gibson is not certain whether he is ready for fast company yet. He will accompany the Buccos on their exhibition tour. Larry Johnson, the husky southpaw, bought from the Missions, of the Pacific Coast League, has failed to make any too deep an impression and may go back for further seasoning.

Two young California pitchers who have been working out with the Pirates disappeared yesterday. They are Jake Ackerman and Les Balangero, who had been taken on for batting practice. They mysteriously left the Pirates' Hotel and it is believed they returned home to Oakland.

SOUVENIR OF FIGHT . . STUB OF A TICKET

JACK DILLON IN HIS PRIME

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Twenty-two years ago—come Friday of next week—was a memorable day in the life and battles of Braddock's Frank Klaus. He was on the high way to winning the middleweight boxing championship of the world, and that day his opponent was Jack Dillon, the Hoosier Giant Killer, from Indianapolis, who, singularly, had done much of his early developing right here in Pittsburgh, where he boxed regularly in the old Market House under the management of the late Roy Schooley.

It was one of the roughest fights ever staged anywhere. Dillon was the offender in the beginning and at one stage Referee Jack Welch halted the battle and declared Klaus the winner on a foul, but Klaus didn't want to win that way. He begged the official to permit the bout to continue, and he turned in and proceeded to give Dillon some of his own medicine. Gouging, heeling, elbowing and kicking—everything—went.

STUB RECALLS BATTLE

The date was March 23, 1912, and Klaus' recollection of the event, fought in the afternoon, recently was refreshed by a ticket stub for the fight sent to him by an old friend, John Flammer, a former boxing manager, who in his time handled Frankie Farren, one of the star lightweights of the Coast, and many other notables.

Stanley Ketchel had been assassinated in 1910 while he was middleweight champion and there had been a scramble among contenders to claim the title. Among the aspirants to the ermine were Billy Papke, who had fought two great battles with Ketchel; Klaus, Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons. In 1911 Papke was generally recognized as the champion, and two years later Klaus defeated him on a foul in 15 rounds in Paris and became the recognized titleholder.

BEATS CARPENTIER, PAPKE

Prior to this match, Klaus had beaten Georges Carpentier, the European middleweight champion, in 19 rounds in Paris. The result of this bout is entered into the records as a victory on a foul for Klaus, because the late Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier, hopped into the ring while his man was being counted out. As a matter of fact, according to Klaus, it really was a technical knockout, the referee's toll being halted when Descamps entered the ring.

After this bout, Papke's manager began to set up a cry that Klaus really was not the American champion and therefore could not fight Carpentier in an elimination to determine the world champion. The match with Papke resulted with the aforementioned ending in favor of Klaus.

Now those glamorous days are only a memory, but Klaus still is with us, hale and hearty, managing boxers and getting a thrill now and then as he looks back on those colorful incidents in his career.

A few years ago, he went to Florida to take in a heavyweight fight and ran across Dillon, crippled and in poor health, operating a road house. They chatted about old times, the feud of that afternoon in 1912 forgotten through the mellowing years.

Chicago Ribbons	2	3	57	63	4
Chicago Sox	2	2	45	37	4
Detroit	1	3	38	53	2

By CARL W. SHATTO

Albert Vincent, star forward, will be back in the Yellow Jackets' lineup when they meet the Chicago Blue Ribbons in an American and International Lacrosse Association game at Motor Square Garden tonight. Vincent, who was the individual scoring leader of the local team at the time of his departure, and who since has been passed by Harry LaFrance, was called to his home in Montreal about a fortnight ago because of the illness of his wife.

The Ribbons, who arrived here yesterday in time to work out on the Garden court, are likely to provide tougher opposition than they did in recent appearances here. They have been strengthened through a deal in which they obtained Smith and Van Avery, former Buffalo stars, from Detroit and the Jackets are likely to need the additional offensive power which Vincent's return to the lineup is certain to provide.

Tonight's game originally was billed for Saturday, but the card was changed because of other activities at the Garden.

A few more triumphs for the locals will doom their rivals' hopes of forcing Pittsburgh to participate in a post-season playoff series for the association title. The Jackets won the first half laurels, and have stretched their lead in the second half race to such proportions that they appear destined to annex the crown without the formality of a playoff. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Chicago.
Cordick	g	MacArthur
Core	d	Sanderson
N. Langevin	d	Van Avery
McLean	c	Kingdon
Jennings	f	Barron
Vincent	f	Baldwin

Pittsburgh spares—P. Langevin, LaFrance, Silk, Boulianne, L. Heureux. Chicago spares—Smith, Hatton, Stephenson, Bain, White, Braden.

LOCAL SANDLOT LOOP SET TO CLOSE ROSTER

By TOM BIRKS

The Pittsburgh Independent Baseball League has its third and what is scheduled to be its final organization meeting of the season scheduled for tonight at 936 James street, Wilkinsburg. The confab is slated to get under way at 8:30.

Secretary Tom Martin is authority for the statement that seven clubs already have posted their forfeits and that this lineup of teams will pass upon the eighth club tonight. The teams already in the fold include Wilkinsburg, Mellon-Stuart, Turtle Creek, Swissvale, Homewood Alders, McKeesport and Whitaker, with Verona, Parmalee and the Ollie Carnegie Hays club applying for the vacant berth.

The City League officials failed to name the sixth club to complete the roster last night at the Hotel Henry. The absence of the Brentwood club representative prevented a vote by the managers.

The Twenty-fourth Ward club, Wilkinsburg, Mt. Oliver Business Men's Club and the Pittsburgh Independents are seeking the sixth franchise.

President Sweeney announced that another meeting will be held next Wednesday night at the same place.

The Steelers rallied again at the outset of the closing stanza when Wisbar made a foul and followed this shot by bagging a field goal to reduce the deficit to five points, 23-18, but that finished the Duquesne scoring.

The defeat of the Steelers marked only the third for them in W. P. I. A. L. elimination games in nine years. They have won 20 of the playoffs in the same period of time. During the last nine years they have been a finalist five times, winning the title in 1928 and 1933.

PITT, DUKES WIN IN FINALES

W. & J. BEATEN; PANTHERS TOP RESERVE

By JESS CARVER

Whatever it is that tolls the knell of departing college basketball seasons hereabout has tolled. For want of something better, it was the swish, swish and plop, ploy of field goals as the Dukes rang down the local curtain by smothering Wash-Jeff on the Bluff gym court under a 73-to-34 count.

Coach Chick Davies, himself completing his tenth season as head coach of the Dukes, paraded seven of his eight graduating stars and his two most promising holdovers. Each of the nine players broke into the scoring column, Audley Davies, young brother of the coach, sinking a foul to make it a perfect evening just as the game ended.

Much to the surprise of everyone, including, no doubt, themselves, the Presidents actually stepped off to a 7-0 lead, but Paul Birch opened fire and in about the time it takes to tell it, the Dukes were ahead by 8 to 7 and thereafter never were headed. They were out in front at the half, 36 to 16.

BIRCH LEADS SCORERS

Birch led in the scoring with six field goals and two fouls, a total of 14 points. This total was matched by Bradle, Wash-Jeff's forward-center, who accounted for five goals from the floor and four fouls.

The graduating stars, Art Feldman, Dudey Moore, Jim MacDougall, Irv Brenner, Marty Reiter, Audley Davies and Joe Zerilla, were accorded rousing ovations as they left the floor. The victory was Duquesne's nineteenth out of 21 starts for the season.

In a preliminary the Duquesne freshmen walloped the President yearlings, 41 to 13. The lineups:

W. & J. SEEKS GAME

The Pitt and Wash-Jeff football game in 1935 may be played in Washington, Pa. Wash-Jeff officials are anxious to bring the Panthers to Washington and Pitt athletic heads are favorably inclined to the suggestion.

W. Don Harrison, Pitt's athletic director, who is in Washington arguing with the United States Senate over the matter of the 10 per cent tax on college admissions, said he'd nothing to say at present regarding a Pitt-Fordham game in New York in 1935.

It has been learned on good authority by this department that the game is "in," however, and that there is a possibility of a three-game series being arranged.

PITT BEATS W. RESERVE

CLEVELAND, March 15 — Any championship claims that the University of Pittsburgh's basketball varsity may want to make will be eagerly seconded by Western Reserve.

The Golden Panthers, playing in fine form, trounced the Reserve Red Cats here last night, 40 to 29, to pull up on even terms with the locals in the four games played since 1929. Led by the offensive and defensive work of Pete Noon and Skippy Hughes, the Panthers had little difficulty in stopping the Red Cats. Had they been more accurate at the foul line, their advantage would have been much greater. They popped 17 field goals to nine for the Red Cats, but bagged only six fouls against 11 for Reserve.

NOON, W. HUGHES STAR

Noon, substitute Pitt center, performing in the absence of Claire Cribbs, hailed as the best center in the game, effectively stopped Pontius, Reserve's lanky pivot man who has been averaging 20 points per game. Hughes bagged five field goals. Noon had four, Roderick three, Ochenhirt two and McCamant and Wainio and Charley Hughes one each. Pitt led at the half, 17 to 11.

The victory was Pitt's eighteenth of the season out of 21 played on one of the most strenuous and representative schedules attempted by any college team in the country. It completed the Panthers' regular campaign, although they will play three and possibly four games on an Easter vacation trip into the South. The lineup:

TENNIS TITANS CLASH TODAY

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—The tennis titans of America, Lester Stoefen, avowed aspirant for the Davis Cup team, and Frand X. Shields, who is regarded as a certain internationalist, meet in the Seventh Regiment Armory today in the outstanding semi-final match of the national indoor championships.

The champion for the past two years, Gregory S. Mangin, went up against Sidney B. Wood, Jr., fair-haired Davis Cup player for several years, in the other semi-final encounter.

Shields, who measures six feet three inches from head to foot, played superbly yesterday against Dr. Eugene H. McCauliff. Stoefen, an inch taller, gave a masterful exhibition against George M. Lott, Jr., veteran Davis Cup doubles player.

Shields and Stoefen met for the first time last year at Hot Springs on clay courts. Shields won in four sets.

Beckman Enters Six-Day Race Here

Tony Beckman, the Jersey "pig farmer," who holds victories in both the New York and Chicago six-day bike races, has signed for participation in Pittsburgh's first international six-day bicycle race, starting Sunday midnight, March 25, at Duquesne Garden.

Beckman reported to Willie Spencer, director of racing for the local event, that he is in perfect condition for the 144-hour grind here. Spencer said that he expects many others prominent in the cycling world to enter within the next few days. Piet Van Kempen, of The Hague, world champion; Jules Audy, of Montreal, and Reggie McNamara, 48-year-old veteran of the pine saucers, already have signed.

CONFIDENCE ALONE CAN AID TRADE

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

Some at Washington don't seem to have grasped and digested that economic fact — perhaps for the reason that they never have had the responsibility of filling pay envelopes.

Unless they do get this A B C truth into their heads they may precipitate trouble. And haven't we trouble enough without gratuitously generating more?

How can more money become available for pay envelopes? You may reply:

"By doing more business."

But how can more business be developed?

Not by official fiats which unsettle, disturb and demoralize business and financial sentiment, or by attempts to enact unsettling legislation.

To create more business and more pay and more pay envelopes, confidenc must be created.

Nothing else will work.

Washingtonians can play a greater part than any other group in the whole land in building up or tearing down confidence.

Their statesmanship will be measured ultimately by results.

Let each and every one of them note, ponder and master that indisputable, vital fact.

And, of course, there devolves upon all of us the duty of extending to Washington every feasible co-operation, even at the cost of considerable self-sacrifice.

This glorious young, virile, wealthy, energetic, ambitious country contains everything needed to re-establish prosperity except confidence.

It can and should be and will be restored if all classes work together, sympathetically, in harmony.

REQUESTS HAVE come from all quarters to reprint what was recently said in this column on salesmen and salesmanship. But one newspaper, the New York News Record, prints a lengthy commend captioned, "Salesmen are so suasive they sell themselves gold bricks." Extracts:

"Salesmen are good fellows, but they have a terrible habit of hypnotizing themselves, and Forbes is encouraging them to do it again. Things are always going to be just great with the salesmen. And, because they insist on dodging realities, they are hard on themselves and other people.

"Salesmanic enthusiasm is worse than dipsomania. Forbes does well to encourage the salesmen now in the field, but to encourage salesmen to think they are the keymen is a little tough on the salesmen."

Wonder how long the writer of that article or the paper printing it would make ends meet if all salesmen were abolished?

MUCH MORE sensible is the action being taken by the National Cash Register Company. An executive tells me:

"For some years our company has conducted a summer school at headquarters in Dayton, where salesmen and managers are regularly brought in and the latest in merchandising taught them. The men have lived in tents.

"This plan has worked out so successfully that the company is now erecting permanent building—a small sales university. Into this school are brought not only new men, but seasoned salesmen and managers who have been in the business as long as thirty-five years."

THE HEAD of America's largest copper and brass enterprise observed to me:

"Business with us is decidedly better. Domestic shipments of copper and brass commodities from our manufacturing plants have increased this year about sixty per cent over a year ago, and are running forty per cent of the 1929 average. The demand for copper in foreign markets has been maintained."

Encouraging.

Shippers Predict Gain In Freight Traffic

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

SHIPPERS OF FREIGHT in this district expect business in the second quarter of the year to be 9.1 per cent in excess of the corresponding period of last year.

This estimate was made public today at the quarterly meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board at the Hotel Schenley. The meeting was attended by more than 300 shippers, receivers and producers of commodities transported by rail in Pittsburgh and the surrounding territory.

The forecast is based on the estimates of car requirements which members of the board furnish to the car service division of the American Railway Association.

Steel to Show Traffic Gain

AN INCREASE of 5.8 per cent predicted in iron and steel traffic. The greatest gain in this industry is expected in castings, makers of which anticipate an increase of 49.1 per cent. A gain of 11 per cent is expected in tin plate.

Shippers of coal and coke predicted a gain of 9.5 per cent. A sharp gain in demand for machinery is expected. This industry plans to ship 34 per cent more than a year ago.

In brick and clay products an increase of 14 per cent is predicted and in gravel, sand and stone a gain of 10 per cent.

Out of the 37 classifications of commodities covered by the estimates only six show anticipated declines. In addition declines were predicted in two sub-classifications but in these cases the estimates for the entire industries showed that increases were expected.

U. S. STEEL MEN O. K. VOTE PLAN

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Employes of United States Steel Corporation subsidiary plants have adopted "by overwhelming majorities" a revised employes' representation plan, Iron Age said today. The new arrangement was voted at the recent employe elections.

Among the new features of the plan, the publication stated, is a recall clause, which provides that a representative may be recalled by a two-thirds majority vote by secret ballot of the voters in his department or unit.

The recall election, according to the publication, is to take place only after a petition stating reasons for recall has been signed by two-thirds of the voters in the unit. The clause covering the duration of the plan binds the management to accept it in perpetuity but permits employes to terminate it by majority vote at any annual election.

The old plan, Iron Age said, specified that it would remain in force for the duration of the National Industrial Recovery Act and might be terminated thereafter by the management or a majority of the employe representatives on three months' notice.

R. F. C. Municipal Loans Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The RFC would be authorized to make loans to municipalities, counties, school districts, road districts or other political subdivisions at a 4 per cent interest rate under a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Trammell, (Dem.), Fla. The RFC would be authorized to increase its debenture issues by $750,000,000 to meet the demand for such loans.

Government to Speed Spending Program

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Old Man Weather is one of the principal factors in the Treasury's borrowing April 15.

The middle of next month $1,000,000,000 in 4¼ per cent Fourth Liberty Bonds mature, having been called by the Treasury.

Officials explained today that if weather conditions were favorable for outdoor work and an opening up of the government's recovery activities it would be likely that probably a billion dollars in addition to the Liberty bond maturities would be authorized.

The government at the present time is about a billion dollars behind in its recovery spending program. Officials expressed the belief that this amount could be made up before the end of the fiscal year. They anticipated that opening up of spring would mean that the administration could speed up the spending program.

In order to keep up with the budget estimates, the government must spend more than six billion dollars in the next three and a half months. The general belief prevailed that it would be virtually impossible to disburse this enormous amount of money in such a short length of time.

Provided it is determined that the remaining six billion of the more than ten billion originally estimated for this year cannot be spent before June 30, the remainder will be carried over to the 1935 fiscal year.

Through the first 12 days of March the government had emergency expenditures of $2,578,315,580. Under the original program this expenditure would have been close to $3,500,000,000. In the view of several government experts this difference may be made up before the end of the fiscal year by exceeding the allotment for April, May and June. Officials took the attitude that the faster the money can be spent the greater will be the effect on the return of prosperous conditions.

STOCKS MOVE DOWN IN DULL TRADING

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Stocks had few friends today and prices generally sagged in trading that was even duller than that of the previous session.

Weakness of the non-ferrous metal issues was an unsettling element following word that the administration was not disposed to do anything more for silver at this time. Other Washington developments continued to hold the attention of the speculative fraternity.

Most commodities were hesitant and silver futures dropped nearly 2 cents an ounce. Grains and cotton eased, but rubber again registered improvement. Bonds were not quite so enthusiastic as in previous sessions.

The automobile labor hearings at the capital were not entirely reassuring to the financial district and few commentators ventured to predict the outcome.

The statement of President Green of the A. F. L., that the country was "facing one of the greatest strikes in the history of the automobile business" because of the "disregard of employers of the NRA and collective bargaining" did not tend to revive brokerage house sentiment.

That the higher wages-shorter hours campaign was taking hold was indicated by the announcement of Executive Vice President Knudsen, of General Motors, that the company would reduce working time from 40 to 36 hours and raise pay correspondingly.

Much interest was expressed in the statement of Secretary Morgenthau that "so long as conditions are improving" he could see no reason for taking further action on silver. He was further quoted as saying "I still have to be shown that silver alone is a cure-all." If something went radically wrong, he added, "and we went into a nose-dive, we could get busy; but as long as things get better each week we are going to sit tight."

Advices to the effect that work on whipping the stock exchange control bill into shap was progressing, and that the President had reiterated his desire to have the measure passed this session, apparently were a secondary market influence.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Chickie came softly and stood at Pippin's side. The fishing boats looked small and pitifully brave. Far out the breakers leaped.

"You didn't send him away sad, dear?"

"I tried not to, Mother, do you always, always forget yourself for others?"

"Why do you say a thing like that?"

'Oh, I don't know. I guess I sort of love you. Bill's awfully dear, mother. He's rather fine, I think."

"But you don't love him?"

"Am I old enough to know real love?"

"Nearly 18. I think you're old enough to feel anything, Pippin."

"Then I love Bill—but not the way you mean. It's more a feeling like I have for Jon. And gee, I'd die if anything happened to Jon. I wish he were here. It was cruel to send him away, mother. I miss him. So many things we always had to talk about.

"Won't I do, Pippin?"

She turned unexpectedly and kissed her mother's lips.

But she grew quiet after Bill was gone. She studied savagely. Saturday after Saturday she refused dates.

"Why, I thought you wanted a hundred hearts so you could love them all, Pippin?"

"I got tired of the night life, mother. I'm going to study the rest of the year so that I get A grades in everything."

"But you don't laugh as you used to. You don't sing any more."

"I'm a little worried with all these examinations confronting me."

Wants to Be Alone

Again and again Chickie tried to break through that hard, young reserve. She was used to the girl's sudden changes of mood.

"Perhaps she is now deciding that the right life is to become a nun."

"I'm sure it's a man-hating fever," David answered. "I seem to be rather singled out for neglect."

That bit deepest of all into Chickie's heart. Pippin was no longer coquetting with her father. She didn't date him up for her Saturday afternoons as she used to do, chumming off to the laboratory to get expert collaboration on her science problems. No longer bobbing like a gay golden flower at a proud David's side.

Long before he took it seriously, Chickie besieged her daughter, now with soft pleading, now with indignation:

"Pippin, darling, what has come over you? You hardly spoke to your father this morning. You're not like yourself at all. Aren't you happy in this home?"

"Of course I am. Don't be silly. I'm just studying hard. Just kind of want to be left alone."

That was as far as Chickie got. She saw, almost with heartbreak, that the girl's radiance was dimmed.

Present From Dadee

The younger brothers were troubled by this hard, brooding Pippin. They tried to bring her out.

One day she found a snuggly white Persian purring on her best chair. It was a silky, playful creature with a cunning face and lovely sea-blue eyes. Pippin held it against her cheek, happy and intrigued. She ran to Dadee's room. He was growing so tall now—quiet, but with his father's deep, hidden mirth in his eyes.

"Did you put him in my room?"

"Yeah. Want him? He's the best of the lot and he's got swell manners."

"You mean I can have him for keeps?"

"Yes, if you let him sleep on that blue cushion. He looks keen there. He's pure Persian."

"Why are you giving him to me?"

"Just thought you'd like him. They're lots of fun to play with and it's too bad you haven't fellows any more."

Pippin hid her face in the long silky fur. She was so touched she almost cried.

She said quickly.

"I don't miss them, Dadee. You're lovely. Why, my goodness—soon the girls will be fighting for you."

"Humph!" said the boy, furiously red and grinning, "can have all I want of them, right now!"

Father Neglected

"You're getting to have a good nature, Pippin. You don't fight with me any more."

Another Saturday came. Pippin went with her mother to the nursery. She sewed with abnormal diligence.

There was one particular child whom Pippin loved. It was two years old now. She wanted Chickie to adopt it. When she finished her sewing she went in and played with the little girl, taking out a bright-colored ball she had brought. There was an exaggerated tenderness in her attitude.

"What's the matter, Pippin, you seem so sad?"

"It's just terrible for these poor little things to be all alone in the world, mother. Isn't life cruel?"

At dinner that night David said carelessly:

"Deserted me again, didn't you, Pippin?"

She answered, without looking at him:

"Mother needed me."

"Well, you can see something interesting if you want to trot along tonight."

"Thanks, but I have three books to read before Monday."

After dinner, as David was reaching for his coat, he said, in the chummy tones Pippin used to love:

"Aw, come on, girl! Be a sport. I want you to see these things, and I'll only keep you an hour or so. You have all day tomorrow; anybody can read three books in a day."

"These are hard books, and I've got to get 'A' in this course. Please let me off tonight, father."

Without stopping to kiss him, she went up the stairs.

He stood, shrugging into his coat, his face averted. When finally he looked up he raised his eyebrows with a quizzical:

"What's the matter with her? She's off me for something or other. Did you notice that I've achieved at last the dignity of father?"

Chickie knew he was bitterly hurt. She tried to brush it aside.

"It's just another of her moods."

Obstinate Silence

But she was terribly worried. As soon as David was gone she went up to Pippin's room. The girl was sitting on her bed, a book open in her lap, but she was staring straight ahead of her with a cold, mute anger in her eyes.

"Why did you treat your father like that, Pippin?"

"Like what?"

Chickie frowned: "I won't insult your intelligence by explaining. You know very well what I mean, and you also know that you hurt him. You acted as though you wanted to."

"Mother," said the girl, her eyes suddenly filling, "I don't know what you're talking about. I just have all this work to do and I didn't want to be pestered out of my plans. He wants me to do well at college, doesn't he?"

The following weekend she refused again. The third, David made no attempt to win her.

But just before leaving the house he went up and put his arm around her in a careless, tender way. Stooping down from his tall height, he teased:

"Don't like your old man any more, do you?"

She pulled from him, the blue eyes burning and enormous. They suddenly filled. Then Pippin said:

David looked at Chickie, his eyebrows raised, he said quietly:

"I seem to have lost my daughter."

MISSISSIPPI-TENNESSEE-KENTUCKY CAMPAIGN OF 1863—CIVIL WAR

The battle of Gettysburg, Pa. (July 1-3, 1863), a great military victory, restored faith, energy of Union on verge of collapse. Simultaneously to Gen Lee's northward thrust, stranded at Gettysburg, the Confederate Gens. B. Bragg and Van Dorne aimed to regain Tennessee, Kentucky, defended by the Union Gens. Buell, Rosecrans, Thomas, and to clear the Mississippi regions of troops of Gens. Grant and Sherman. However, Gen. Grant was victor at Vicksburg, Confederate Gen. Pemberton surrendering July 4. Thus the Union gained control of the whole Mississippi River. (The battlefronts are marked in map.)

Gen. Grant marched from Vicksburg toward Chattanooga, Tenn., and by end of October relieved the supply lines of the exhausted Union troops there. Ordering Gen. Sherman to join him from Vicksburg, he arranged a concentrated attack around Chattanooga. In bloody battles (Lookout Mountain, Gen. Hooker commanding; Missionary Ridge, Gen. Thomas commanding; between these, Gen. Sherman's actions) the Confederates were defeated and dispersed on November 25. They fled toward Virginia, and part toward Georgia. The rest of the year 1863 was spent mainly in preparations. (U. S. History)

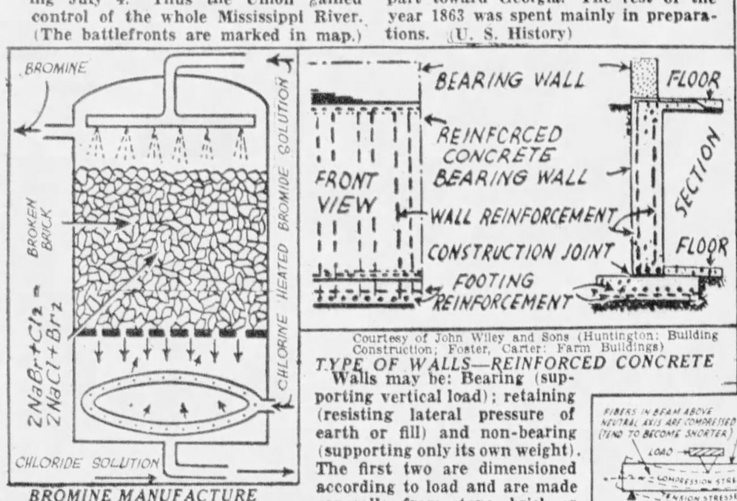
MARIE ANTOINETTE TAKEN ON HER LAST RIDE

The French Revolution (1789-1795), caused by exploitation of a liberty deprived people, turned rapidly from reformation to radicalism and reign of terror. Under leadership of Marat, Danton, Robespierre—also to perish—the mob ruled, having its greatest amusement in operating the guillotine, the unsatiable "Widow." Many thousand heads rolled into the basket with sawdust, among them those of the deposed King Louis XVI and the Queen Marie Antoinette (1793). Their little son, styled "King Louis XVII" by the Royalists, kept prisoner by a "tutor" the drunkard cobler, Simon, and similar ones, died from cruel treatment—a sacrifice for the sins of his ancestors.



BROMINE MANUFACTURE

Bromine (Br) is used in making dyes, ethyl gasoline, also photography, medicine; it is made from bromides (MgBr2,NaBr) by electrolysis or by decomposition with chlorine, which liberates bromine. Above: Heated bromine solution (from mineral wells) is introduced at top of an earthenware tower filled with broken bricks; chlorine and steam are admitted at the bottom. TYPE OF WALLS—REINFORCED CONCRETE Walls may be: Bearing (supporting vertical load); retaining (resisting lateral pressure of earth or fill) and non-bearing (supporting only its own weight). The first two are dimensioned according to load and are made generally from stone, brick or concrete.

Concrete, a mixture of cement, sand and gravel (1:2:4to1:3:6) mixed dry, then wet, poured in forms and allowed to set (3-6 weeks), is about 50 times stronger against compression (crushed by about 50,000 lbs. load a sq. in.) than against tension stresses (breaking under an elongating load of about 1,000 lbs. a sq. in). Placing steel bars before pouring into the elongating portions, the concrete is reinforced.

ICHABOD CRANE COURTING KATRINA

This delightful story of Irvin, included in his "Sketch Book" (1820), narrates the story of the schoolmaster Crane of "Sleepy Hollow" near "Tarrytown." He woos Katrina, the peerless daughter of Van Tassel. One night, pursued by a "headless" horseman, he vanishes, meeting his death or according to another report, leaves the neighborhood.

SENSE OF SMELL—SECTION THROUGH NOSE

The upper parts of the middle and superior turbinate bones in the nasal passages contain in their mucous membranes the receptors of the olfactory nerves connected by nerve fibers to the olfactory bulbs. These bulbs or pouches constitute the ends of the olfactory nerves, the first cranial nerve pair. The receptor neurons or olfactory cells (at left) terminate in hair-like processes, which respond to chemical stimuli and set up impulses in the neurons interpreted by the brain as smell.

Lower mammals have the sense of smell more developed than man. (Gen. Science) (32—III—A)

No Sailor's Life for Me

Our amateur explorers didn't do so good last winter. Ever since Frank Buck started to bring 'em in exhausted he has been envied by many wealthy sportsmen who can't bring 'em in with six pall bearers.

Many expeditions started forth in January to win fame or fortune. Or a neat, tasty blending of both. The yacht Elviry got as far as Cape Hatteras and ran into a saturated blizzard that would have liked to have sunk them.

The 37 young explorers were saved by the Coast Guard, who dusted them off and wrote to their parents. Another yacht got 200 miles out and then hung the laundry on the line upside down. This time the Coast Guard lads saved 16 wealthy lives and received a lot of fierce thanks.

The explorers were returned home safe and sound. Congress will give them diplomas for staying out all night.

All in all, the Coast Guarders rescued 11 yachting expeditions headed for Africa with busted rudders and a wild desire to succeed.

Next winter, it will save a lot of time and cable if you stay at home and have the Coast Guard visit you.

And the loneliest pastime we can think of is blowing a police whistle on a dark night in mid-Atlantic.

The animal pictures are really responsible for this rash of adventurers. Everybody wants to bite a tiger. Or neck with a boa constrictor. We prefer steady work.

Not one yacht got past the first big wave off the cape. But that didn't discourage the others. We were invited to go on one trip. But all we needed was a quick look at the boat. Its accommodations were ample and roomy. It would sleep 15 and drown 10 times that number.

The valiant expedition didn't get us, and thereby lost one of the best mouse stalkers in the world. That bunch was saved two weeks later by the Coast Guard, who are anxious for company since the bootleggers quit.

The Air Mail Problem

Congress Should Investigate, Then Legislate in The Light of the Facts.

No legislative proposals regarding American air transport or the federal air mail sponsored by those Senators whose misinformation or abysmal ignorance misled the executive branch of the government into canceling air mail contracts and sacrificing 10 of the best trained military pilots in the world are worthy of serious consideration by the Senate or the House of Representatives.

What the Senate and the House in this emergency should do is through their respective committees to find out all the facts and then legislate in the light of the facts to the end that the tragic blunders of the last 30 days shall not be repeated. This is essential if the federal air mail is to be restored to its rightful operators, the Army Air Corps to its military mission, and the question of determining guilt or innocence left where the Constitution put it—not in the executive branch, but in the federal courts.

The framers of the Federal Constitution sought by separating the government they set up into three branches—the executive, the legislative and the judicial—to establish "a government of laws and not of men."

If the federal government at Washington had been functioning in recent weeks as "a government of laws and not of men," citizens entitled to a presumption of innocence until proven guilty would not have been condemned without a hearing or punished without due process of law.

The time has come to restore in the federal city the government of the Constitution, which is "a government of laws and not of men," and the first step in that direction is for Congress to assume its constitutional responsibilities by investigating first and then legislating in the light of the facts, regarding the federal air mail.

Too many brave officers of the Army Air Corps have already been killed for Congress to take any other course.

Tax-Exempt Property

The Public Utilities Should Not Be Excused From the Real Estate Levy.

Few citizens, we dare say, except those who make a study of municipal affairs, were aware of the extent to which real estate in Allegheny County is exempt from taxation. The report of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes that property valued at more than 392 millions of dollars is tax-exempt must have been a revelation to most of us.

One reason why taxes are high is because the taxpayers have to assume the burden that is evaded by the interests that are exempted. There is no objection to the assumption of this burden so far as schools, churches, hospitals, cemeteries, civic, patriotic and philanthropic institutions are concerned; but it does go against the grain to have to pay taxes for the public utilities.

The public utilities have property in Allegheny County valued at more than 114 millions of dollars which is exempt from taxation. Yet they utilize the streets and highways, the police and fire protection and other municipal services for which taxes are levied.

The public utilities pay a state tax, to be sure; but that, in our opinion, does not justify their exemption from real estate taxes.

Originally there may have been a good reason for this exemption; but it no longer exists.

The Lake Erie Canal Plan

It Is Gratifying to Find Local Interests Active in Pushing the Project.

The improvement of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers from Rochester, Pa., to Struthers, O., as recommended by the War Department, would give Youngstown a navigable outlet to the Ohio River. Some persons argue that while this would benefit Youngstown it would not be helpful to Pittsburgh—that on the contrary by aiding a trade rival it would be harmful to our interests.

We have not been accustomed to think of Youngstown as an adversary. But even if that view should be taken, it would still be short-sighted to be hostile to a great public improvement just because it would aid a competitor.

The longer view to take of it is that if a navigable stage of water is furnished from the Ohio to Struthers the extension of the waterway to Lake Erie will become more probable.

This city has been asking for a canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie by way of Youngstown for many years. The opportunity to get it was never better, and it is gratifying to find local interests alive to the fact.

At the hearing held in Youngstown a few days ago by United States Army engineers the Lake Erie Canal project was indorsed in a resolution presented by the Pittsburgh City Council and in numerous telegrams from Pittsburgh business concerns. We hope they will not rest content, but will press on and seek influential allies.

Election Irregularities

If They Are As Extensive As Charged, It Looks Like a Plot to Cheat.

It is little short of sickening that after the recent convictions and penitentiary sentences imposed in the United States District Court for election frauds we should again hear the old, old story of the registration of "phantoms."

Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, reports that more than a hundred of approximately 900 persons whose names appear on the election rolls of the Second District of Rankin are ineligible. Some are non-residents, some are unnaturalized foreigners, some are minors, and some have been registered as living in vacant houses and lots, according to Riordan.

If the irregularities are as extensive as Riordan charges, there seems good ground for suspicion that a deliberate attempt has been made to cheat.

For Patriots

A Great Project.

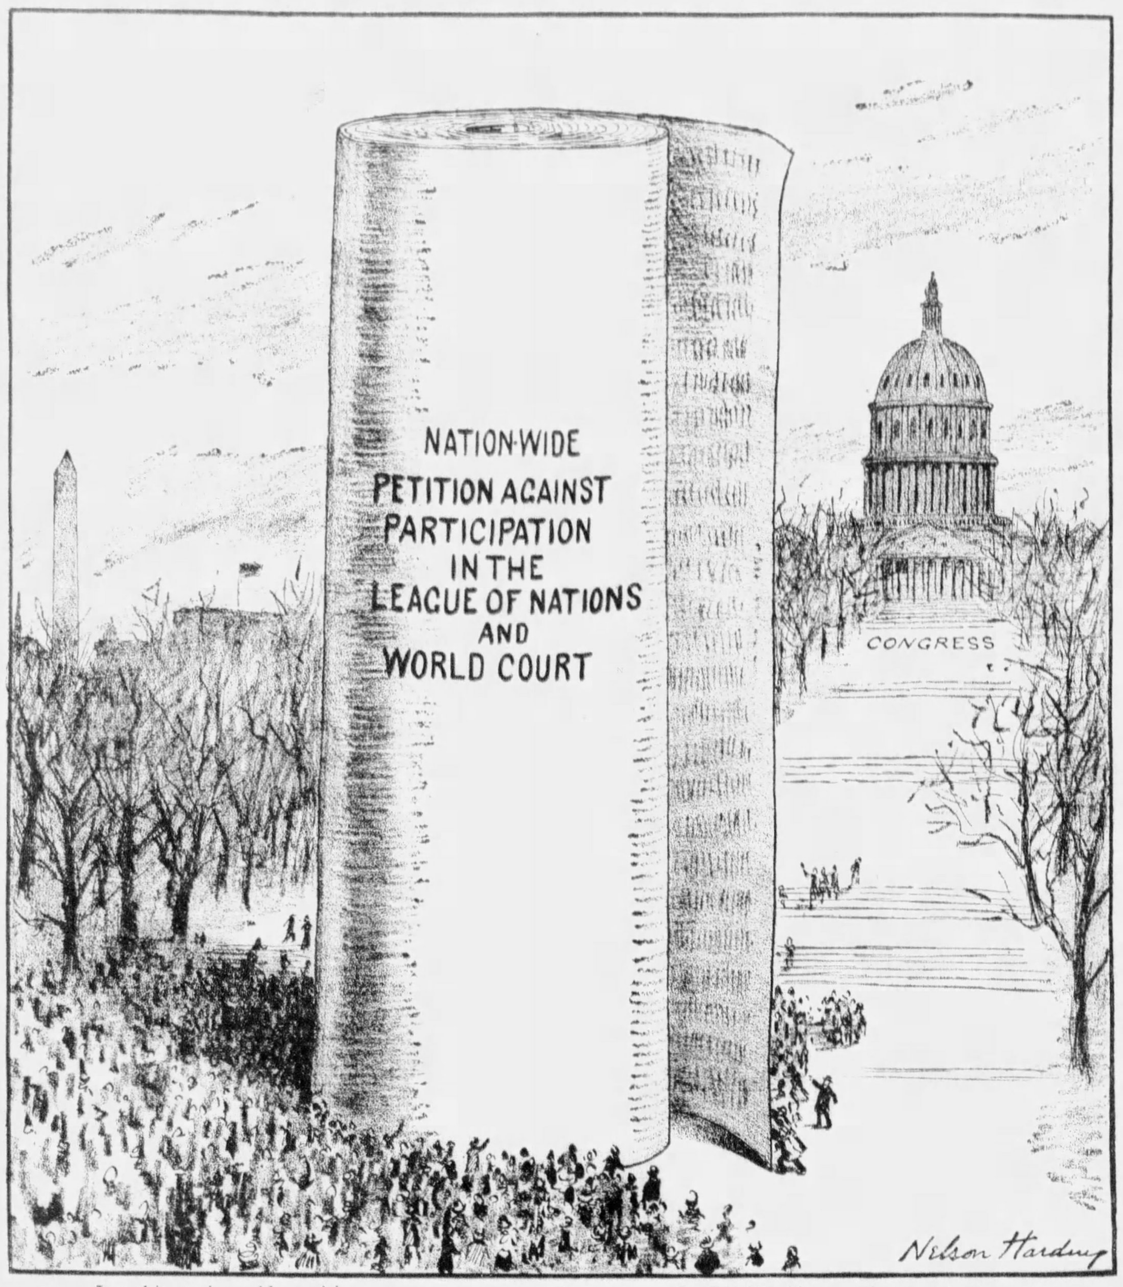
During the World War an American asked a French soldier what he was fighting for. The soldier stooped over, picked up a handful of earth, raised it to his lips and kissed it.

A similar patriotic emotion inspires the carving of episodes of our history on a great peak in the Black Hills of South Dakota. The national competition of the Hearst papers now going on for inscriptions to be cut, 13 feet high, into the rock to illustrate the nine historical episodes depicted is bound to produce splendid compact epitomes of patriotic writing.

Every man, woman and child who thrills to the great pages of our history should try to participate in the competition for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscriptions.

Make It Another Washington Monument!

By Nelson Harding



Let this nation-wide petition
This gigantic plea and protest
Of a patriotic people
Against our participation
In Old World ensnaring tangles
Be as prominent a landmark
As the monument erected
To the Father of his country.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 15.—Probably no two people have so much fun in the publishing business as Rob Wagner and his wife, Florence. Their weekly is a frothy feuilleton, riding the crest like an impudent chip, called "Script," and is turned out in Beverly chiefly for the film colony.

Started in a larkish spirit, it often skipped issues, faced a sheriff's sale, and every time it got its head above water was hit with an oar. Several times it tried honestly to quit. But someone always arrived with the pulmotor. Today it's no gold mine but pays its way and has a swell time.

Wagner was the first established writer to detail the glamour of Hollywood to the proletariat via the magazines. He is also an artist and globe trotter.

No contributor is paid on Script and subscriptions have been received back country fashion in eggs, potatoes and live hens. The roster includes Chaplin, Jim Tully, Florence Ryerson, Colins Clement, Paul Gerard Smith, Quinn Martin, the late Wilson Mizner, Cornelius Vanderbilt and oodles of such.

The hilarious Cheese Club, mildewed by depression, has flowered again for its weekly luncheon. Members are "mice" who gather off Broadway to roast one another to elegant crispness. The guest of honor may be a Prince Mike Romanoff or a Ted Healy stooge. Anybody for a laugh.

Broadway's after-theater "flower girls" are as permanent as the palisades and true to type as the Irish bus conductor. Of all femininity they are least affected by change. Middle aged and often old, they are always "girls" in shabby black dresses, cotton half gloves and jet bonnets. From their places under theater marquees, they have sold posies to women in bustles, they have seen hoops, skirts that sweep the ground and the dawn of the leg, from the hobble to the knee-high skirt. Nobody buys their wilted wares, but often drop coins. And flower girls, thrifty souls, are usually worth more than the Samaritans.

There's no longer a milling sidewalk strip where theatrical folk gather—a Rialto. Once it ranged near the old Broadway Theater below Forty-second. Later it jumped to the old Putnam Building, across from the Times, mecca of vaudeville and booking agencies. Then leaped further northward in front of the Palace, so thick a good-humored cop used to disperse them with his comic line: "Exit laughingly, boys." The Palace went continuous and they scattered to no one knows where.

Rupert Hughe's annual visit from Los Angeles is a perk for literary folk. Perhaps the best conversationalist of his period, he brings a gusto to every gathering, and upon arrival is at once the most desirable dinner guest in town. Almost totally deaf, he is a lip reader and quick at repartee. He has mellowed in the past few years, but scorn for much historical nonsense etched those acid, smiling wrinkles in his face. In appearance, Hughes has something of the detachment of the mermen, a smile of the remote brightness of a sunlit ripple. But among those he likes he is the warmest and most companionable of men.

Claremont Inn, like a huge white shell on the Hudson, sparkles with life these evenings, especially Sunday, being the only fashionable restaurant on Manhattan isle without music. The city's leasehold forbids an orchestra. It was once the home of Theodosia Burr, and the last place she was seen before her eerie vanishment.

Thingumabobs: Lucinda Reichenbach, Harry's widow, is opening a gown shop in Barcelona, Spain . . . Tom Meighan has touched off a new career, making a picture in London . . . Donn Byrne's widow is married to Byrne's lawyer and best friend and living in Ireland . . . The Ben Ali Haggins are to summer in rural Ireland . . . F. Ziegfeld's most intimate friend and confidante was Leonard Replogle, of Philadelphia . . . Brian Hooker's most famous sonnet was written to a class in Yale before which he appeared a half hour late after one of those nights in New York . . . Beverly Nichols is writing a book on American table manners . . . He must come up to see me some time!

I fell in behind a street band, with banners waving, today for the first sidewalk marching since I don't know when. But got to giggling how funny it would be to see the bass drum played by the famous international lawyer, Col. Joseph Hartfield, with his playwright friend Bob Sherwood toting the front end.

WISE WORDS

Brevity is the soul of wit.—Shakespeare.

There is no wisdom like frankness.—Disraeli.

A happy bridesmaid makes a happy bride.—Tennyson.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Are the Pious Peeved?

I do not admire Bad Pasts—nor advocate them—but they certainly seem to have their points.

Perhaps you've noticed it yourself—Theoretically, people with blemished records should be miserable, haunted creatures, at odds with life and their neighbors—regular killjoys.

And the Shining Examples should be chuckfull of peace and happiness and good will toward their fellow men. But usually it works out just the other way!

THE BAD HOMBRES ARE GENIAL AND GENEROUS—

AND THE MODEL CITIZENS SEEM TO CARRY A CHRONIC PEEVE!

Instead of radiating confidence and brotherly love, they're generally on the snoop for naughtiness and as full of suspicion and intolerance as a pup is of fleas. Instead of sitting in rapt contemplation of righteousness, they're always trying to dig up some dirt!

If I didn't know their hearts were humming with hosannas, I'd suspect they were suffering from a lot of stifled desires and unsatisfied curiosities and were taking out their grouch on every sinner that came along.

For example, observe these immaculate Old Ladies (of both sexes) who have never departed from the path of rectitude by even the teeniest, weeniest, bit of a skid—wouldn't you think they'd be all of a glow over the fact, fairly beaming to think of the temptations they passed up? But instead, just watch them when some Flippant Fluff breezes by with a bunch of Boy Friends in tow. Listen to the snorts, snaps, sneers, snarls and sniffles. Now I ask you—

Is that a defense of righteousness or a celebration over virtue . . . OR IS IT JUST A BLAST OF PURE ENVY?

If you want a loyal, generous, tolerant, understanding, jolly, Regular Guy for a friend, do you seek out some Pillar of Society with an unblemished record?

Well, maybe YOU do, stranger, but believe me, I DON'T. I've learned better. When I want a side-kick like that, I pick me a good, hard working gambler or hijacker or hobo or other general wastrel. Not that I admire vice—but it's generally a whole lot easier to get along with than virtue.

For sinners seem to have gotten it all out of their systems. They've tried everything once. They know what it's all about. They've had their conceit and their contrariness kicked out of them along with their curiosity and now they're willing to settle down and take things easy and give everyone the benefit of the doubt—

But Model Citizens are apt to be awfully picky. They've got a lot of righteousness but none of it seems to be doing them any good. Maybe they're glad they resisted temptation, but they don't look it.

THEY LOOK MORE AS IF THEY HAD AN INGROWING CASE OF SOUR GRAPES AND WERE JUST WAITING FOR AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET EVEN ON THE TOUGH, ROUGH GUYS WHO TOOK THE CHANCES THEY PASSED UP.

Human Side of the News

The American Bison, Once Threatened With Extinction, Is Now Increasing Rapidly

By Edwin C. Hill

THERE was a time, not so long ago, when among our principal concerns were the building of the Panama Canal and the preservation of the American bison from extermination. Well, we got the canal built, thanks to the great Teddy, and now we hear that the buffalo are increasing so rapidly in Canada that the Dominion authorities must destroy at least two thousand in the great Buffalo National Park, near Wainwright, in Alberta. Thousands must be destroyed every year or so, to keep the main herd well fed in the park.

Sixty or seventy years ago, the western plains were black with buffalo. Two vast herds, countless in number, millions, literally, roamed from the Rio Grande to the Canadian Northwest. Long since they had been driven west of the Mississippi by the inexorable advance of the white man and his machines and guns. But the prairies were massed with them. The gold hunters who streamed across the western plains in eighteen forty-nine could scarcely believe their eyes, for as far as they could see, in any direction, and almost every day, the buffalo herd stretched out.

Fresh Meat for Railroad Builders

ONE might almost say that our western empire was built on the bones of slaughtered buffalo, for the West was opened by the building of the trans-continental railroad, the Union Pacific, from Omaha to Ogden, and the Central Pacific, from Ogden to San Francisco. And the long Union Pacific link was made possible because fresh meat was there for the taking.

Some of the most noted of the old western scouts were hired by the Union Pacific as buffalo hunters, and William F. Cody, a dead shot, killed as many as 300 in one day. Then some organized hunting, when men went out from St. Joe, Mo., and Independence and Dodge City, equipped with great heavy Sharpe's rifles, which threw a ball as big as the end of a man's thumb. They went out with big wagons and whole crews of riflemen, and when they came to a herd they rode around it and killed until they were weary—killed for the hides alone—seldom taking any of the meat except a choice bit of the tongue. It has been said that at least two million buffalo were killed every year, for two or three years.

The hides, with their marvelous, thick fur, brought fine prices for coats, and back in the days of Presidents Grant and Hayes, and even later, it was considered quite the smart thing to have a buffalo robe coat. But overnight the great creatures disappeared. When the hunting season opened in 1884, and the hunters sallied forth as usual, the buffalo were gone. To their utter astonishment none were visible of the once mighty herds. It was a tragedy to the American Indian. The white man had taken from him everything he had—his country first; and then the beast which meant his very life, his clothing, tepee, food, tools and even sinew for sewing.

Vanishing of Bison A Blow to Indians

WHEN the buffalo went the Red Man was doomed—doomed to live on unhappily and miserably, on reservations doled out to him by the government, which had seized his hunting grounds. Buffalo Bill himself, who had killed many an Indian in the old days of the Indian wars on the plains, told this writer that it was one of the bitterest tragedies of history, this ruthless destruction of the buffalo and ruination of a whole people.

After 1884, the country woke up to the fact that the buffalo were gone, or nearly gone. Dr. William T. Hornaday, the great naturalist, who has spent a lifetime fighting for the preservation of wild animal life, great and small, and who is alive today, hale and hearty and still actively at work, in Greenwich, Conn., has told me how he went out West to seek the few remaining groups of buffalo, and found them.

In 1907 there were only about 2,000 alive, in all the country. There was a tiny herd in the Yellowstone National Park, another small herd in the Dakotas and others here and there, and Canada had a wild herd of 500 which was safe from poachers, but could not raise its young, because of wolves that ambushed the calves and ate them. But men like Dr. Hornaday and Buffalo Jones and some of the wise Canadians did act in time, and now the survivors have increased so that there are thousands in the United States again, in our great national parks, and at least 10,000 in Canada.

The destruction of the magnificent animals to satisfy the greed of man was a ghastly thing, but it had one fine effect. It taught a lesson of animal and forest conservation which we are not likely to forget. And so this upstanding fellow with the great, lowered head, will not join the great auk and dodo and be remembered only because of our five-cent piece.

Debauching of Aviation To Politics

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.—John Milton.

THE truth about the 10 heroes of the Army Air Corps who have been sent to an unnecessary death in the last three weeks cannot be soiled by cowardly politicians in Congress, by publicity seekers there or elsewhere, by propaganda bureaus of government.

The truth about those deathless heroes will shine as brightly as a sunbeam, as long as the American people prefer truth to falsehood and a brave defender with the colors to a political nincompoop.

The truth about the sacrifice of the 10 pilots, who dared death a thousand times to earn their commissions as military aviators, will ultimately come out, regardless of whether this Congress faces its responsibility or continues to shirk it. It is only the latest bitter fruit of a series of blunders that began last summer.

If this Congress persists in its refusal to investigate the maladministration of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce since Secretary Roper began last summer to disrupt, the people will elect a Congress next November that will obey their mandate and refuse to be hoodwinked by Mr. Roper.

Bad Administration Of Secretary Roper

THE debauching of American aviation to politics, which has culminated in the wrecking of the federal air mail, the crippling of American air transport and the paralyzing of the Army Air Corps as an arm of the national defense started in the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce after Secretary Roper took hold of it.

The maladministration of this branch under Secretary Roper, aided and abetted by hand-picked crews of political favorites, is one of the most costly and unnecessary scandals of this or any other administration of recent years.

This maladministration began soon after Congress adjourned. It began under the pretence that the aeronautics branch needed reorganization. Postmaster General Farley canceled air mail contracts upon the excuse that between January 30, last, and February 6, last, he discovered all were fraudulent.

As a result of a series of so-called reorganizations, staggered over last summer and autumn, the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce has been changed from a highly efficient and non-political agency for the regulation and development of commercial aeronautics into a political agency for the reward of jobless relatives and constituents of senators and representatives in Congress, contributors to the campaign fund and disgruntled because unsuccessful bidders for contracts.

Congressional Inquiry Needed

UNTIL some committee of this or the next Congress subjects the aeronautics branch to a thorough ventilation, the American people will be denied the whole truth about the tragic fate which has befallen American aviation since Secretary Roper became responsible for the regulation and development of its commercial activities and Postmaster General Farley became responsible for the maintenance of the federal air mail.

Until some committee of this or the next Congress turns the searchlight of a fearless investigation upon the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, how far its reorganization has been dictated by outside parties at interest, by senators and congressmen, by campaign contributors and seekers after government contracts, will remain a secret to the American people.

It was not to have been kept a secret this long. Had an honest, fair and fearless committee of Congress looked into this scandal months ago many subsequent mistakes might have been averted.

Meantime, it is not surprising that the air line pilots are protesting to Congress against giving any power to Secretary Roper or his political appointees to determine the flying hours or wages of air line pilots. These pilots know what has been going on in Secretary Roper's department. They have known it for months, they know also why all investigation of his maladministration has been headed off to date.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

When married couples are too attentive and polite toward each other in public, it looks like a play for favorable effect.

Usually this deduction is true.

But even the evidences of a bluff are preferable to the impression made by couples who are irritable and sharply spoken to each other.

It is to be expected that there will be differences of opinion between two people, brought up in different environment perhaps, but this should not develop into a spirit of snappy rebellion when they attend social affairs.

There is a sensible medium between these two extremes which precludes unfavorable comment, even by those who most relish a bit of scandal or enjoy circulating derogatory reports about married persons.

It is a perfectly natural attitude, not savoring at all of "company manners," which makes certain couples so welcome in the society of friends and acquaintances.

Only gossip-mongers get any satisfaction from association with couples who display ill temper and dissatisfaction with each other in public.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Poet

Men pitied him for poverty,
For loneliness and pain;
How could they know he shared the glee
Of April wind and rain?

They saw the weary fight he made,
They knew his heavy load;
But never guessed how unafraid
He faced the future's road.

They sorrowed that the world had not
Revered his splendid art.
How could they dream that he forgot
The world, and dwelt apart?

Ah, never, never poet yet,
Although by men denied,
But nature richly paid the debt

For him each poppy petal brings
A message from the dark;
For him a secret rhythm rings
Through song of wave and lark.
